DWELLING ON FIRE

Harmony Restored by Withdrawal of Mansfield Today

The Full State Ticket of Democratic Party is Now Complete—Names of the Other Nominees

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Harmony was restored in the democratic party of Massachusetts today after thirteen days of dissension that threatened for a time, in the opinion of shrewd observers of political events, to rend the party asunder. Eugene N. Foss, member of congress from the fourteenth district, became the undisputed party nominee for governor today by the withdrawal of Frederick W. Mansfield, the Boston attorney, who was named by the Faneuil hall convention as a temporary candidate with the agreement that he would withdraw when a committee of four appointed by the convention had agreed upon a candidate.

The democratic state ticket is now completed as follows:

Governor—Eugene N. Foss of Boston.

Lieutenant-governor—Thomas F. Cassidy of North Adams.

Secretary of state—Charles J. Martell of Boston.

Treasurer—Benjamin F. Peach of Lynn.

Auditor—Charles C. Paine of Barnstable.

Attorney-general—John Ratigan of Worcester.

Mr. Cassidy, the candidate for lieutenant-governor, will have to run on nomination papers as a democratic independent candidate. The convention approved the committee of four nominate a candidate for lieutenant-governor, but this action was illegal, according to a decision of the Massachusetts ballot law commission. Mr. Cassidy will be the only candidate bearing the word "democratic" inasmuch as Thomas P. Riley of Malden, who had taken out nomination papers as democratic citizen candidate for the lieutenant-governorship has withdrawn in Mr. Cassidy's favor.

When the democratic state convention assembled in Faneuil hall on Oct. 6 there were three candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, Congressman Foss, Charles S. Hamlin, and former State Senator James H. Vahey. The balloting for the nominee was by the Australian system and two ballots were taken without result, Mr. Hamlin withdrawing after the first ballot. A motion to proceed to a third ballot and a motion to adjourn the convention subject to the call of the chair precipitated a small riot. After chair reprecipitated a small riot. Landed at New York Tell of Thrilling Rescue From Airship America

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Shortly after 9 o'clock the steamer Trent came to anchor below Sandy Hook because of the dense fog.

A wireless message was received this morning through the United Wireless system from the operator on the Trent giving further details of the rescue of the America's crew at sea. The message follows:

"Steamer Trent, 6 a.m. 55 miles southeast of Sandy Hook. The crew of the America, after resting all night, feeling none the worse for their thrilling experience. From what I can fathom in conversation with Irwin (the wireless operator on the America) the most exciting moment of the three days was after the launching of the America's lifeboat. The Trent bore down full speed upon the small boat, Irwin declares for the moment it looked as if she would cut her in half. The Trent appeared the size of the Singer building and he was prepared to jump overboard and swim clear of the propeller. Fortunately this was unnecessary.

"The Trent passed the lifeboat, dangerously rocking her. A rope was thrown and caught by the men, who, however, could not hold on owing to rough seas. The Trent cleared of the lifeboat, which dropped half a mile astern. As the big steamer turned in her wake to return to the lifeboat it was seen that the airship's men had shipped two oars and were struggling to keep her head to the sea. We were now alongside the craft. Again lines were thrown but were dragged from the airship's men's hands. In hanging to the rope Mr. Wellman's little finger was cut. Again the monocoivre was repeated, this time with success. Loud, Simon and Irwin were straining on two oars. The small boat was placed close enough to seize and make fast to the Trent. Two ropes were thrown from the steamer Trent. The crew of the America climbed up the rope ladder and each was gladly cheered as he was helped over the rail. So ended the most thrilling and most daring feat in the annals of the sea.

that he had been unanimously selected as the candidate for lieutenant-governor. Until Riley's withdrawal is in the hands of the secretary of this committee I refuse to do any further business."

A recess was then taken until 3 p. m. to enable the Foss-men on the committee to bring about Riley's withdrawal. When they reassembled at that hour Chairman Macleod had the necessary document in his possession. It was said that Riley had given it with the understanding that Foss would receive the gubernatorial nomination from the committee. Major Crowley said that he would not talk of the governorship until Mr. Riley's withdrawal was deposited with Sec. Hayes of the committee.

Macleod said that he would not take the responsibility of handing in Riley's withdrawal at that time. He gave it to his associate on the committee, Joseph A. Maynard, who said that he would assume all responsibility in the matter. The latter handed it to Secretary Hayes.

Then Major Crowley produced Chas. S. Hamlin's withdrawal, which read as follows:

"The present situation removes my name from further consideration under any circumstances. This is final and irrevocable."

"Charles S. Hamlin."

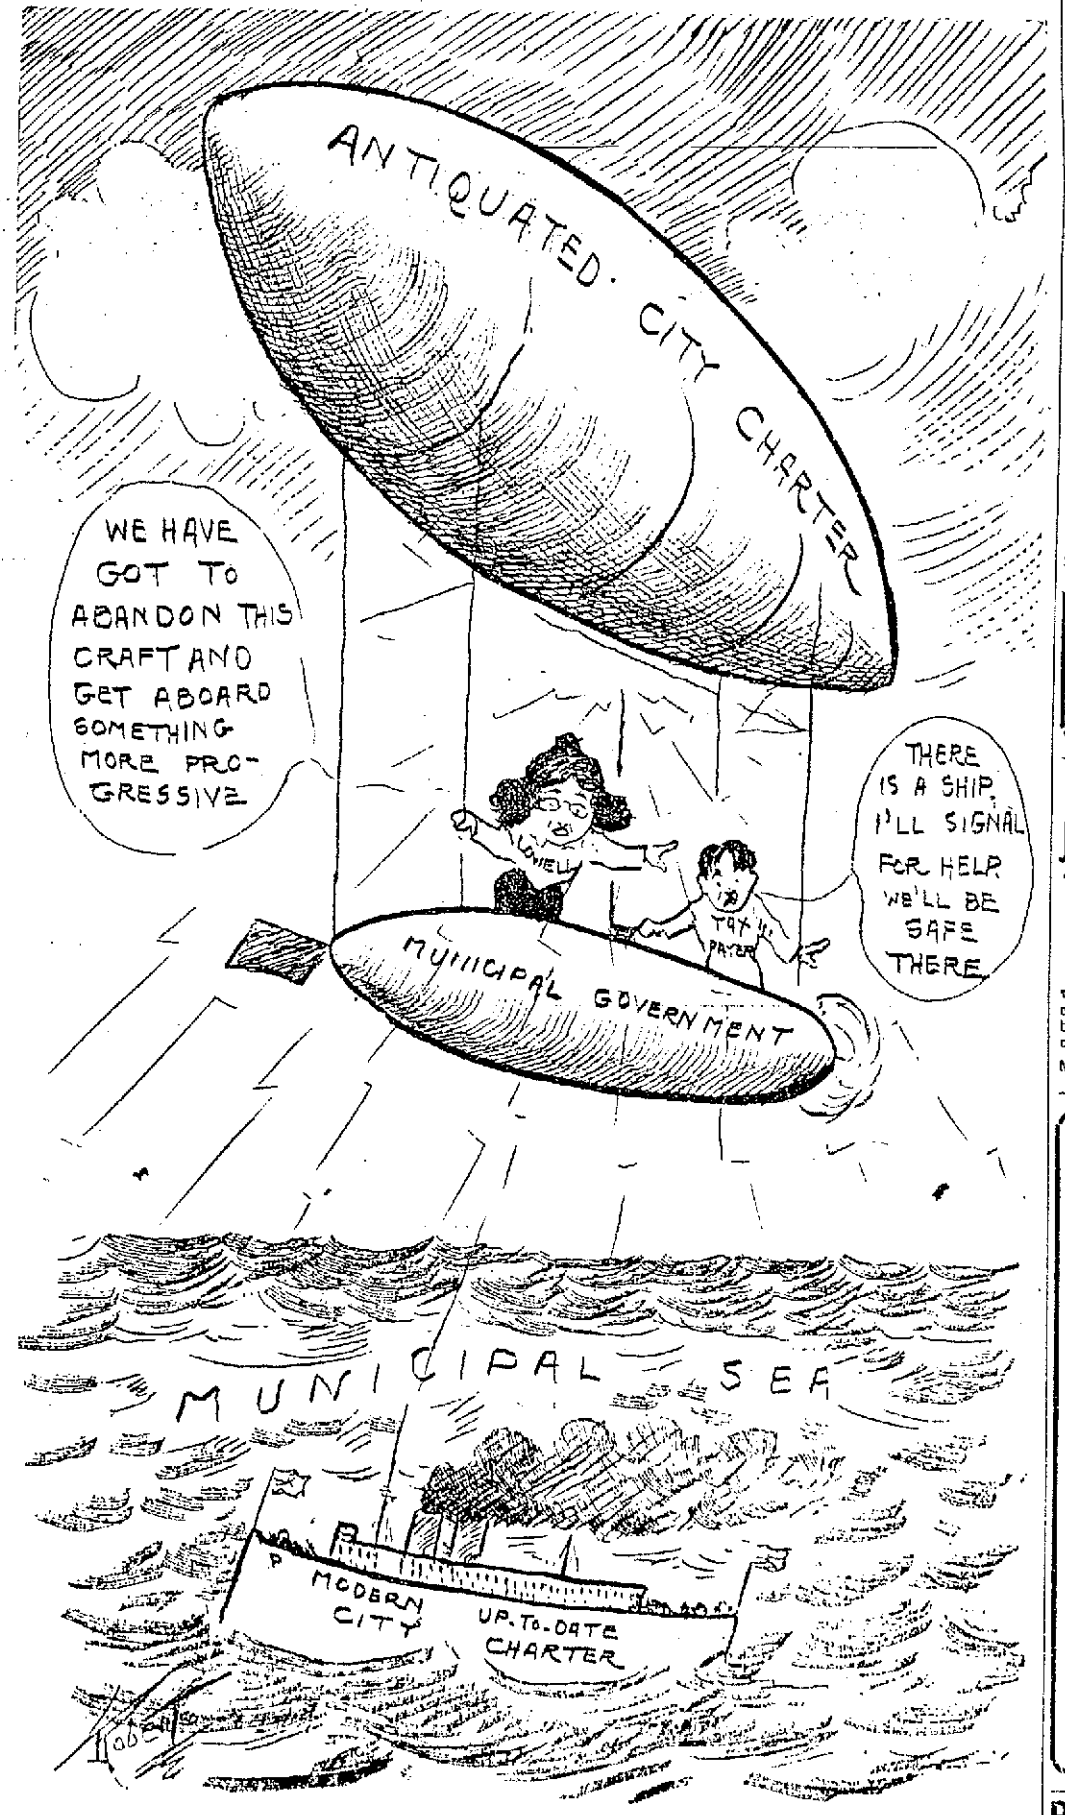

Maynard Nominates Foss

Maynard then nominated Foss for governor and each of the four committeemen voted for him and he was declared the nominee.

On motion of Crowley, Thomas F. Cassidy was then endorsed as the candidate for lieutenant-governor and he received all the votes. It was explained that to all intents and purposes Cassidy is the regular democratic nominee, although his name will appear on the official ballot election day as "democratic citizen" on nomination papers.

The committee then proceeded to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal of O. Z. E. Charest of Holyoke to stand as the convention nominee for secretary of the commonwealth, by nominating Charles J. Martell of 27 Pierce street, Ward 24, Boston.

Ball Commissioner Morris Francis Murphy took the acknowledgment of the four committeemen to the Martell papers.

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland Had Narrow Escape

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Murkland, the former being treasurer of the Central Savings bank, had a narrow escape from being suffocated and probably burned to death early this morning when fire broke out in their house at 45 Taibot street while they were sound asleep. Fortunately Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the smoke and after arousing her husband, both made their escape from the burning building. An alarm from box 141 was sounded and the fire department was soon on the scene, but before the blaze was extinguished the building and contents were badly damaged. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland were the only occupants of the house when the fire broke out, they having only recently returned from their summer home.

Shortly before 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the odor of smoke and aroused her husband. At first both thought that the smoke was from a forest fire, but it was so dense that Mr. Murkland decided to investigate and arose and opened the door of the bed room. He was met by a cloud of smoke which filled the hall and all the other rooms on the second floor. Rushing down stairs he heard the crackling of flames in the kitchen, and without stopping to make any further investigation, he rushed out of doors and rang in the alarm which summoned the department.

It was a long, hard haul up the hill to the house, and by the time the apparatus arrived, the fire had gained considerable headway. Starting in a clothes chute in the kitchen, it had passed up through the partitions of the second floor and was rapidly eating its way toward the roof.

It took the firemen over half an hour to extinguish the flames. In the meantime the building and its contents had been badly damaged.

Mr. Murkland is at a loss to understand how the fire occurred as the only fire in the house at the time was in a stove in the kitchen and the stove was far removed from the chute.

IN POLICE COURT Davidson Street Assault Case Heard

The sequel to a beefsteak in Davidson street last Sunday was aired in police court this morning when Agata Ambrosavitch was arraigned on a complaint charging her with assault and battery on George Striba. She admitted that she was guilty and it looked as though the trial was to be a short one but when the complainant said she hit him with a plate she denied that saying she struck him with a shot and only did so after he had assaulted her.

According to the testimony offered the defendant conducts a boarding house in Davidson street and the complainant formerly boarded with her and recently when he left her house a bitter feeling grew up between the two.

Last Sunday one of the boarders had some beer at the house and invited a number of friends to partake. The complainant was one of the invited guests and the party was in full blast when the defendant entered the house. When she saw Striba she ordered him out and in order to assist him in making a rapid exit she took off one of her shoes and struck him over the head with it, inflicting three gashes on his forehead.

He claims that after she struck him with the shoe he ran out of the house and she followed him and struck him with a plate, but she denied using a plate.

The court after considering the evidence in the case found the defendant guilty and ordered her to pay a fine of $12.

80 INJURED

Two May Die as Result of Collision of Cars at Kittery, Maine

KITTERY, Oct. 18.—Eighty employees of the Portsmouth navy yard on the way to begin their day's work were more or less injured today, three possibly fatally, in a collision between two heavily loaded trolley cars on the Atlantic Shore line railroad at Fort Hill. Falling leaves had made the rails slippery and the first of two cars mounting the hill, driven by Motorman Arthur Barnes, failed to respond to its brakes and rolled back down the hill, crashing into another car. An accident similar in almost every particular occurred at the same spot six years ago.

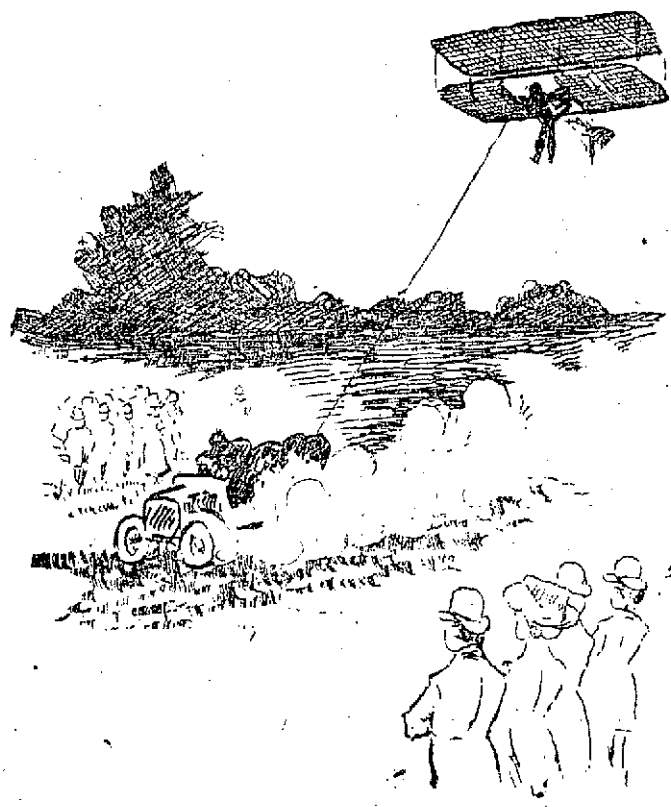

Bad cuts about the head and possible internal injuries sustained by George Gunnison and William Foye, the two most seriously injured, may result in their deaths. Both were removed unconscious to their homes. Thomas Billings suffered an injury to his back which may be a fracture of the spine. Asa Wilson had several ribs and an arm broken and Ansell Hutchins sustained a broken leg and a broken wrist. Nearly a score of others were so badly knocked about that they were unable to go to their work and several others will bear marks of their injuries for life.

Both cars were badly damaged but the crews of neither sustained serious injuries.

TESTING "GLIDERS"

MR. LEHMANN IN THE GLIDER DRAWN BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Technology Club Spent Day in Aeronautic Tests

Lowell may in the near future become as widely known for holding aviation meets as it was for holding successful automobile races, for yesterday an aviation meet was held at the Vesper Country club grounds at Tyngsboro. It was true that the machines used were not regular aeroplanes, they were "gliders," which are the nearest things to the regular motor-driven aeroplanes.

The occasion was the aeronautical reunion of the Technology club of the Merrimack valley and the demonstrations were highly successful. The gliding was done by undergraduates of the Institute of Technology.

The golf course was open to the visitors and also the tennis courts and the day was spent in an enjoyable manner. During the forenoon the gliders were tried out on the links at the south of the clubhouse, but met with an accident and for a time it was thought that it could not be repaired in time for the afternoon demonstrations.

However, the four young men of the crew, Messrs. E. N. Pallen, H. B. Caldwell, H. F. Lehmann and J. B. Nealy, all 12 men, got things in shape after much hard work and about 4 o'clock the first of the flights was attempted. Dr. John H. Lambert's automobile was used to get the glider under way. Mr. Lehmann was placed in the centre of the planes, but got a poor start and rose only a few feet in the air.

A dinner was served at the country club from 5:15 to 6 o'clock, after which there was speechmaking.

TYPHOID FEVER

Seven Cases Reported From Front St.

There is a typhoid fever epidemic in Front street, Centralville. Despite the fact that the street is in a short one, seven cases and one death have been reported.

In a house where the water was shut off because of alleged non-payment of the water bill there are three cases of typhoid fever while across the street there are four cases.

While the cases in the house where the water was shut off might be due to the water used during that time, it is thought that the cases across the street are due to the exposure of sewage. The water in the Merrimack river at this point has been so low for several days that the sewage which generally flows into the water and is carried away has been deposited on dry land which sent forth an odor which was almost unbearable.

HANGED HIMSELF

After His Sister Had Passed Away

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dead since Saturday or Sunday, the bodies of Miss Lucy McMullen and her brother, Louis McMullen, were found last night in the cottage, No. 231 Livingston street, Brooklyn. The man had died after an illness of several months and his sister, in her grief following his death, had committed suicide. He was forty-eight years old and she eight years his senior. The pair had lived all their lives in the house where their bodies were found.

Louis McMullen was prominent in Brooklyn politics and was for years in the sheriff's office. His father before him was prominent politically and for years was the assessor of the port of New York for the Ninth district, which includes Brooklyn.

Miss McMullen, after the death of her mother, took up herself the cares of the house and her younger brother, whom she raised, and herself occupied the home after the sister and even the brother had married.

Three months ago the brother was taken ill of a complication of diseases. He was not confined to his bed all the time. On Friday last his physician, Dr. A. C. Brush, of No. 28 South Portland avenue, called, as did Harry McMullen, the brother who is married and lives at No. 150 Baiter street. On Sunday the physician called and did not gain admittance. Dr. Brush was unable to get in on Monday, and yesterday reported the matter to the brother. Last evening, with the police, he effected an entrance through a window that was not locked. The body of Miss McMullen was found hanging from a door of the second-floor bedroom. On the floor lay the body of the brother.

For some time Miss McMullen, according to her friends, had been morose. At the time of the Livingston street widening she refused to sell the old house in which she lived, and later appeared to regret it because the price offered them was far in excess of what she was able to receive. An offer later when she needed money.

SUPERIOR COURT

Libel Cases of Paradis and Powers vs. D. A. Long on Trial

The case of Perkins vs. Boston & Maine railroad which has been on trial for the past three days was amicably settled out of court last evening and at the opening of court, counsel so notified the court, a verdict for the defendant being ordered.

Paradis vs. Long Case
The next case in order was that of Robert C. Paradis and Warren M. Powers vs. Dennis A. Long, a suit for libel, the ad damnum being $10,000 in each case.

William H. Bent appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Picman and Harvey for the defense.

Cornac, Lowell, clerk; Thomas A. Ellis, Billerica, plumber; Patrick T. Flynn, Pepperell, shipper; George E. French, Carlisle, farmer; George M. Holmes, Ashby, painter; Stephen W. A. Normandin, Lowell, clothing dealer; James F. Shattuck, Groton, broker; Alfred D. Swallow, Dunstable, farmer; David C. Whittier, Dracut, farmer.

Daniel D. Fox of Dracut was challenged by the defense.

Major Bent in opening for the plaintiff read the several papers in the case which took up considerable time, after which he explained the nature of the cases.

Mr. Bent then read certain interrogatories and answers, the latter sworn to by Dennis A. Long.

Mr. Long, in answer to interrogatories stated that he was the owner but not the editor of The Sunday Telegram and that the circulation of the paper at the time the alleged libelous articles were published was about 14,000.

The following interrogatories were then read:

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit A and attached to the plaintiff's declaration?"
A. "John A. Lamberton."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit B?"
A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit C?"
A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit D?"
A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit E?"
A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

The exhibits referred to are the alleged libelous articles.

The first witness called was City Messenger Joseph D. Patten. He testified that shortly after Messrs. Paradis and Powers testified in the police board case Mayor Brown came to him and instructed him not to allow either of them in the mayor's office again. Witness told them of the mayor's instructions and they didn't attempt to go in.

Robert C. Paradis
Robert C. Paradis, one of the plaintiffs, testified that he had been a reporter on the Courier-Citizen, and is also a special correspondent for the Associated Press and local agent for the Fox typewriter. He testified further that he had known Mayor Brown when the latter was a police officer.

AT ELLIS ISLAND

President Taft is Greatly Pleased With Work Done There

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—President Taft had his first view yesterday of that wonderful piece of machinery, on Ellis Island where the aliens of many countries undergo their first grueling of the road to American citizenship. He spent five hours in the one place in the United States where the rights of human liberty temporarily are suspended by executive action alone while the tedious work of separating the moderately good from the wholly bad, goes on day after day until at the end of the calendar year the number of immigrants passed upon and admitted or rejected amounts up in the millions.

The human interest side of the work at the big immigrant station appealed to the president keenly. He saw the process of handling the aliens from the moment of landing, through their wide-eyed, wondering and docile compliance with all of the rigid rules of mental and physical examination and segregation up to the moment of final discharge when, with tear streaming eyes they rushed into the arms of waiting friends or relatives. It was this last phase of the work which struck the president most deeply. With nerves strung to the breaking point over the detention, the strange surroundings and the doubt as to final admission, most of the women among the new arrivals gave way completely to their emotions as they were released from the wire cages which greet the eye on every side.

During his investigation the president sat with Immigration Commissioner William Williams in a number of appealed cases. Mr. Taft proved a lenient judge and it was indeed a surprise to find that nearly a score of rejected immigrants to the bar for final decision on the day of the president's visit. The president took a hand in the examination of practically all of the immigrants who came up on appeal. There were Slavs, Poles, Greeks and Italians, but the most interesting case of all was that of a Welsh miner and his family of seven motherless children. The president personally directed that the family be admitted and he declared that if he was at all a judge of human nature, the seven children would grow into the best type of citizens.

As a result of his studies and observations yesterday, Mr. Taft had reached last night a pretty definite conclusion on three points: First—He believes that a strong effort should be made to distribute the influx of foreigners and do away with the present congestion in New York. Second—He believes that heavier penalties should be exacted of the steamship companies for infractions of the immigration rules so as to make them more strict in their examination of immigrants before shipping them in foreign ports.

Third—He believes that all mail immigrants upon their arrival here should be put through a thorough examination as to the condition of families left behind in Europe. One of the most difficult human problems of the immigration service has been the separation of families, but the president believes the problem can be solved by requiring immigrants to tell in advance whether or not families left behind are eligible for admission under the immigration laws.

Mr. Taft was urged yesterday to use his influence in getting an appropriation from congress which would practically double the facilities at Ellis Island. This he will decline to do. He holds the view that if the Ellis Island facilities were doubled, it would simply mean a further inducement to the steamship companies to concentrate their immigrant traffic in this city. If additional facilities must be provided for immigrants, the president thinks that stations should be established at other ports along the coast. This would mean, of course, that the steamship companies being notified that only a certain number of immigrants would be handled in New York, and that aliens in excess of this number should be taken to other ports. A number of movements are under way, fostered principally by foreign societies to distribute the immigrants arriving daily in America. Mr. Taft is of the opinion that by increasing the points of distribution, the congestion of foreigners on the East Side of New York can be greatly relieved.

President Taft believes that the work at Ellis Island has been reduced to as near a science as is possible.

GIRLS REVOLT

THEY WANT TO PLAY BASKETBALL AS BOYS DO

NEW ROCHELLE, Oct. 19.—There was a general revolt of the girls of the New Rochelle high school yesterday afternoon when Principal Arthur E. Chase recommended that a woman coach be hired to direct the girls' basketball squad.

"Indeed, we won't play girls' rules," stoutly declared Miss Constance North, captain of the sophomore class team.

"No, sir, we don't," Miss Margaret Cantor, captain of the senior team, declared. "We will play boys' rules or none at all. Why what fun is there in girls' rules? They don't let you run enough to keep warm on a hot day."

Back of the high school after the meeting the air was filled with the shouts of the girls as they played a fast game, running and bumping into one another, falling down and skulking their joints and thinking it was fine sport. Harold Van Nulder, one of last year's high school stars, was pressed into service as coach. The girls say he is "just a lovely coach."

Among last year's stars are Marjorie Inglis, Beatrice Colton, Marlen Mable, Margaret Cantor and Margaret Berry. The other members of the squad are Grace Clancy, Edna Schroeder, Eva Walker, Bernice Weldon, Adeline Klomke, Dorothy Hawland, Helen Walker, Margaret Lambden, Carrie Freeman, Amanda Burroughs, Eunice Ball, Ruth Beach, Lola Harvey, Eleanor Poole and Elsie Nichols. So many candidates have turned out that the classes will have separate days for practice and an interclass tournament will be arranged to pick a representative school team.

SUING FOR $50,000

Miss Esther Quinn on Stand for
Two Hours

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Esther Quinn, who wants $50,000 damages from Harry Thurston Peck, until recently professor of Latin at Columbia university, spent two hours yesterday under examination by C. D. Francis, counsel for the professor.

The examination was directed because Prof. Peck had alleged in his answer to Miss Quinn's suit that she was in the habit of associating with disreputable characters. As on her two former examinations, she absolutely denied the charges.

The session lasted two hours and was taken up for the greater portion of the time with objections from Mr. O'Reilly. Miss Quinn, on O'Reilly's advice, having declined to answer a question as to when she came to New York on the ground that she did not know, Francis said he would go to the supreme court and have a ruling.

"You can't come before the supreme court too soon for me," retorted O'Reilly. "When you do, all this testimony you have taken will be stricken out."

Miss Quinn repeated what she had already told as to her age, which she had placed at "about 34." She refused to be pinned down to any specific figure.

Miss Quinn said she was born in Massachusetts and lived in Boston and Cambridge as a child and had gone to school in Cambridge and New York.

One little detail that the attorney brought out was that the nickname or pet name by which Dr. Peck most frequently called her was "Tessie." She denied having other pet names or nicknames, except the one "Nettie," by which she was known at home.

She said she had met a man named Samuel Scott twice and that he had been interested in business with Leander Richardson, by whom she had once been employed.

She swore she never met George Graham Rice, the manager of Scheffels & Co., whose places were raided by the police, until she was employed there.

"Ever work in Wall street until you went with Scheffels & Co.?" Mr. Francis asked.

"Never. That was the nearest I got to Wall street. Dr. Peck recommended me to go there."

"Where did he give you that address?"

"In my apartment, 523 West 134th street."

Mr. Francis then went back to the alleged proposal and asked Miss Quinn whether she did not consider it unusual that he was standing up when he asked her to marry him.

"Now you want to make this girl an expert again," said O'Reilly. "I object. What has the question whether Peck was standing or not when he proposed to her, to do with the present proceeding?"

After some further bickering the examination was adjourned until Friday next.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY

"I AM STARVING."

"The sight of food disgusts me. I can't eat. What shall I do for strength?"

Starvation is the right name for weakness, because all strength comes from food. Many people eat great quantities of food, but get little benefit from it because their stomachs are disordered. Others cannot eat. How frequently you hear them say "the very thought of food nauseates me."

Regulate your stomach at once with Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Get the benefit of your food. Get the appetite for it. Get the strength you are entitled to. Get it by natural, honest, healthy means. Poor blood, general weakness, inability to sleep, kidney and liver trouble all follow quickly when the stomach is out of order.

Mr. Sarah Clark, 1879 Third Ave., New York City, says:

"I want to tell all those who have been told that I was cured by the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I had indulged so bad that I could not eat anything for months. I looked as though if something didn't cure me I would starve to death. I had the most terrible nervous headache. I had a terrible pain in my head. In the morning when I woke up I would be all right and my tongue would be coated all the time. The indication not to eat had effected my kidneys and blood. I suffered great pain from rheumatism. My limbs were stiff all the time. I had terrible palpitations of the heart. And only now I feel better. And how much I needed help! Get nothing I look seemed to do me any good, until I heard of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. And now it was the best medicine on earth for all stomach troubles. I want everyone to know how kind Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is. And give my experience for the benefit of all."

Now is the time to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the greatest and best remedy the world has ever known.

Dr. Greene is the well-known public medical lecturer and specialist in treatment of all nervous and chronic diseases, and can be personally consulted at his office, 31 Temple Place, Boston, or by mail, free.

LEAVE TO WITHDRAW

Voted to Petitioners for Extension of Dummer Street

Busy Meeting of the Aldermen Held Last Night—Offer of the Spaulding Land is Accepted—Other Matters

The board of aldermen held a busy meeting last evening but took no action on the proposed increase of city laborers' pay, owing to the absence of Aldermen Adams and Carmichael, though the latter arrived at the meeting shortly before adjournment.

The board accepted the report of the committee on the petition for the extension of Dummer street.

After a brief debate the board accepted the offer of 1875 feet of land between Crescent and Parker streets for park purposes by Hannah M. Spaulding, refused to consider the purchase of land about the Washington school for playground purposes, postponed action on the sale of the Fayette street school property, turned over the matter of an appropriation of $5000 for an auto patrol to the appropriations committee, and signed the sewer loan providing for the building of new or the extension of old sewers to the number of an even dozen.

The board also passed upon the laying out and accepting of several streets and the building of sidewalks in others, and passed upon a big list of routine matters.

The first matter taken up was the confirming of the assessments on the 12 sewers and the signing of the sewer loan. This provided for sewers in Allen, Bond, Crawford, Cumberland, East Merrimack, Front, Glenwood, Lawrence, Stackpole, West Manchester, White and Wilder streets.

The board referred the matter of an appropriation of $5000 for an auto patrol to the committee on appropriations, along with the application of the board of health for an added appropriation of $7700 to finish out the year.

On the motion of Alderman Brennan seconded by Alderman Connors, action on the question of the city laborers' pay was postponed until the next meeting.

OLYMPIC GAMES

ENGLISH A. A. A. SHAPING THE PROGRAM

The general committee of the English Amateur Athletic association held a meeting recently and among other business the program of the Olympic games for 1912 came up for treatment. From what transpired it is evident that the Englishmen are having nearly their own way in shaping the list of contests, although the ambidextrous conditions with regard to the javelin, discus and shot have been included. The hammer will not be thrown according to the ambidextrous rule. In the original draft of the program the standing high and standing broad jumps were not included, but they are in the new plan of the program drawn up by the Englishmen.

Some of the track events seen on the London program two years ago have been omitted and some new ones put on instead. Those left off are the 500 meters flat and the 400 meters hurdles, and a new one is a five mile cross-country race. The discus will be thrown three ways, that is free style with one hand and the free style with the right and left hands, and from the pedestal "as at Athens" one way. The javelin will be thrown two ways, that is with one hand and with the right and left hands, but in both these contests the javelin will have to be grasped in the middle. There will be two all around contests. One will be the same as at Athens in 1906 and made up of five events and the other one will include ten events. In the program as it now stands the events are as follows:

100 meters flat, 400 meters flat, 800 meters flat, 1500 meters flat, 5000 meters flat, 10,000 meters flat, Marathon race (40,000 meters), hurdle race (110 meters), 10,000 meters walk, five miles (about) cross-country race.

Team Races—Relay race, 1800 meters (teams of four, each to run 400 meters) relay race, 3000 meters (five to run, three to carry).

Jumping—Standing high jump, standing broad jump, running high jump, running broad jump, hop, step and jump, pole jump.

Throwing and putting—Discus (free style), best hand; discus (free style), right and left hand; discus (as at Athens), javelin (with the javelin held in middle, Swedish way of holding it), best hand; javelin (with the javelin held in the middle, Swedish way of holding it), right and left hand; putting the weight, best hand; putting the weight, right and left hand; throwing the hammer; tug of war.

Pentathlon, comprising in following order: 100 yard jump, discus (free style), running (400 meters), javelin (best hand), running (1500 meters). Points to score according to place in each event; lowest points to win.

Decathlon, comprising in following order: 100 yard jump, discus (free style), running (400 meters), javelin (best hand), running (1500 meters), points to score according to place in each event; lowest points to win.

order, divided in two days. First day: Running (400 meters), broad jump, putting the weight (best hand), high jump, running (400 meters). Second day: Hurdle race (100 meters), discus (best hand), pole jump, javelin (best hand), running (1500 meters).

An interesting game is anticipated. The lineup for Chelmsford will be: Baldwin, Kirtledge, H. Ellis, F. Russell, C. Wyman, R. T. Sheehan, P. Piles, Dutton, G. B. Leville, L. P. Pasche, R. B. BOXING GOSSIP

Joe Grim and Terry Fitzgerald meet at Shenandoah Oct. 22. Dick Nelson and Dixie Kid have been matched to meet at New York Oct. 27. Tommy Kilbane and Young Gibbs will furnish the Nashville fans with a 10-round bout Oct. 31. Johnny Gallant, the bantam-weight, will meet Young Nelson in one of the preliminaries to the Eddie Murphy-Johnny Dohan match at Manchester Friday night.

Now that Jim Barry has beaten Sandy Ferguson there is much speculation as to whether Little will grab Barry and endeavor to groom him for a chance at Johnson.

Amateur boxing tournaments have won a popular place with the New York followers of the game. Another tourney has been arranged to take place at the Irish-American A. C. next Tuesday and Thursday night.

In commenting on the death of Stanley Ketchel, which he learned upon his arrival in New York yesterday, Jack Johnson said it was too bad. "Ketchel was a great fighter," said Johnson, "and gave me a better fight than Tommy Burns. There was no sign of yellow in his makeup."

DIAMOND NOTES

D. A. Fletcher, the promoter of a new major baseball league, who has succeeded in stirring up all the big men in control of organized clubs and circuits, is said to have enlisted the financial support of not only several leading theatrical managers but also that of Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason, who pulled off the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno last July. Gleason owns a ball park in San Francisco and has been in baseball for several years, while Rickard was ready to take a number of star players on a tour of the country this fall when the national commission put a stop to the plan. Rickard has been hobnobbing with Rickard and Gleason, it is reported, and they have expressed a willingness to go ahead with him. They have been visiting several eastern cities on the quiet lately and are said to have looked over sites for proposed ball grounds.

According to a well informed New Yorker Fletcher's agents have been extremely busy in this city. It is said they have considered the advisability of locating a club either in the Bronx or in Long Island City near the new Queensboro Bridge entrance and not far away from a proposed station on the Long Island extension of the Pennsylvania road. They have consorted with local capitalists, it is stated, and have reported to Fletcher that he will meet with encouragement if he decides to include New York in his new organization. Word comes from Chicago and Pittsburgh that Fletcher has agents in those cities who are trying to drum up backers of the proposed venture, while it is also rumored that he may have a chance to form some sort of a combination with the present American Association, which is still anxious to expand its circuit.

There is no doubt that Fletcher's activity is worrying the big leagues considerably, even though they have been ridiculing his project and have been convinced that he cannot raise enough money to carry out his plans. But the fact that he has signed numerous ball players to provisional contracts and is going after more has created the impression that even if he fails to make good in the long run he is going to make a lot of trouble.

The players in both big leagues are organizing a protective association. There is no longer any reason to doubt this statement, for certain disgruntled persons have been doing much missionary work and seem to be confident that they will accomplish a lot. Meanwhile the club owners in the big leagues are quietly signing their best players, as many as possible, for next year so that they will not be caught napping. In some instances, it is said, the club owners have acceded to exorbitant demands, but it is also true that they have learned that many players for some unknown reason are not willing to talk business just now.

If a new league is actually launched there can be only one result, baseball men say. Thousands of dollars will be lost by the new promoters, interest in the game will lag and in the end organized ball will win because of prestige, money and brains. Fans all over the country have shown by their patronage that the existing conditions in baseball are satisfactory and for that reason it is believed that any attempt to tear down the present structure will not meet with popular favor and support. In the case of Fletcher, it is pointed out that he tried to butt into the game at the expense of the men who built it up after years of patience and hard work; that his proposed tour of the United States with teams of major league players under contract to organized clubs was properly nipped in the bud by the National commission; and that his attempt to break up the game by forming another league is prompted by a desire to get even for a fancied wrong. The national commission, representing the big leagues, has a corps of agents watching Fletcher and his friends very closely, and there seems to be no doubt that if a fight comes organized baseball will be prepared to go to extremes.

Because of the big profits in baseball, as shown by the world's championship and the local series, it is said to say that there are many persons with money to invest who are ready to take a hand in any movement calculated to secure a slice of the business. But it takes experience to run a baseball league successfully and newcomers are sure to find this out in the course of time, it is argued. A first class ball club in either of the major leagues cannot be run without a yearly outlay of more than $100,000. This includes salaries and travelling expenses besides rent and other items. To build a modern plant requires at least $100,000 before a game can be played, so that would be promoters of clubs who have to dig deep before they can begin to look for the support of the public.

The establishment of a third league embracing the leading cities now represented in the National and American leagues would mean conflicting dates and a division of patronage such as existed in the Brotherhood war of 1890. Such a condition, it is shown, would mean heavy losses and no possible chance for success. The two big leagues now operating in harmony have an emergency war fund of nearly $1,000,000 laid away for just such opposition as Fletcher is planning, so that in case of a clash there would be some lusty fighting for the control of playing talent. The promoters of the outlaw circuit are taking advantage of the present excitement over the post-season games to perfect their plans, but as soon as the games are over it is said there will be an accounting and the big fellows will take action. Fletcher will be compelled to show his hand.

MANSLAUGHTER

Is Charged Against Roxbury Man

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—John T. Holt, 23 years old, of 14 Hucking street, Roxbury, was arrested by Special Officer John Kilday of division 10 last night, charged with manslaughter.

It is alleged that Holt struck Sable C. Singleton, aged 30, colored, of 772 Shawmut avenue, early Friday morning, Oct. 7. Singleton fell to the sidewalk and fractured his skull. The injury resulting in his death last Monday afternoon.

Holt, it is said, on the night of Oct. 7, met Margaret T. McNeil of 748 Shawmut avenue, who is employed as a waitress at the corner of Dover and Washington streets. He walked with her as far as her home and stood inside the door for several minutes talking. Suddenly the young woman ran from the doorway to the sidewalk and meeting Singleton, it is alleged, asked him to assist her.

BIG DISTURBANCE

The Caribbean Sea Shaken by an Earthquake

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Oct. 19.—The Santa Clara observatory last night issued the following notice:

"The trouble in the Caribbean sea is more than a mere atmospheric disturbance. The seismographs here have been running wild on Oct. 16, 17, 18, reporting a gigantic effort a long distance to the east. Today's record has been continuous from the east and the south of about the same dimension. The seismic reports from this place have so far been confirmed from Washington, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Manitoba."

RADIUM SUPPLY

Britain Has Plenty of It

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Official announcement will be made today that the first 500 milligrammes of radium have been produced in England from Cornish pitch blende. A continuous supply of British radium is thus assured for the future. When it is remembered that the total quantity of radium in existence at the present moment is only a few grammes, the importance of this statement to the medical and scientific world will immediately be understood. For the last eighteen months work has been proceeding quietly at the Freetown section of the St. Ives consolidated mines in Cornwall, where pitch blende is being produced regularly in considerable quantities. From the pitch blende ore fair quantities of uranium oxide and other uranium products are daily being manufactured and the extraction and purification of radium bromides is now being worked out by continuous processes.

Sir William Ramsay, one of the foremost scientists of the age, conducted the experiment and the result of his researches is the discovery of a process by which radium can be extracted from uranium in a period of under three months, as against the two years occupied under the system at present in use in Austria, where the bulk of what radium exists in the world hitherto has been obtained.

Sir William, after exhaustive researches, has also been able to produce from the Cornish pitch blende the rarer element of polonium, a fact which in itself is startling and bound to create a stir in the medical councils of the world.

For the present, however, it is hopeless to expect any reduction of the present prohibitive price of radium, which is something like $100,000 per gramme.

SECRETARY KNOX

TO GET AN INCREASE IN HIS SALARY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—After March 4 next, Secretary of State Philander C. Knox probably will get $12,000 a year salary, equal to that of his fellow members of the cabinet. The state department budget will make such recommendation.

Being a member of the senate when $14,000 a year was added to the salaries, Mr. Knox was barred from accepting the office of secretary of state by the constitutional provision that no member of congress may accept an office the emoluments of which are increased during the term for which he was elected. In order that he might be eligible for the higher post, congress repealed that part of the salary increase applying to the office of secretary of state.

PARISH BAZAAR

TO BE OPENED IN SACRED HEART SCHOOL HALL

The bazaar of the Sacred Heart parish which is to open with a grand sacred concert next Sunday evening will be one of the red letter events in the history of that parish. It is particularly notable on account of the opening of the new parochial school hall, which is one of the prettiest in the city of Lowell. It will accommodate nearly 1000 people, and is well adapted for the various forms of entertaining arranged for the various evenings during the bazaar. These entertainments will be of musical, literary and dramatic character, to be followed each evening by dancing which appeals to the young people.

A very large number of people are interested in making the bazaar a success. The sum of $570 will be given in prizes on the various tables. The awards will include a great variety of all paintings, crayon work of art, lace, embroidery, and all the other articles usually found in such a bazaar.

The opening concert will have excellent musical features that will well repay those who attend. The bazaar proper will be formally opened for business on Monday evening, and will continue until October 20th. The people of the parish are particularly proud of the new parochial school building, and in this they are justified. Not only members of the parish but a large number of friends of the bazaar will take advantage of the bazaar to inspect the entire building.

FOR CONGRESS

Three Candidates After Capron's Place

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—Little interest attaches to today's state convention in infantry hall. It was practically certain before the delegates took their seats that the present state officers would all be renominated without opposition and that the party platform would be adopted as presented. The convention opened this morning with the machinery well arranged and ready to set in motion. The day's official interest centered in the second district republican congressional convention to be held in infantry hall after the adjournment of the state convention. Three candidates were announced for the nomination to succeed Congressman Capron who declined renomination after 14 years of service because of ill health. These candidates were: Former Governor George Utter of Westbury; General Walter Stines of Warwick and State Senator Edward Arnold of Coventry. Utter and Stines were regarded as the principals in the contest, it being freely expressed, before the convention that the expected failure of a nomination for a reversal of Arnold votes to former Governor Utter.

THRILLING STORY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Men's first attempt to cross any ocean in an airship has failed, but Walter Wellman, five companions and a kitten, who essayed the voyage, are safe. The airship—the giant America—is a battered aerial derelict, abandoned at sea, perhaps still in the air, perhaps sunk beneath the waves with her costly equipment. When deserted she had been in the air probably 72 hours, a new record for dirigibles, and driven by the wind, had travelled doubtless 800 miles. Whether the distance record for dirigibles—370 miles—also will be broken, remains to be computed.

Picked up by the steamship Trent yesterday morning off the North Carolina coast, Wellman and his fellow navigators are due in New York today. They left their craft only because she was in distress and blown so far from the lane of trans-Atlantic steamship travel that a continuation of the voyage with the British isles as the objective point, was hopeless. So, summoning aid by wireless, the difficult and dramatic transfer to the Trent was accomplished, and the America was left to the fate of the winds.

For an incident without parallel in history—the transfer of passengers from an airship to a steamship—measures were the details obtainable by all times more or less uncertain. At all times more so by the tropical storm which swept northward, but last night wireless stations in the vicinity of New York picked up from the Trent a word here and a word there, amplifying on the earlier despatches.

It was learned that Wellman had found it necessary to rid the airship of the burden of most of its gasoline, and was given up because of the breaking of a long trial rope, stored with provisions, net unlike the equilibrium of the trip just ended.

Mr. Wellman is 53 years old, and was born in Menlo, O. As a journalist and explorer he became interested in ballooning and has had great faith in the possibilities of exploration and voyaging by dirigibles.

Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Vaniman, overjoyed that their husbands are safe, but disappointed that the goal was not reached, hurried from Atlantic City to New York last night, ready to meet the returning voyagers with the arrival of the Trent tomorrow.

Captain Down of the Trent, flashed first news of the rescue in a message to the New York Times, which, with the Chicago Record-Herald and the London Daily Telegraph, contributed $35,000 for the purpose of the expedition.

Captain Down also advised Sander- & Sons, New York agents for the Royal Mail steamship packet line. Subsequently more details came in a despatch to the Associated Press.

The Motor Broken
Further wireless messages reaching New York last night say that one of the America's motors had broken, which made more serious the predicament created when all the gasoline that could be spared was cast into the sea. It is also probable that the craft had suffered severely from the jerking of its rat-like trail, or equilibrators, which served the triple purpose of elongated gasoline tank, balance and wireless "ground". Wellman had his immense appendage, battered by the waves, had caused trouble and anxiety, necessitating shutting off the motors at times. Buffeted as the craft was by the winds, it is likely that the equilibrators caused greater trouble in the America's unwilling southward journey.

The America, is, or was, 228 feet long and 52 feet in diameter, with a lifting capacity of 23,650 pounds. The envelope alone weighed two tons. There were three gasoline engines aboard, two of them from 80 to 90 horsepower for the propellers and a smaller one for the operation of a donkey engine. Taken as a whole the craft was practically the same in which Wellman made his two starts for the North pole in 1907 and 1909 respectively. Neither of these attempts was successful, both were made from Spitzbergen. The first trip was abandoned when the America was driven toward a jagged cliff; the second was given up because of the breaking of a long trial rope, stored with provisions, net unlike the equilibrium of the trip just ended.

CAPTAIN OF THE TRENT

TELLS OF THE RESCUE

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP TRENT AT SEA, 12 midnight, October 18.—(By United Wireless)—To The Associated Press, New York. We sighted the airship America at 6 a. m. today. She signalled us by the Morse code, and the wireless played a wonderful part in requesting me to stand by her till daylight. We kept a boat close by her till dawn broke when she signalled that she could not launch her life boat, and asked me to keep close in order that a line might be attached.

We made several futile attempts to attach a line, when the America wireless that she would come down to the water as soon as possible and drop her boat if I could stand by and pick the boat up.

Meanwhile the lifeboats kept as close to the airship as possible and finally she got all her men in her boat and cut adrift at a height of about five feet from the water.

This proved successful. The America immediately rose in the air and shortly afterward, at 8 o'clock, I had the pleasure of welcoming on board Mr. Wellman and his five lieutenants and a cat which seemed little the worse for its air experiences. I then picked up the boat and proceeded.

Wellman and his crew are housed guests on board. After a wash and a brush up they ate a hearty breakfast. The America was abandoned in latitude 35.15 north, longitude 68.15 west. Four hundred and eight miles from Sandy Hook and the craft now having a great time among the clouds. The America was making a speed of about eight knots an hour when abandoned, and when released drifted to the westward. Her motor had been broken and Wellman was out of his course. All hands were mighty glad at being rescued. (Signed) Captain Down, Royal Navy Reserve, in command, S. S. Trent.

The foregoing despatch from Captain Down was received in New York by The Associated Press after midnight last night (Tuesday), giving graphic details of the rescue that was described by wireless during the day, although differing slightly in the matter of latitude and longitude. It confirms earlier reports that the America's motors were disabled and the craft was in dire need of assistance.

TO MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Another attempt will be made to cross the Atlantic ocean in a dirigible balloon in the next year, according to a wireless message received by President Joseph Salus of the Wellman syndicate late last night. The message which was short came from Chief Engineer Melvin Vaniman of the America venture in answer to a query sent by Salus as to whether arrangements should be started for a new balloon trans-Atlantic trip.

"I believe that if we had the thing to do over again, it would prove a success," said Vaniman's message, which is taken to mean that enough knowledge of air currents was secured almost to guarantee crossing the ocean in another attempt.

President Salus last night flashed the following message by wireless to the daring aeronaut:

"Thank God you and crew are safe."

OFF TO CHICAGO

Athletics and Cubs Ready for Battle Tomorrow

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The world's series contestants, members of the national commission, a few friends of each team and the 150 newspaper men who are covering the game left Philadelphia at 8.55 last night, bound for Chicago, to which the battleground was shifted, in a special train, run in Athletic and Cub sections.

In the first section are members of the National commission, the umpires and a few friends, the Athletics and the guests of the club and the Philadelphia reporters and many of the out-of-town correspondents. In the second section are the Chicago team and the Chicago reporters. A big crowd was at Broad street station to see the teams depart.

The crowd at yesterday's game felt a few hundred short of yesterday's, the total paid attendance being 24,957 and the total receipts $85,137.

The attendance for the two days was 51,488 and the total receipts $72,861.50. The share for the players for the two days is $35,133.21.

While on their way to Shibe park yesterday afternoon for the game five members of the Cubs had a narrow escape from possible serious injury. A taxicab in which they were riding ran into a mail wagon near Ridge avenue and 51st street.

Overall, Reulbach, Kling, Archer and Shuckard were in the taxicab. They were badly shaken up and Reulbach complained that his arm had been hurt, but after being rubbed out he declared he was all right.

The players were picked up by other machines following with the rest of the players. The taxicab was badly wrecked. Several hundred excited fans gathered about the wreck and it was only with difficulty that the players got away from the crowd.

Owing to great pressure being brought to bear upon the national commission and the Philadelphia club officials by the demands for reserved seat tickets for the third game to be played here in case the series makes that necessary, the commission has decided to follow out the plan adopted at Chicago and make an immediate sale of these tickets with the guarantee that if no third game here is necessary all tickets so disposed of will be redeemed upon presentation at the place where purchased.

The rules under which the sale will be made have not been formulated but the prospects are that the sale will begin Thursday morning at places designated by the commission and that the number of tickets allowed each purchaser will be limited.

Mounted policemen prevented the scalping of tickets when the gate at 20th and Somerset streets, giving entrance to the outfield, was opened yesterday. Orders had been issued that all who bought the pasteboards must go to their places at once. A number of scalpers bought tickets and then hawked them outside. Lieut. Lawson ordered the mounted men to disperse them and the scalpers were compelled to enter the grounds to escape being ridden down. A watch was then kept to prevent them from throwing the tickets over the fence to their friends.

The presence of D. A. Fletcher of Cincinnati, who hopes to float a new baseball league, has aroused considerable talk among the visiting baseball men. Mr. Fletcher is said to have the national commission and the owners of the major league clubs "on the run." Some of the star players here, however, positively that the proposed series between the All Stars of the American league and the All Stars of the National league will positively be played and that everything is arranged to have the game start next week.

One star pitcher was mentioned last night by the president of his club, but he declined to sign a contract for next season at any terms. The pitcher frankly declared that he was waiting to see how the wind blows before he did anything.

It is reported that Pres. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club is entertaining many of his team here, and that other owners are doing all they can to show their friendship for the players in the hope of preventing them from going over to the Fletcher forces.

Sec. Bruce of the national commission yesterday gave out the following memorial to Harry C. Pulliam, the late president of the National league: "In the fall of 1909 a memorial card to the memory of Harry C. Pulliam was promulgated by the national commission, as follows:

"This series is the fifth one played under the auspices of the National commission. A year makes changes indeed. Harry C. Pulliam, one of the originators of these series, has passed away. His counsel in this body will be heard no more. Organized baseball never had a more zealous and devoted sponsor.

"In order, therefore, that his memory may forever remain green, it is directed by the national commission, that a memorial card be printed and that on the day scheduled for the first game of the world's series in each year the same be distributed to all of the eligible players of the contesting clubs, the official umpires, scorers and business representatives as well as to the owners of the contesting clubs and the press, and that on the same day in each year there be placed at the grave of Harry C. Pulliam at Louisville, Ky., a floral wreath as a token of the esteem in which he was held by every one connected with organized baseball."

The memorial is signed by Pres. B. D. Johnson of the American league.

ODDS CHANGING

CHICAGO SPORTS DROPPED A BARREL OF MONEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—As a result of the two decisive defeats administered to the Cubs by the Athletics, a large number of enthusiastic Chicago fans will continue to wear their summer overcoats all winter—and the winters in Chicago are sometimes very severe. Here is what they were offering early yesterday afternoon, the most of it as it proved, at their own expense: Even money that Cubs would win today's game.

One to three that Cubs would win series in five games.

Four to five that Cubs would win series in six games.

Ten to nine on Cubs for the series.

Six to five that Brown would strike out more men than his opponent.

Three to two that Cubs would steal more bases than Athletics.

Even money that Cubs would get more hits than Athletics.

Two to one on the game.

Notwithstanding their heavy losses on Monday, estimated to be $150,000, the fans came back stronger than ever yesterday, putting down sales of money at 2 to 1 that Mordecai Brown would turn the trick. Heavy commissions from Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other points were promptly covered.

One peculiarity of the betting was that nearly all the New York and Cincinnati money came with instructions to place on the Cubs. Detroit made a beautiful cleanup, getting even for enormous losses when the Cubs defeated the Tigers for the world's championship.

The backers of Philadelphia again turned loose a hundred of money that would stagger the proverbial Pro. Contrary to expectations the Quakers again wanted odds. Six to five was first asked and refused. Then 9 to 10 was offered. Some small lots were, of course, placed at the above figures, but the bulk of the commissions were gotten out at even money.

Odds Changing Sides

The biggest wager of the series developed early yesterday, when Charles Tenney, rated as one of the shrewdest speculators in the country, succeeded in placing $50,000 to $10,000 that the Cubs would win the series. Prior to yesterday the price had been considerably longer, in fact, numerous large wagers were made with the Cubs laying the price of 10 to 7.

At O'Leary's, as soon as a chunk of support made its appearance there, a word of equal proportions was forthcoming to take care of the Athletic end.

New York, which presumably has been preoccupied with its own clash between the Giants and the Yankees, sent in its first large commission on the series. About 30 per cent of this was support for the Cubs, and carried an "even money" valuation.

Thousands of National league supporters, whose confidence had been only temporarily checked by defeat in Philadelphia on Monday, gathered at newspaper offices, around tickers and at other places yesterday and last night and tried to account for the second drubbing by the Philadelphia Americans in the world's series.

The loss of the game yesterday had a much more depressing influence, apparently, than the Monday defeat. Gloom settled down last night and now hope seems to have taken the place of confidence.

Civic pride has the better of league loyalty in many instances, and some of the most ardent supporters of the Chicago American league team are hoping that Chance's men will win eventually.

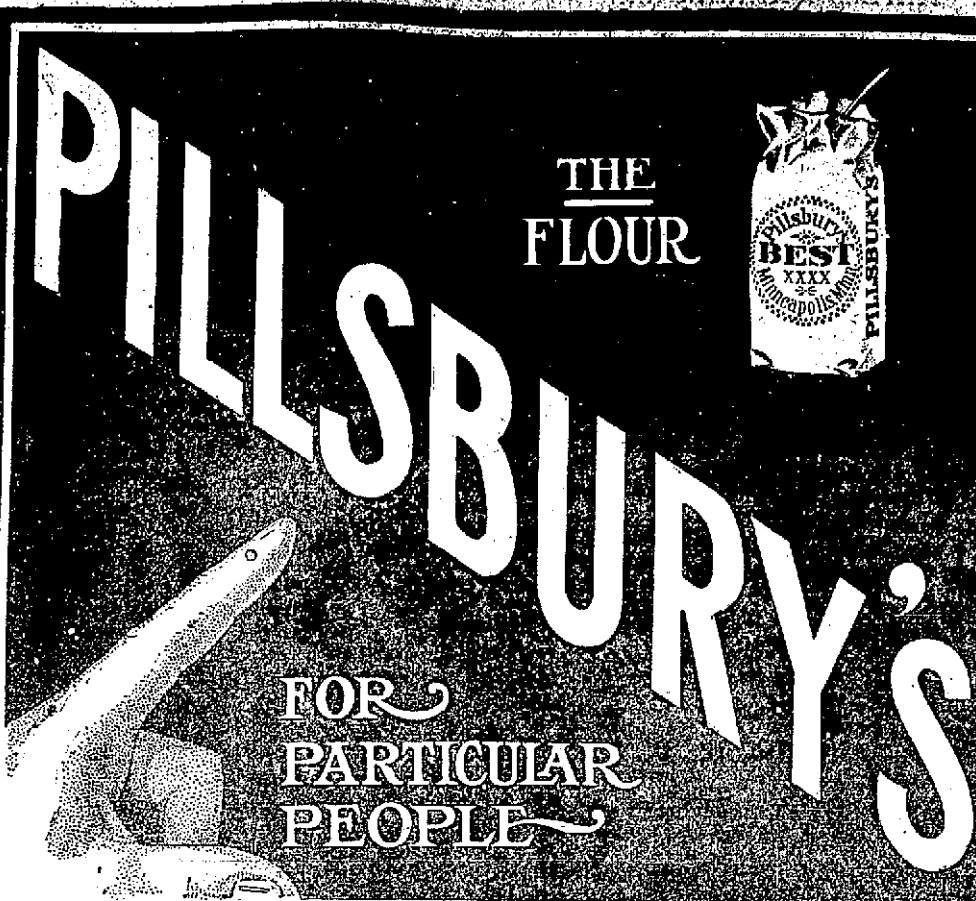

YOUTH CAPTURED

HE IS REGARDED AS KING OF BOY TRAVELERS

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Once again fourteen-year-old John Doyle, of 113 High street, Charlestown, known as the "King of youthful travelers," is in the custody of the police. This time it is in Baltimore, where the police of that city found him surrounded by a crowd of men and boys yesterday. He said he had come from Charlestown, Mass., for no other reason than love for travel.

The Baltimore police communicated with Boston officers yesterday afternoon in regard to him. It was only last Friday the boy was taken into custody by the New Haven police, and his mother sent money to the chief of police of New Haven to put him on the train and return home. The police put him on the train, but instead of coming to Boston he went to Baltimore. In reply to questioning, young Doyle stated that he made his way "by door Pullmans." He said that he had never before been out of money on his travels, and for the first time realized it was "just awful to be broke."

His mother attributes his mania for running away to the reading of novels.

BRIBERY CASE

Burns Says Hamilton's $600 Went to Buy Votes

SALEM, Oct. 19.—Only four witnesses were heard yesterday in the superior criminal court in the trial of Jas. Hamilton, fire chief of Lawrence, who is indicted in nine counts for bribery.

At the opening of the court yesterday forenoon, William H. Molson, real estate dealer of Lawrence, resumed his testimony, which was a reiteration of that submitted at the session Monday, that he received $100 from Hamilton for payment to Alderman Legendre in case the nomination of Hamilton as fire chief was confirmed.

Matthew Burns, who was a member of the Lawrence board of aldermen in 1909, and is now serving sentence with ex-Mayor White for alleged conspiracy, was the next witness. Burns testified that he received $500 from Hamilton to be paid to Alderman Legendre and Wockle in case they voted to confirm the nomination of said Hamilton. This money was placed in a safe by the son of Burns, and some two weeks later, when Hamilton had been confirmed, Wockle, Moss and Legendre each received an envelope containing $300.

Burns testified that when he was first approached by Hamilton the latter was informed that he (Burns) favored another candidate for chief. At a subsequent conference Hamilton told Burns that "these fellows want money for their votes." Burns replied: "If you (Hamilton) secure the money, he (Burns) could secure the votes." Burns was promised iron work for his service in securing the three votes necessary for the confirmation of Hamilton.

Burns further testified that at the time the attempt was made to depose Hamilton from the position of fire chief he was offered $500 for his (Burns) influence with certain aldermen. Burns says he refused the offer. Hamilton made another offer which was also declined.

Witness testified that Wockle, Moss and Legendre came to his office one week before Hamilton was confirmed to ascertain if the money promised was in his custody.

Xavier Legendre, a member of the board of aldermen in 1909, who is now a state witness, testified that he received $150 for voting to confirm Hamilton and $100 when the attempt was made to oust Hamilton from office.

At adjournment Matthew Burns, Jr., the 16-year-old son of Matthew Burns, was on the stand. He testified that he placed the $500 received by his father from Hamilton in the office safe.

NURSES' COURSE

Extended to Three Years at Lowell General

The executive committee of the Lowell General hospital met yesterday and voted to make the course of training for nurses cover a period of three years.

Prior to three years ago the course of training covered a period of two years; then it was changed to two years and six months. Now the executive committee, acting upon the recommendation of the superintendent of the training school, has extended this course of training to three full years. This change makes it possible for the instruction, both didactic and clinical, to be much more complete in every way.

This change goes into effect at once, and all new applicants for the training school will be required to remain the three full years. The change does not effect, however, any of those now registered in the school.

New courses of lectures have already been arranged and it is now believed that the course offered here is equal to the best in the country.

M. H. McDONOUGH'S WAREHOUSES
The warehouses of M. H. McDonough & Sons on Gorham street have been undergoing great improvement. Painters and decorators have worked wonderful changes under the direction of the well known artist, Patrick J. McEvoy, and today the funeral parlors are the neatest and most beautiful in appearance of any in this city. The front office is done in Florence white and the floors are painted and new rugs and furniture have replaced the old. The entire work reflects great credit on the enterprise of Mr. McDonough & Sons.

POSTMASTERS MEET
BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Nearly a hundred members of the Postmasters association of New England discussed at some length today the needs of the service, especially the necessity in many instances of additional clerk hire.

Several of the postmasters claimed that requests to the department failed frequently in reaching the executive heads but were smothered by clerks. It was suggested that congressmen be asked to aid in the work.

The following officers were elected: President, P. H. King, of Portland, Me.; first vice president, A. M. Beare of Middleboro, Mass.; second vice president, E. C. Mansfield of Boston; secretary and treasurer, E. O. Winsor of Boston; executive committee, Louis L. Campbell of Northampton, George M. not of Gardner, Mass., and W. O. Fuller of Rockland, Me.

Libel Cases of Paradis and Powers vs. D. A. Long on Trial

The case of Perkins vs. Boston & Maine railroad which has been on trial for the past three days was amicably settled out of court last evening and at the opening of court, counsel so notified the court, a verdict for the defendant being ordered.

Paradis and Powers vs. Long

The next case in order was that of Robert C. Paradis and Warren M. Powers vs. Dennis A. Long, a suit for libel, the ad damnum being $10,000 in each case.

William H. Bent appeared for the plaintiffs and Messrs. Pickman and Harvey for the defense.

The jury was empaneled as follows: Henry H. Upton, Tyngsboro, farmer, foreman; Chester F. K. Bancroft, Tyngsboro, farmer; James H. Rowden, Chelmsford, farmer; Emory Cognac, Lowell, clerk; Thomas A. Ellis, Billerica, plumber; Patrick T. Flynn, Pepperell, shipper; George E. French, Carlisle, farmer; George M. Holmes, Ashby, painter; Zepherin W. A. Normandin, Lowell, clothing dealer; James P. Shattuck, Groton, broker; Alfred D. Swallow, Dunstable, farmer; David C. Whittier, Dracut, farmer.

Daniel D. Fox of Dracut was challenged by the defense.

Major Bent in opening for the plaintiff read the several papers in the case which took up considerable time, after which he explained the nature of the cases.

Mr. Bent then read certain interrogatories and answers, the latter sworn to by Dennis A. Long.

Mr. Long, in answer to interrogatories, stated that he was the owner but not the editor of the Sunday Telegram and that the circulation of the paper at the time the alleged libellous articles were published was about 14,000.

The following interrogatories were then read:

Q. "Who wrote article known as Exhibit A and attached to the plaintiff's declaration?"

A. "John A. Lamberton."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit B?"

A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit C?"

A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit D?"

A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

Q. "Who wrote the article known as Exhibit E?"

A. "Upon inquiry I have been unable to learn."

The exhibits referred to are the alleged libellous articles.

The first witness called was City Messenger Joseph E. Pattee. He testified that shortly after Messrs. Paradis and Powers came to him and instructed him not to allow either of them in the mayor's office again. Witness told them of the mayor's instructions and they didn't attempt to go in.

It was suggested that congressmen be asked to aid in the work.

The following officers were elected: President, P. H. King, of Portland, Me.; first vice president, A. M. Beare of Middleboro, Mass.; second vice president, E. C. Mansfield of Boston; secretary and treasurer, E. O. Winsor of Boston; executive committee, Louis L. Campbell of Northampton, George M. not of Gardner, Mass., and W. O. Fuller of Rockland, Me.

Mr. Paradis was shown the files of the Courier-Citizen and was asked if he remembered having written anything about the mayor and Dow fighting. He said he could not.

"Did you write for your paper anything relative to an increase in the tax rates under Mr. Brown?"

"I did not."

AFTERNOON SESSION

The Paradis-Long case was resumed this afternoon with Mr. Paradis on the witness stand.

Questioned by Mr. Bent as to the effect of the articles on him Mr. Paradis stated that he worried over them greatly and suffered great mental anguish for a long time. People met him on the street and spoke of them to him.

"You have gained weight, haven't you?"

"No."

"Well, your mental anguish hasn't detracted from your good looks," remarked Mr. Harvey.

Warren M. Powers

Warren M. Powers, the second plaintiff, was the next witness and he testified that he had been the City Hall reporter for The Sun for the past five years.

"Did you testify at the police board hearing?" asked Mr. Bent.

"Yes."

"To what did you testify?"

"To a conversation in the mayor's office in reference to a wrestling and liquor license."

"Who was there?"

"The mayor, his secretary, Mr. Paradis and myself."

"Did you receive from Mr. Pattee any order from the mayor?"

"A day or two after the hearing, Mr. Pattee told me that the mayor did not want Mr. Paradis or myself in his office. I went there three or four times and the door was locked."

"Did you go again?"

"After the door was thrown open."

"When was that?"

"Several weeks afterward."

"What was the effect of these articles?"

"They worried me considerably."

"Are you personally acquainted with Mr. Long?"

"I am."

Cross-examined by Mr. Harvey:

"Has your salary been increased or diminished since the publication of these articles?"

"I don't think there has been any change. I can't think whether that increase was before or after."

"Will you swear that your salary has not been raised since the publication of these articles?"

"No, I will not."

"You found no difficulty getting news at city hall since the articles were published?"

"No, except when I was shut out of the mayor's office."

"Did your employer know of these articles?"

"I suppose he did. I suppose that everybody knew."

"You saw a great deal of Mayor Brown?"

"Yes, as mayor."

"You favored the candidacy of Mr. Casey?"

"I thought he was more fitted for the office."

"Did Mr. Casey consult you on politics?"

"No, we've talked about his candidacy. He wasn't seeking advice."

"You were present at the interview with the mayor?"

"Yes."

"Something was said about being on the level?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did the mayor mean?"

"I felt that he wanted to be well spoken of."

"Didn't he complain about the way your paper used him?"

"He did not."

"Did Mr. MacBrayne say you were misrepresenting the mayor?"

"I think he did."

FOSS THE NOMINEE

Harmony Restored by Withdrawal of Mansfield Today

The Full State Ticket of Democratic Party is Now Complete—Names of the Other Nominees

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Harmony was restored in the democratic party of Massachusetts today after thirteen days of dissension that threatened a time, in the opinion of shrewd observers of political events, to rend the party asunder. Eugene N. Foss, member of congress from the fourteenth district, became the undisputed party nominee for governor today by the withdrawal of Frederick W. Mansfield, the Boston attorney, who was named by the Faneuil hall convention as a temporary candidate with the agreement that he would withdraw when a committee of four appointed by the convention had agreed upon a candidate.

The democratic state ticket is now completed as follows:

Governor—Eugene N. Foss of Boston.

Lieutenant-governor—Thomas F. Cassidy of North Adams.

Secretary of state—Charles J. Martell of Boston.

Treasurer—Benjamin F. Peach of Lynn.

Auditor—Charles C. Faine of Barnstable.

Attorney-general—John Ratigan of Worcester.

Mr. Cassidy, the candidate for lieutenant-governor, will have to run on nomination papers as a democratic independent.

LOWELL CONVENTION

To Nominate County Officers Held to be Illegal

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—There was another development in the Middlesex democratic committee complication today when Chairman Cunningham of the state ballot law commission announced that the Waltham convention would be sustained and the Lowell convention not recognized. The Lowell convention nominated John J. Higgins, the republican candidate, as the democratic choice for district attorney and the Waltham convention named J. J. Irwin of Everett for the same office. The aid of the courts was invoked by Mr. Irwin, who charged that Mr. Higgins' endorsement by the convention at Lowell was the result of a conspiracy and that the convention was called in an illegal manner.

KILLED BY FALL

Man Held by the Police

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Catherine Healy, or as she was known by her neighbors, Kitty Dorton, twenty years old, employed in the Manhattan hotel as a laundress, was killed yesterday afternoon by a fall from a window of her home at No. 777 Second avenue.

John Dorton, an expressman, twenty-five years old, who also lived in the apartment and was known as the woman's husband, was locked up in the East Thirty-fifth street police station on suspicion.

The couple lived on the top floor of the house, which is a five-story tenement. They came to the place about six months ago and according to the neighbors have had frequent quarrels. Monday night there was a light in the apartment and Dorton threw all of the woman's clothes out of the window into the yard after cutting them to pieces. Early yesterday morning the woman went into the yard and gathered up the remains of her clothing.

Nothing was heard from the pair until about half past twelve o'clock, when Dorton rushed into the Feely apartment and cried out:

"She has jumped; I tried to prevent her; she jumped out of the window."

Tenants of the house heard the crash as the body of the woman struck the stone pavement in the yard and called to Policeman Donohue. He summoned an ambulance, but when the surgeon arrived he said that the woman had been killed instantly. Donohue, when he heard the story of the tenants, made Dorton a prisoner.

Catherine Healy has been in this country only three years. She has told her neighbors that she was married to Dorton about two and one-half years ago.

When the prisoner was arraigned he gave his name as John Dorton. He said that he had had a quarrel with his girl, and had struck her, whereupon she had run to the window and jumped. He was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of homicide.

WELLMAN AND PARTY

Landed at New York Tell of Thrilling Rescue From Airship America

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Shortly after 9 o'clock the steamer Trent came to anchor below Sandy Hook because of the dense fog.

A wireless message was received this morning through the United Wireless system from the operator on the Trent giving further details of the rescue of the America's crew at sea. The message follows:

"Steamer Trent, 6 a.m., 55 miles southeast of Sandy Hook. The crew of the America, after resting all night, are feeling none the worse for their thrilling experience. From what I can fathom in conversation with Irwin (the wireless operator on the America) the most exciting moment of the three days was after the launching of the America's lifeboat. The Trent bore down full speed upon the small boat. Irwin declares for the moment it looked as if she would cut her in half. The Trent appeared the size of the Singer building and he was prepared to jump overboard and swim clear of the propeller. Fortunately this was unnecessary.

"The Trent passed the lifeboat, dangerously rocking her. A rope was thrown and caught by the men, who, however, could not hold on owing to rough seas. The Trent cleared of the lifeboat, which dropped half a mile astern. As the big steamer turned in her wake to return to the lifeboat it was seen that the airship's men had shipped two oars and were struggling to keep her head to the sea. We were now alongside the craft. Again lives were thrown but were dragged from the airship's men's hands. In hanging to the rope Mr. Wellman's little finger was cut. Again the manœuvre was repeated, this time with success. Loud, Simon and Irwin were straining on two oars. The small boat was placed close enough to seize and make fast to the Trent. Two ropes were thrown from the steamer Trent. The crew of the America climbed up the rope ladder and each was gladly cheered as he was helped over the rail. So ended the most thrilling and most daring feat in the annals of the sea.

(Signed) "Louis Ginsburg, Operator."

Wellman says that, after working well to sea, the dirigible Sunday, was caught in a thirty mile blow which carried the America clear of her course. Night came and the equilibrator jerked and bumped over the waves, threatening the America with constant destruction. The crew were calm but greatly exhausted and one after the other went to sleep expecting to wake up in the sea. Every effort was centered on keeping the America afloat and gasoline was tossed overboard. The equilibrator kept up its incessant pounding and threatened to sweep away the lifeboat.

Wellman told the Trent's passengers that a course was laid for the Azores but a veering wind made it impossible to reach the islands with reduced gasoline. Bermuda was the next hope of the party. On Monday more gasoline and some damaged machinery was tossed overboard. Early Tuesday morning rescue came. The Trent was sighted two hours away and signalled. The lifeboat was successfully launched. Mr. Vaniman bringing the America down to the waves while Simon directed the release of the lifeboat. The lifeboat was struck a glancing blow by the equilibrator which nearly capsized it. The weight of the lifeboat and the party removed from the airship, the America shot up high into the air and disappeared.

The loss of the unfortunate dirigible was witnessed without regret, according to Mr. Wellman, as it could never have been used again, having been weakened by the constant jerking of the equilibrator. Wellman believes that the feat of crossing the Atlantic in a gas bag may be accomplished but that larger and stronger air craft will have to be built. Wellman says the equilibrator was the mistake of the expedition. The aeronauts pointed out today that the America, the plaything of the winds, nearly described a circle in her course. The total distance covered was about 1000 miles, which is one third the distance across the Atlantic, which Wellman essayed to cover. The circling course brought the America up 350 miles off Cape Hatteras but had the thousand miles covered been made in a direct course along the trans-Atlantic steamer lane, it would have carried the airship about 200 miles eastward of the banks of New Foundland.

MESSAGES WERE SENT

BY PRACTICAL JOKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—With Walter Wellman and the crew of his airship America all accounted for and the airship adrift in the air far to the south some wireless hoaxer off in mid-ocean is apparently amusing himself by sending messages in Wellman's name. The following was received via Cape Race, N. F.: "At 12.45 o'clock the Bellis station received a communication from an unidentified source, apparently not far away and supposed to be from the Wellman airship. The message said: 'We are soaring o.k. All well on board. Have been unable to obtain exact position.'"

A NEW WORLD'S RECORD

WAS MADE BY WELLMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Walter Wellman and the members of his ill-fated trans-Atlantic air expedition in the dirigible America, who were rescued from almost certain death at sea 350 miles east of Cape Hatteras yesterday, believe that a voyage in an airship across the Atlantic may be yet accomplished. The Wellman party are aboard the steamship Trent, which rescued the aeronauts. A heavy fog held back the Trent this morning and at 9 o'clock she was about twenty miles east of Sandy Hook, proceeding slowly. The Trent will dock this afternoon.

While the object of Wellman's venturesome trip was not accomplished he succeeded in creating a new world's record for dirigibles, being in the air 76 hours and covering, according to Wellman, a thousand miles over seas. Continued to page seven

GREAT AUDIENCE

At Immaculate Conception Parish Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Immaculate Conception parish opened in the As-sociate hall, this afternoon, when a special program was arranged for the entertainment of the children of the parish. The hall was crowded with the little ones and the minister, overtaken by the O. M. I. Cadet group was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Tables have been arranged around the hall and refreshments were served during the afternoon. Tonight the adults of the parish will greet their pastor, Rev. Lawrence T. Tighe, O. M. I., and the other priests of the parish. An entertainment program in which artists from all the local theatres will take part has been arranged and promises to be one of the best ever presented in Lowell. Following the entertainment there will be dancing. The hall is prettily decorated and the booths in charge of the district societies, conducted with the church are especially attractive.

BLAZE ON ROOF

An alarm from box 24 at 11:23 o'clock this morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze on the roof of a house at the corner of Appleton and South streets. The fire was caused by a spark from a chimney, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

Cost per mile—per person	.184

To operate an automobile the cost is based on gasoline at 20¢ a gallon; oil, 50¢ a gallon; grease, 12¢ a pound; depreciation and tires, .023 a mile; average cost of gasoline figured 16¢ miles to the gallon—better results secured in recent test. Storage not included.

It Proves Beyond Dispute

That the automobile is undoubtedly an economy.
That its low cost of operation surprises even its advocates.
That the extravagance of the motor car is voluntary and unnecessary.
That its pleasures are within the reach of men of moderate means.
That it is an indispensable factor in transportation and a utility.

That it is an implement, which if properly employed, will increase the earning power of man, conserve his time, extend his field and support his hands.
That the automobile industry, practically unknown ten years ago, and now the fourth greatest industry in the United States, is fully vindicated and proven economically sound.

That the Maxwell Car is the standard of that industry; the efficient, economical, reliable, utility automobile, as near perfection as human intelligence and human handwork can make it under modern conditions.

Done by Maxwell President

Test Officially Sanctioned by the American Automobile Association

We invited the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association to conduct this test in order that it might be in absolutely disinterested control. The Board appointed judges to attest its results.

The two vehicles ran each day over a predetermined route. Each ran continuously for six hours, regarded as a normal day's work. Account was kept of every item of expense entailed. The needs of each vehicle were supplied at roadside stores at current market prices.

Each day a different route was laid out, in order to cover all conditions of city and suburban traffic and all sorts of roads. One day they covered the densely congested districts of the city; another day they ran in infrequently traveled suburban roads. Everything was done to make the test normal, actual, eminently fair and conclusive.

The Results Attested by Its Judges

The automobile cost ⁶⁸/₁₀₀ of a cent per passenger mile to operate.

The horse and buggy cost 1 ⁴/₁₀₀ of a cent per passenger mile.

The car covered 2 ¹/₂ times the distance traveled by the horse.

The car averaged 76 ³/₁₀ miles at a cost of $1.03.

The horse averaged 32 ³/₁₀ miles a day at a cost of 95 cents.

The car required 5 ¹/₂ gallons of gasoline and a pint of lubricant daily.

The horse needed 12 quarts of oats and 20 pounds of hay per day.

The other expenses—tire cost, up-keep and depreciation or similar charges, brought the total cost of the car up to 1 ⁸/₁₀ cent per passenger mile, as shown in detail in the table above.

The other incident expenses of maintaining a horse and buggy brought its total cost up to 2 ¹/₂ cents per passenger mile, as shown in the table above.

This is our answer to the charge made that the automobile is an extravagance. This proves that it is an economic factor that would save millions if the Maxwell were everywhere substituted for the horse and buggy.

We have always been unable to fill orders promptly in the spring and summer. In order to stimulate early season business all these cars sold during the next 30 days will be

GUARANTEED FOR LIFE.

NO AGREEMENT

In the Famous Russell Will Case Arrived at

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Further court proceedings in the now celebrated Russell will case have been indefinitely postponed.

All those interested in the side of the executors of the estate have emphatically declared that no settlement of the case has been made with Dakota Dan Russell or his attorneys, and also that no steps have been taken in the direction of a possible ultimate settlement of the controversy.

Dakota Dan and his attorneys, however, have suddenly put on a happy and satisfied air and smilingly refer all interviews to Nason & Proctor, attorneys for the executors of the estate. One thing is a fact and that is that the attorneys representing both sides in the case have come to an agreement, which amounts to "a general continuance" of the hearing of the appeal from the decision of the probate court stamping Dakota Dan as an impostor. While some of those interested in the case of Dakota Dan, the appellant, frankly say the case has not been settled out of court, they have all put on the same happy, mysterious air of evident satisfaction and say that all the parties interested have been in conference for several weeks, but that all are bound by an attorney's agreement not to discuss the case or any of its new situations.

Respondents Firm in Denial

Both of Dakota Dan's attorneys and the appellant himself seem to hint from their actions that there is something very interesting in the case which might be told, but, they say, that Nason & Proctor are the only persons from whom the information may come.

Messrs. Nason & Proctor, and everybody else on the respondent's side of the case, declare emphatically that there has been no settlement with Dakota Dan, and they also put considerable stress into the statement there never will be any settlement with the first claimant to the Russell estate, and also that it is their purpose to fight the case to the end through the courts when it is next assigned for trial. They also say it will be again assigned for a hearing in the spring.

The army of stanch friends of Dakota Dan Russell in Melrose seem to be firmly of the impression that some negotiations strongly favoring him in his claim of being the son and heir of the former Melrose senator and capitalist are already under way, if not already consummated.

The case was listed for a new trial yesterday, and presumably both sides were ready and anxious to go on with the hearing. Suddenly it became noised about on Monday that the case had been settled out of court.

Origin of Settlement Report

This report evidently originated from the fact it became known on Monday that Clerk Theodore C. Hurd of the supreme court at East Cambridge received notice that, by the consent of Mr. Justice Morlon, the Russell case and No. 1500, 1502 and 1505 were to be continued generally. This course was asked as the result of a agreement of the parties. Nelson L. Sheldon, attorney for the appellant, served the notice upon the clerk of the court.

fore the flames were extinguished she was badly burned about the face, hands and body.

The ambulance was summoned and a hurried trip made to the Lowell hospital at which place the doctors did everything to alleviate the child's sufferings.

NARROW ESCAPE

Child Burned While Starting a Fire

Mamie Vouteabage, a little girl residing at 27 Winter street, was nearly burned to death this morning while trying to build a fire at her home. The little one was removed to the Lowell hospital and at the time of going to press this afternoon the hospital officials stated that the child was in a critical condition.

The little one placed paper and wood in the stove and applied the match, and in some unaccountable way her clothing caught fire. She shouted at the top of her voice and attracted other occupants of the house who upon entering the room found the child lying on the floor, her clothing ablaze. Blankets and rugs were secured and wrapped around the little girl but be-

BALLOON RACE

Seven Balloons are in Ontario

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 18.—Seven of the ten balloons which left here Monday in the international race are believed to be in the air in Ontario. They were last reported from northern Michigan near Lake Huron. One of them, the Dusseldorf II, is taking a more northerly course than the others. The trip across Lake Michigan was made successfully by eight of the entrants. The balloon St. Louis No. 4 was forced to land near Millman, Mich., after traveling 655 miles because of lack of ballast to negotiate the flight across Lake Huron. With the Million club aerial down, the line of the United States winning the race rests in the America II, piloted by Allan H. Hawley.

The third balloon down is the Condor, which landed in Wisconsin near Two Rivers yesterday. The balloons which come to earth yesterday have cambric gasbags. The others are of rubber.

WARM IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Accounts of hurricanes in the south and blizzards in the west were read today by Bostonians in summer temperature and soft southerly winds. The day was a record-breaker for temperature on October 19 in Boston, the thermometer reaching 78 at noon.

HUMAN TISSUE

Out of Body Was Kept Alive

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—Along lines conceived by himself and worked out under the skillful guidance of the Johns Hopkins university men at the head of the Rockefeller institute for Medical research, Dr. Alexis Carrel has made one of the most important medical discoveries of the age. It is a method for removing from the human body portions of the stomach, blood vessels, skin, bone and practically every other tissue, and making them grow at as lively a rate as in the form to which they belonged.

No public announcement of the discovery has been made yet, and only a limited number of physicians are informed of its character, or, indeed, that a discovery of this kind has been made by the experimenters at the Rockefeller institute.

To some who had knowledge of the physician's experiments his efforts appeared chimerical. Dr. Carrel has kept portions of the body alive as long as three weeks after they were taken from the person to whom they belonged. The method of cultivating the living body or portions of it is somewhat similar to the cultivation of disease germs, and is by the aid of culture material within sealed receptacles. The value to humanity of the successful development of the methods employed by Dr. Carrel is incalculable. Through the study of living tissues the whole progress of disease may be followed, and the way pointed out for the application of proper and effective remedies.

It is believed that the discovery will lead to more intelligent treatment of cancer than is possible in the light of present knowledge.

ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY

WORCESTER, Oct. 18.—The collection of papers referring to early American life and history, owned by the American Antiquarian society could never be equaled by any other organization, even if the society should now cease collecting, declared Waldo Lincoln of Worcester at the annual meeting of the society, held here today. The treasurer's report showed that the assets of the society are $481,994. Officers were elected as follows: President, Waldo Lincoln of Worcester; vice presidents, Dr. Samuel A. CAR TOPPLED OVER

Brakeman Had Narrow Escape From Serious Accident

While a large freight car was being shifted across Shattuck street on the branch track which runs between Middle and Market streets, at about 11:20 o'clock this morning one of the friction plates broke causing the car to topple over into the street. The car was headed for the office of the Lowell Gas Light Co. and undoubtedly would have crashed into the building but for the fact that there was a large wooden post which stopped its progress and held it tilted to one side.

Patrick Brown, a brakeman, who was on the top of the car at the time it toppled over, had a narrow escape from being killed, his presence of mind being in all probability the only thing which saved him from being killed or seriously injured.

The car, No. 69,192, which is 35 feet long and the property of the New York Central line, was about half filled with grain consigned to J. B. Cover and was being slowly pushed along the branch line by an engine.

When the rear end of the car had just cleared the westerly sidewalk on Shattuck street the car started to topple to the left. It continued to go and would have fallen over but for the wooden pole in the street. The front trucks of the car were lifted off the rails while the rear trucks stayed on the rails, but the rear end of the car rose in the air.

When the front trucks left the rails there was a crash of splintering wood caused by the trucks tearing through the planking between the rails. The noise attracted many people to the scene.

For several hours the car remained tilted on one side and leaning against the pole.

Brakeman Brown had presence of mind to grab hold of the edge of the roof. When the car struck the pole Brown slid off to the ground none the worse for his experience. In speaking of the incident a railroad man stated that the inexperienced brakeman will jump when a car starts to topple over, and probably meet with injury or death, but the experienced man will stick to the car and in most instances escapes injury.

It was only a short time ago that a similar accident occurred at this crossing excepting that on the other occasion the car toppled in the opposite direction and crashed through Manager Shannon's private office in Hathaway's theatre.

During the afternoon the car was removed by a wrecking crew.

SUPREME COURT

Hears Argument on Greatest Contest Over Hepburn Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The validity of the so-called Carmack amendment to the Hepburn rate law of 1906 was today before the supreme court of the United States for argument. This amendment makes the initial carrier of interstate commerce liable for damages occurring in transportation not only on its own lines but on connecting lines. The contest is probably the greatest of all of the legal controversies which have arisen out of the passage of the Hepburn rate law.

Attacking the constitutionality of the law at this time are the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. and the Louisville & Nashville Co. In addition to those claiming damages for shipments over these roads, General Vickersham has come forth to defend the constitutionality of the law. Briefs have been filed in the cases and the matter was set down for oral argument today.

From two primary points of view do the railroads attack the law. They claim that the requirement that the initial carrier shall issue a receipt or bill of lading for the property to be transported and be liable for any loss throughout the transportation compels one railroad company to be responsible for another company's errors. The other point is that the provision declaring that no contract shall exempt the initial carrier from this liability for loss on the connecting carrier destroys or interferes with liberty of contract.

"It is true it is an inconvenience for the shipper," says the brief of the Atlantic Coast Line in the case brought against it by the Riverside mills, "to have to locate the actual wrongdoer, but it also is an inconvenience for the initial carrier to do so. And why should these inherent difficulties be visited upon the initial carrier?"

The answer of the government to this particular argument is that of "public policy."

City Solicitor Duncan examined the document and finding it to be made out in proper form turned it over to the mayor, the latter accepting it on behalf of the city. The deed will be turned over to the park department to be recorded.

dependent candidate. The convention empowered the committee of four to nominate a candidate for lieutenant-governor, but this action was illegal, according to a decision of the Massachusetts ballot law commission. Mr. Cassidy will be the only candidate for the word "democratic" inasmuch as Thomas P. Riley of Maiden, who had taken out nomination papers as democratic citizen candidate for the lieutenant-governorship has withdrawn in Mr. Cassidy's favor.

When the democratic state convention assembled in Faneuil hall on Oct. 6 there were three candidates for the gubernatorial nomination: Congressman Foss, Charles S. Hamlin, and former State Senator James H. Vahey. The balloting for the nominee was by the Australian system and two ballots were taken without result. Mr. Hamlin withdrew after the first ballot. A motion to proceed to the balloting and a motion to adjourn the convention subject to the call of the chair precipitated a small riot. After a squad of police had succeeded in restoring order the leading partisans of Messrs. Foss and Vahey held a conference. The agreement to nominate Mr. Mansfield followed and was ratified by the convention and the balance of the ticket, with the exception of lieutenant-governor, was named.

The committee of four, however, was unable to agree and at length the democratic state committee conducted a mail poll of the delegates to the convention. This ballot gave Mr. Foss a majority. Yesterday Mr. Hamlin withdrew as a candidate and the atmosphere was cleared today by the withdrawal of Mr. Mansfield. The campaign will be begun immediately.

When I was nominated for governor by the democratic convention at Faneuil hall it was under the express condition and solemn pledge that I should withdraw if the committee of four appointed for the same time should agree upon another candidate. The committee has so agreed that I only remained for me to withdraw accordingly. I have kept my pledge and I have withdrawn. All arguments that can fairly be used against a candidate before nomination are legitimate and proper. But as the convention has spoken through its committee and has now made a nomination any personal views of mine are overshadowed and over-ruled and the will of the democratic party must prevail.

COMMITTEE OF FOUR

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—The democratic nominating committee of four yesterday afternoon chose Foss and Cassidy for the leaders of the state ticket. The vote in each case was unanimous.

NOMINEE FOSS

Final decision, however, was not reached until Charles S. Hamlin had withdrawn from the contest for governor and Thomas P. Riley of Maiden, whose nomination papers for lieutenant-governor as a "democratic progressive" were filed Monday, had given written notice of his withdrawal.

Then with Foss and Cassidy the only candidates before the committee, the ticket was chosen.

As the state ballot law commission has ruled that the nominating committee of four has no authority to nominate a candidate for lieutenant governor,

When the committee met yesterday afternoon Major Robert J. Crowley, who had in his pocket Charles S. Hamlin's withdrawal, insisted that before the governorship was taken up Riley's withdrawal must be in the hands of Sec. Hayes of the nominating committee.

"This committee," said he, "has agreed or had agreed on Thomas F. Cassidy of Adams for second place on the ticket. Mr. Cassidy came to Boston Monday with the understanding that he had been unanimously selected as the candidate for lieutenant governor. Until Riley's withdrawal is in the hands of the secretary of this committee I refuse to do any further business."

A recess was then taken until 3 p. m. to enable the Foss men on the committee to bring about Riley's withdrawal. When they reassembled at that hour Chairman Macleod had the necessary document in his possession. It was said that Riley had given it with the understanding that Foss would receive the gubernatorial nomination from the committee. Major Crowley said that he would talk of the governorship until Mr. Riley's withdrawal was deposited with Sec. Hayes of the committee.

Macleod said that he would not take the responsibility of handing in Riley's withdrawal at that time. He gave it to his associate on the committee, Joseph A. Maynard, who said that he would assume all responsibility in the matter. The latter handed it to Secretary Hayes.

Then Major Crowley produced Chas. S. Hamlin's withdrawal, which read as follows: "The present situation removes my name from further consideration under any circumstances. This is final and irrevocable."

"Charles S. Hamlin."

"Charles S. Hamlin."

Maynard then nominated Foss for governor and each of the four committeemen voted for him and he was declared the nominee.

On motion of Crowley, Thomas F. Cassidy was then indorsed as the candidate for lieutenant governor and he received all the votes. It was explained that to all intents and purposes Cassidy is the regular democratic nominee, although his name will appear on the official ballot election day as "democratic citizen" on nomination papers.

The committee then proceeded to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal of O. Z. E. Charest of Holyoke to stand as the convention nominee for secretary of the commonwealth, by nominating Charles J. Martell of 27 Pierce street, Ward 34, Boston.

Ball Commissioner Morris Francis Murphy took the acknowledgment of the four committeemen to the Martell papers.

Riley Predicts Victory
Thomas P. Riley issued a statement last evening in which he explained his reasons for withdrawing from the contest, saying:

"As upon my withdrawal from the contest for the lieutenant governorship seemed to depend the harmonizing of all interests, including the withdrawal of Mr. Mansfield from the nomination which had been given to him only as a matter of trust, as well as the active and energetic support of Mr. Foss' candidacy by both Mr. Hamlin and Mr. Vahey, I cheerfully yielded my personal ambition and desire, believing that the success of the party in any should be considered far and above the success of any individual."

"I earnestly trust that the loyal democracy of Massachusetts, regardless of personal or factional alignment, will now march in solid phalanx behind our candidate, and with such assistance as we are bound to receive from the independent republicans of Massachusetts who are anxious to throw off the yoke of control which has settled upon them most unsatisfactory conditions, we shall be able to sweep the state with Foss and victory."

In the case of Walsh against the city the court found for the plaintiff on all items in the declarations, 18 deeds or titles being involved.

In the case of Dennis E. Connors, there were 21 titles and the court found for the plaintiff on 14 and for the defendant on seven.

There were eight titles involved in the case of Edward F. Connors and the court found for the plaintiff in four and for the defendant in four.

A WEALTHY MAN

IS CHARGED WITH STEALING A GOOSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Samuel Bernstein, wealthy New Yorker, has been summoned to appear in the district criminal court, that city, next Saturday morning and answer a charge of attempting to steal a goose.

Mr. Bernstein says it was a duck, but insists that he did not try to steal it.

The fowl in question belongs to Esau's county and was of a flock in West-quar park. According to park employees Bernstein seized it, wrapped it in a blanket, jumped into a carriage and was driving away with it when arrested by a park policeman.

Mr. Bernstein had to deposit $20 to guarantee his appearance in court.

He declares his predicament is the result of his trying to do a humane act. While driving through the park, he turned to avoid colliding with an automobile, and his carriage ran over a duck, breaking its leg. He says he was going to take the duck to see if he could have the injury mended when men armed with pitchforks ran toward him. Fearing violence, he claims he sprang into the carriage and drove to the exit where he told the park policeman he would pay for the damage to the duck, but that instead he was arrested.

IN POLICE COURT

Davidson Street Assault Case Heard

The sequel to a beefsteak in Davidson street last Sunday was aired in police court this morning when Agata Ambrosavitch was arraigned on a complaint charging her with assault and battery on George Striba. She admitted that she was guilty and it looked as though the trial was to be a short one. When the complaint was read she hit him with a plate she admitted that saying she struck him with a shot and only did so after he had assaulted her.

According to the testimony offered the defendant conducts a boarding house in Davidson street and the complaint formerly lodged with her and recently when he left her house a bitter feeling grew up between the two.

Last Sunday one of the boarders had some beer in the house and invited a number of friends to partake. The complainant was one of the invited guests and the party was in full blast when the defendant entered the house. When she saw Striba she ordered him out and in order to assist him in making a rapid exit she took off one of her shoes and struck him over the head with it, inflicting three gashes on his forehead.

He claims that after she struck him with the shoe he ran out of the house and she followed him and struck him with a plate, but she denied using a plate.

The court after considering the evidence in the case found the defendant guilty and ordered her to pay a fine of $12.

DRUNKEN OFFENDERS

Jeremiah Murphy, who, while under the influence of liquor yesterday afternoon grew oratorical and addressed several gatherings in Central and Market streets, appeared in court this morning and pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being drunk. Inasmuch as he is on parole from the state farm he will be returned to that institution.

Frank E. McLaughlin was sentenced to four months in jail. James J. Mead was fined $8, five first offenders were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

In the case of Negep Hanack, charged with assault and battery, the defendant was found guilty and a fine of $10 imposed.

Kathern Moses was also found guilty of assault and battery and she was fined $12.

COOMBS, CLEVER PHILADELPHIA TWIRLER

HUGH LANGDON Is Anxious to Locate His Sister

Hugh Langdon of Washington, D. C., is anxious to learn the whereabouts of his sister Bessie, whom he has not seen since he was a child. According to a letter received by Superintendent Welch of the police department Langdon's parents died in this city about 22 years ago, leaving three children, two boys and a girl. The girl was adopted by a James T. Smith, who the writer claims lived either in Lowell or one of the surrounding towns.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Washington, D. C.
Chief of Police of Lowell, Mass.
My Dear Friend: I am going to ask you to do me a favor. I have a sister in Lowell or just outside of Lowell. The last time we heard from her we were very small. That was when our parents died. There were two boys and a sister who were left to battle up the best we could. That was 22 years ago. A James T. Smith, just out of Lowell, took my sister in. He had a large farm but we have never been able to hear from them. You will do a never forgetting favor if you can locate them or give me some information of where they can be located. Her name is Bessie and if you will give this letter some consideration you will make a happy reunion. We have grown up to be men and are now in fairly good circumstances.

Thanking you for any information which you can give me,
Hugh Langdon,

ATHLETICS WON

They Capture Second Game in World's Series

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The players on the two leading American and National league baseball teams of the country were ready and fit yesterday for the second struggle at Shibe park for the world's championship. Although the day broke a little hazy the sun quickly dispelled the fog. The Chicago National league champions were apparently not downcast by Monday's defeat. Captain Chance had no excuse to offer for Monday's result. He gave the great Bender all the credit due him for his masterful pitching and praised the high class playing ability of the Philadelphia team.

"It was a one-man game Monday," said one of the players, "but it won't be today. Now that we have got into action I feel that we will show our true form."

At Shibe park there was the same confidence in the players' conversation. Philadelphia went into the game Monday with the determination to "get the jump" on their rivals and hold the advantage to the end.

There is a baseball tradition that the team which wins the first game takes the series. Having won the first, the Athletics believe that history will repeat itself.

It is expected that the batteries today will be Brown and Kling for Chicago, and Coombs and Thomas for Philadelphia.

The "becherites" began to assemble at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at the field gates and four hours later a double line extended half way around the grounds.

It was arranged to present before the game started yesterday, the autos won by "Ty" Cobb and Napoleon Lajoie.

The presentation of the automobiles to the two top notch batters of the American league afforded the crowd the only real chance to cheer before the only real chance to play ball. Both machines were run to the home plate and "Ty" Cobb was called from the stand and formally presented one of the automobiles. The one for Lajoie was accepted for him by a friend in his absence.

Ben Johnson, president of the Amer. league, yesterday issued a statement in which he declared that Cobb and Murphy had notified him that they had no further connection with Fletcher, the promoter of the so-called all-star team and that they will return their respective checks. Mr. Johnson further stated that Matthewson, Lajoie, Mitchell, Walsh, Devlin and other notable ballplayers who were interested by Fletcher had reached the decision not to join the all-star movement.

A taxicab in which two of the Chicago players were riding to the ball grounds and a United States mail wagon collided Monday afternoon. No one was hurt.

The Lineup:

The batting order for today was expected to be as follows:
Chicago—Sheppard, lf; Schulte, rf; Hoffman, cf; Chance, 1b; Zimmerman, 2b; Steinfeldt, 3b; Tinker, ss; Kling, c; Brown, p.

Philadelphia—Strunk, cf; Lord, lf; Collins, 2b; Baker, 3b; Davis, 1b; Murphy, rf; Barry, ss; Thomas, c; Coombs on Plunk p.

Philadelphia—Strunk, the head of the Athletics batting list, struck out. Kling missed the third strike but got the runner at first. Lord was tossed out. Steinfeldt to Chance. Philadelphia—Thomas reached first on Steinfeldt's error. Coombs struck out. Strunk made an infield hit and was safe. On Lord's hit to Zimmerman, Strunk was forced at second. Thomas and Lord both scored on Collins' beautiful double to left field. Baker was out at first on Zimmerman's assist.

Lord, who was on first, kept on home as Steinfeldt fumbled Sheppard's pretty throw to third. Steinfeldt was given an error and Sheppard an assist.

Fourth Inning
Chicago—Steinfeldt lifted a fly to Strunk. Tinker singled to center. Tinker was an easy out. Thomas to Collins, on an attempted steal. Kling struck out. No runs.

Philadelphia—Strunk struck out on three pitched balls. Lord singled to right field and Collins was given a glad hand when he came to the plate. Lord was forced at second, Tinker to Zimmerman, or Collins' grounder. Collins stole second. His 23rd steal of the game. Baker walked. Collins scored on Davis' single to left, the latter going to second on the throw-in. Murphy was thrown out at first by Tinker. One run.

Sheppard muffed Lord's fly and Strunk scored. Lord was out stealing. Kling to Tinker. Six runs.

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, Proprietor

SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.

Member of the Associated Press

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilote, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

Judge Parker says it is reported that Col. Roosevelt will soon come out with a statement to the effect that he will not be a candidate for the presidency in 1912. The report, it is needless to say, is not credited among Roosevelt's most intimate friends.

PLANNING THE GREATER BOSTON

The Boston Elevated Railway company will soon have a new subway or tunnel line connecting with Harvard square. The tunnel is now nearly finished. It is under Main street, Cambridge, for the greater part of the way. The excavation goes on underneath without any interference with the cars on the surface. At one point in every half mile or thereabouts there is a side opening from which the material of the excavation is taken. These openings, together with occasional airholes along the line of the tunnel, are the only surface indications that there is anything going on beneath. When the tunnel shall have been opened to travel the distance between Harvard square and Park street, some four miles, can be covered in eight minutes.

The Elevated company is also building an elevated road out into Cambridge. These lines will unite Cambridge and other suburban cities so closely with Boston that annexation will become inevitable.

Cambridge, Somerville and several other outlying cities will eventually become part and parcel of the Greater Boston which will then be one of the greatest and grandest cities in the land.

THE BABY FARMING INDUSTRY

The New England states, particularly Massachusetts and New Hampshire, should be grateful to Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly on account of the able manner in which she investigated the evils of baby farming as carried on in some of the New England states. The evidence which she has collected proves very conclusively that the laws in regard to this matter are particularly vague and inadequate in the state of New Hampshire.

In that state she has found a number of cases in which children were allowed to pine away with disease without any proper effort to save their lives. She has secured evidence also which may go far to prove that some of the little waifs were actually neglected with a view to securing insurance on their lives.

That particular crime has been stamped out of some of the European countries, and has been carefully guarded against in this, although occasionally it may be practiced for a time without being detected.

We have no doubt that the revelations which Miss O'Reilly has brought to public attention will result in legislation not only in New Hampshire but in other states to prevent any abuse of this kind in the future.

Wherever Miss O'Reilly went in the course of her investigation she met with the most cordial cooperation of the authorities, some of whom were astonished to find the abuses and even cruelties that flourished under various disguises without being suspected of wrong-doing.

In all probability her crusade will result in the enactment of more stringent laws in several states for the regulation of baby farms, children's homes and children's boarding houses.

RADICAL REFORMS IN ENGLAND

There is a great deal expected of the conference committee now in session for the purpose of bringing about an agreement between the house of lords and the house of commons in England. The question of reforming the house of lords is the main issue before the democracy of England. There is a strong public sentiment against the idea of allowing a hereditary body to nullify the measures passed by the representatives of the people. In fact the time has come when the British democracy will not tolerate it any longer.

The king is exercising his influence in favor of a compromise and various schemes have been proposed for that purpose. The liberal leaders insist upon some reform that will be effective in curtailing the powers of the lords so that they can no longer obstruct popular legislation.

In all probability the scheme that will be adopted is one under which a measure passed three successive times in as many different sessions of the house of commons will become law without the concurrence of the upper house.

That will probably be the most effective way although a somewhat tedious one to overcome the obstruction of the upper house.

It is quite probable, also, that the hereditary feature of the upper house will be eliminated so that no peer will sit and vote in the house of lords in virtue of the fact that as the oldest son of his father he inherits a peerage.

But it is reported on what seems to be good authority that a still more radical reform is to result from this conference. It is proposed that not only Ireland, but England, Scotland and Wales will each have parliaments of their own.

This change would greatly simplify and improve the government of the various parts of the empire, and give the people the privilege and power of legislating for themselves in all local affairs.

It would place the monarchy in the same relation to the different parts of the empire as the federal government stands in this republic. In all probability the monarchical power would not be nearly so broad as the federal power in the United States. The king of England would not exercise the executive authority that is now exercised by the president of the United States. As a matter of fact he does not exercise as much authority at the present time.

With this change it would seem that the people of England would have a government possessing practically all the advantages of a republic, and free from many of its worst features such as the frequent elections and the difficulty of giving effect to the will of the people.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE BABY'S FACE

Who can fathom the fairy grace That dwells in a velvety baby face? Who can fathom the fairy gleam That rings in a baby's melody? And who can unravel the secret wile That sleeps in the nest of a baby's smile? The hungry and lingering joy we know When our rough face touches a babe's, And, lo, We feel the touch of the velvet skin And the warm, sweet lovelight bound thereto!

A baby's face—how can one tell Its mystic charm and its holy spell? Rough hearts go by, rude, rugged men, From the dust and grime of mart and din, But under the cloak of their outer skin Love's hunger sleeps their souls within. And when they see a baby's face— Round and rosy and sweet with grace— They long, as you and I, to press The velvet joy of its warm caress.

How much it holds, how deeply lays, Within its soft and gentle maze, The charm to soothe, the charm to heal, The hurt that lives so often deep! A baby's face along the way From the wide world of day and night, All, like a little flower, it brings The sweetness of a thousand springs; The balsam of the heart-made well Is in the touchiness of its smile. —Author Unknown.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

In memory of Samuel J. Kitson, the sculptor, his widow, Mrs. Kitson, has placed two marble statues, executed in his models, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Broadway, New York city.

J. Pierpont Morgan has presented to the Boston Public Library a copy of the catalogue of "Cut Jewels and Precious Works of Art, the Property of the famous 'Morgan' catalogues," all of which are issued in limited editions and for private distribution only. Catalogues have already been issued of Mr. Morgan's Aldine books, miniatures and paintings in his London house, all being issued in handsome special bindings, and printed at the Chiswick Press in England. They cost several hundred dollars each, and many are with hand-painted plates. The catalogue of jewels and precious works of art is in royal folio size, with ninety-four plates and thirteen text illustrations. The text was compiled, at Mr. Morgan's request, by C. G. Williamson, Litt. D., of London. It describes some of the most valuable pieces of the cut-jewel collection, which includes ecclesiastical and royal gems from the fourteenth to the nineteenth century. The frontispiece of the volume is a silver gilt page, a tablet representing Christian symbols, heavily encrusted with jewels.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward is writing a series of articles in the London Times against woman suffrage, and her chief argument is that the movement has failed in America and that American women are against it.

Booth Tarlington, according to the press reports, is to "give up" writing plays, and will devote himself to fiction. He has been giving up writing plays for the last two or three seasons, according to the press reports, and each time he has given up his output of plays has increased. Ditto income from royalties, comments the New York Tribune.

Many interesting landmarks in Rome are slowly coming to light in order to make the view of the imposing monument to Victor Emmanuel less obstructed. It has become necessary, in order that Romans may see the memorial to the "Re Galantuomo" down the mile-long Corso to the Piazza del Popolo, to pull down some of the finest palaces.

Among the latest of these edifices that have been demolished are the Torlonia palace and the Nepoli, which were situated in the space between the capitol add the Corso—which are now dominated by the imposing monument, which, when completed, will have cost about $10,000,000. One of the narrowest streets of Rome, the old carnival days curtains were stretched across from house to house here for the Riprese del Barberi—to stop the wild career of the Barbary steeds that raced madly down the Corso and caused so many accidents that the custom was abolished in 1888.

A NEW ECZEMA REMEDY

The new compound, Cadum, has astonished those who used it. Many cures of eczema and other distressing skin diseases are reported, and the remarkable thing in most cases is the quickness of the cure. Eczema is not a blood disease, but a skin affection. It cannot be cured by internal medicines. External treatment is absolutely necessary. Since the introduction of Cadum, eczema is now recognized as a curable disease, and that tormenting affliction has been robbed of its terrors. Cadum stops the itching at once and begins the healing process soon after it is applied. It is also good for pimples, blotches, hives, tetters, psoriasis, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, scabs, itching, piles, etc. 10c and 25c a box.

The beautiful Palazzo di Venezia, built by Pope II, from which he often watched the carnival games, is also being taken down for the sake of the Victor Emmanuel monument. It is to be re-erected, however, in the neighboring Piazza di San Marco. On the suggestion of Signor Ricci, minister of the arts, the interior colonnade will probably be left standing. It will make a picturesque link between the medieval beauty of the great Palazzo di Venezia, which the Hapsburg government inherited from the Republic of Venice in 1797, and which is now the seat of the Austrian embassy to the Vatican, and the classic splendor of Saeconi's noble memorial. The monument was begun twenty-five years ago, and will be dedicated next year.

WILL EXHIBIT LITTLE'S PAINTINGS AT WHISTLER HOUSE

The Lowell Art association met yesterday at the Whistler house and voted to accept the offer of Mr. Frank W. Bayley of the Conley galleries, Boston, of an exhibition of paintings by Mr. Philip Little, which will serve as the opening attraction of the year.

It planned to have the formal opening on the night of November 1. Members will be admitted, as usual, on presentation of their membership tickets for the ensuing year. The treasurer has reported that out of rising 500 members, probably 250 have not

A BAD PRACTICE

Children Applying for Aid at Charity Dept.

The board of charities held a meeting at city hall last evening with Dr. McCarty in the chair and all the members present.

A communication was received from the state board of charities, which called attention to the fact that according to a new state law all lying-in hospitals are obliged to secure a license and it was voted to refer the matter to Supt. Conley, to be carried into effect.

Supt. Conley reported the receipt of a communication from the local board of health relative to the use of a public drinking fountain at the Chelmsford Street hospital.

On motion of the board it was voted to refer the matter to the superintendent.

The principal feature of the meeting was the discussion of the practice of children calling at the office of the department for lines or orders for supplies, which is strenuously objected to by the state board. Clerk William H. Gallagher reported that he received a communication from the state board last year which urged a discontinuance of this practice, and he expected another one soon. All of the members agreed that it was bad for children, and believed that something should be done in the matter. The less they know of the department the better it would be for them, one member stated. If the women or men who are receiving assistance from the city cannot call in person they should be sent out altogether. It was voted to have the superintendent or clerk use his best judgment in correcting the existing condition.

Considerable routine business was considered and a number of cases which the department has been called upon to assist were talked over and acted upon.

The board voted to send Secretary Gallagher to Boston Wednesday to attend a hearing given by the state board of charities on the question of pauper settlement.

THE POOR INDIAN

Rev. Mr. Kennigott Describes Him

Rev. George F. Kennigott gave the first in a series of six illustrated lectures at the First Trinitarian church, last evening, his subject being "My Friend, the Indian," and he traced the red man from the New England to the great northwest, illustrating his talk by a fine collection of pictures.

Mr. Kennigott stated that he found the saddest conditions existing in New York state, due to the Indian's anomalous position. The six tribes are governed by an Indian council, which is pagan in principle, and which believes in keeping the reservation intact. They are not under the laws of the state, except in criminal matters, and they cannot become citizens without sacrificing their birthright and withdrawing from the reservation. While some of the boys go to Indian schools, when they return home there is nothing for them to do, and they relapse into their former condition.

Mr. Kennigott showed the Winnebago and the Omahas, as they used to live and as they live now, demonstrating the work done by the schools. He finds that the great need, in the west, is for a chain of hospitals, where sick Indians can be properly cared for.

The once warlike Sioux was shown in his uncivilized condition, and as he appears after being educated and Christianized. Strange to say, the Indians who were the fiercest fighters of the white men, appear to assimilate more readily than the less warlike tribes the white man's education. At least this is the impression given by the pictures.

Mr. Kennigott also showed a series of beautifully colored pictures of natural scenery, especially that of the mountain region of Montana.

The other lectures will be as follows: Oct. 25, "The Great Divide"; Nov. 1, "Where Rode the Oregon"; Nov. 8, "The Golden Mist"; Nov. 15, "The Land of Sunshine"; Nov. 22, "The Painted Desert."

Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. Read what these women say:

Camden, N. J.—"It is with pleasure that I send my testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, hoping it may induce other suffering women to avail themselves of the benefit of this valuable remedy."

"I suffered from pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman—and this valuable medicine shall always have my praise."—Mrs. W. F. Valentine, 902 Lincoln Ave., Camden, N. J.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am writing to tell you that I am pleased with your medicines. I had been sick for a long time with prolapsus. I heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I have found that it is the right kind of medicine for me. I felt relieved after taking one bottle and I kept on taking it till now I am well and strong, and am able to do my work."—Mrs. Henry Kossow, 472 Genesee St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

BIG DISTURBANCE

The Caribbean Sea Shaken by an Earthquake

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Oct. 19.—The Santa Clara observatory last night issued the following notice:

"The trouble in the Caribbean sea is more than a mere atmospheric disturbance. The seismographs here have been running wild on Oct. 15, 17, 18, reporting a gigantic effort a long distance to the east. Today's record has been continuous from the east and the south of about the same dimension. The seismic reports from this place have so far been confirmed from Washington, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Manitoba."

RADIUM SUPPLY

Britain Has Plenty of It

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Official announcement will be made today that the first 500 milligrammes of radium have been produced in England from Cornish pitch blende. A continuous supply of British radium is thus assured for the future. When it is remembered that the total quantity of radium in existence at the present moment is only a few grammes, the importance of this statement to the medical and scientific world will immediately be understood. For the last eighteen months work has been proceeding quietly at the Fresswith section of the St. Ives consolidated mines in Cornwall, where pitch blende is being produced regularly in considerable quantities. From the pitch blende ore fair quantities of uranium oxide and other uranium products are daily being manufactured and the extraction and purification of radium bromides is now being worked out by continuous process.

Sir William Ramsay, one of the foremost scientists of the age, conducted the experiments, and the result of his researches is the discovery of a process by which radium can be extracted from uranium in a period of under three months, as against the two years occupied under the system at present in use in Austria where the bulk of what radium exists in the world hitherto has been obtained.

Sir William, after exhaustive researches, has also been able to produce from the Cornish pitch blende the rare element of polonium, a fact which in itself is startling and bound to create a stir in the medical councils of the world.

For the present, however, it is hopeless to expect any reduction of the present prohibitive price of radium, which is something like $100,000 per gramme.

SECRETARY KNOX

TO GET AN INCREASE IN HIS SALARY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—After March 1 next, Secretary of State Philander C. Knox probably will get $12,000 a year salary, equal to that of his fellow-members of the cabinet. The state department budget will make such recommendation. Being a member of the senate when $4400 a year was added to the salaries, Mr. Knox was barred from accepting the office of secretary of state by the constitutional provision that no member of congress may accept an office the emoluments of which are increased during the term for which he was elected. In order that he might be eligible for the higher post, congress repealed that part of the salary increase applying to the office of secretary of state.

Secretary Knox's term as senator would have ended March 4 next, and it will then be in the power of congress to increase his salary from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

PARISH BAZAAR

TO BE OPENED IN SACRED HEART SCHOOL HALL

The bazaar of the Sacred Heart parish which is to open with a grand sacred concert next Sunday evening will be one of the red letter events in the history of that parish. It is particularly notable on account of the opening of the new parochial school hall, which is one of the prettiest in the city of Lowell. It will accommodate nearly 1000 people, and is well adapted for the various forms of entertaining arranged for the various evenings during the bazaar. These entertainments will be of a musical, literary and dramatic character to be followed each evening by dancing which appeals to the young people.

A very large number of people are interested in making the bazaar a success. The sum of $570 will be given in prizes on the various tables. The prizes include a great variety of all paintings, crayons, works of art, lace, embroidery, and all the other articles usually found in such a bazaar.

The opening concert will have excellent musical features that will repay those who attend. The bazaar proper will be formally opened for business on Monday evening, and will continue until October 30th. The people of the parish are particularly proud of the new parochial school building, and in this they are justified. Not only members of the parish but a great many friends from outside will take advantage of the bazaar to inspect the entire building.

FOR CONGRESS

Three Candidates After Capron's Place

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—Little interest attaches to today's state convention in Infantry hall. It was practically certain before the delegates took their seats that the present status officers would all be renominated without opposition and that the party platform would be adopted as presented. The convention opened this morning with the machinery well arranged and ready to set in motion. The day's political interest centered in the second district republican congressional convention. Three candidates were announced for the nomination to succeed Congressman Capron who declined renomination after 14 years of service because of ill health. These candidates were: Former Governor George Utter of Westerly; General Walter Stines of Warwick and State Senator Edward Arnold of Coventry. Utter and Stines were regarded as the principals in the contest, it being freely expressed before the convention that the expected failure of a nomination on the first ballot would be followed by reversal of Arnold votes to former Governor Utter.

THRILLING STORY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Man's first attempt to cross any ocean in an airship has failed, but Walter Wellman, five companions and a kitten, who essayed the voyage, are safe. The airship—the giant America—is a battered aerial derelict, abandoned at sea, perhaps still in the air, perhaps sunk beneath the waves with her costly equipment. When deserted she had been in the air probably 72 hours, a new record for dirigibles, and, driven by the wind, had travelled doubtless for 300 miles—also will be broken, remains to be computed.

Picked up by the steamship Trent yesterday morning off the North Carolina coast, Wellman and his fellow navigators are due in New York today. They left their craft only because the sea was too rough and the air too dark to attempt a landing. The airship was left to the fate of the winds.

For an incident without parallel in history—the transfer of passengers from an airship to a steamship—men were the details obtainable by wireless during the day. Wireless at all times more or less uncertain, was rendered more so by the tropical storm which swept northward, but last night wireless stations in the vicinity of New York picked up from the Trent a word here and a word there, amplifying on the earlier despatches.

It was learned that Wellman had found it necessary to rid the airship of the burden of most of its gasoline, retaining only enough to reach land in the event the Trent had not come to his rescue. When the steamship headed the calls of distress and drew near its aerial sister, Wellman shouted his predicament through a megaphone and decided that he would lower his lifeboat which swung from the Trent lowered her lifeboats which stood by until the transfer was effected and Wellman and his companions, even down to the frightened, squalling kitten, were safe on board the liner, surrounded by the excited passengers.

The rescue was accomplished at a time when two continents awaited breathlessly the fate of the dirigible and her crew, a feeling that had become so acute here that President Taft had authorized the navy department and the revenue cutter service to send out vessels in search of the missing airship, which prior to the rescue was lost in communication by wireless with the Marconi station at Siasconset, Nantucket. At Atlantic City, Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Melvin Vaniman, wife of Wellman's chief engineer, were torn with anxiety, while every wireless station on the Atlantic coast was exerting efforts to pick up some news of the navigators.

Having been spoken by wireless, presumably in the vicinity of Nantucket at 12:45 p.m. on Sunday, it was a surprise when the news came that the America had encountered the Trent, homeward bound from Bermuda, in a latitude and longitude nearly 400 miles southward and only 200 miles northwest of Bermuda. Thrilling must have been the experience of the American's commander and crew as they were thus swept out of their course.

Captain Down of the Trent flashed first news of the rescue in a message to the New York Times, which, with the Chicago Record-Herald and the London Daily Telegraph, contributed $35,000 for the purpose of the expedition.

Captain Down also advised Sander-son & Son, New York agents for the Royal Mail steamship packet line. Subsequently more details came in a despatch to the Associated Press.

The Motor Broken
Further wireless messages reaching New York last night say that one of the America's motors had broken, which made more serious the predicament created when all the gasoline that could be spared was cast into the sea. It is also probable that the craft had suffered severely from the jerking of its rail-like trail, or equilibrator, which served the triple purpose of elongated gasoline tank, balance and wireless "ground." Wellman had flashed by wireless to Siasconset that his immense appendage, battered by the waves, had caused trouble and anxiety, necessitating shutting off the motors at times. Buffeted as the craft was by the winds, it is likely that the equilibrator caused greater trouble in the America's unwilling southward journey.

The America, is, or was, 228 feet long and 52 feet in diameter, with a lifting capacity of 23,550 pounds. The envelope alone weighed two tons. There were three gasoline engines aboard, two of them from 80 to 90 horsepower for the propellers and a smaller one for the operation of a donkey engine. Taken as a whole the craft was practically the same in which Wellman made his two starts for the North pole in 1907 and 1909 respectively. Neither of these attempts was successful, both were made from Spitzbergen. The first trip was abandoned when the America was driven toward a jagged cliff; the second was given up because of the breaking of a long trial rope, stored with provisions, not unlike the equilibrator of the trip just ended.

Mr. Wellman is 53 years old, and was born in Mentor, O. As a journalist and explorer he became interested in ballooning and has had great faith in the possibilities of exploration and voyaging by dirigibles.

Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Vaniman, overjoyed that their husbands are safe, but disappointed that the goal was not reached, hurried from Atlantic City to New York last night, ready to meet the returning voyagers with the arrival of the Trent tomorrow.

CAPTAIN OF THE TRENT

TELLS OF THE RESCUE

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP TRENT
AT SEA, 12 midnight, October 18.—(By United Wireless).—To The Associated Press, New York. We sighted the airship America at 5 a. m. today. She signalled us by the Morse code, and the wireless played a wonderful part in requesting me to stand by her till daylight. We kept a boat close by her till dawn broke when she signalled that she could not launch her life boat, and asked me to keep close in order that a line might be attached.

We made several futile attempts to attach a line, when the American wireless said that she would come down to the water as soon as possible and drop her boat if I could stand by and pick the boat up.

Meanwhile the lifeboats kept as close to the airship as possible and finally she got all her men in her boat and cut adrift at a height of about five feet from the water.

This proved successful. The American immediately rose in the air and shortly afterward, at 8 o'clock, I had the pleasure of welcoming on board Mr. Wellman and his five lieutenants and a cat which seemed little the worse for its air experience. I then picked up the boat and proceeded.

Wellman and his crew are honored guests on board. After a wash and a brush up they ate a hearty breakfast. The America was abandoned in latitude 38.15 north, longitude 88.13 west, four

TO MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Another attempt will be made to cross the Atlantic ocean in a dirigible balloon in the next year, according to a wireless message received by President Joseph Salus of the Wellman syndicate late last night. The message which was short came from Chief Engineer Melvin Vaniman of the America venture in answer to a query sent by Salus as to whether arrangements should be started for a new balloon trans-Atlantic trip.

"I believe that if we had the thing to do over again, it would prove a success," said Vaniman's message, which is taken to mean that enough knowledge of air currents was gained almost to guarantee crossing the ocean in another attempt.

President Salus last night flashed the following message by wireless to the daring aeronaut:

"Thank God you and crew are safe."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

OFF TO CHICAGO

Athletics and Cubs Ready for Battle Tomorrow

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The world's series contestants, members of the national commission, a few friends of each team and the 150 newspaper men who are covering the games left Philadelphia at 8:55 last night, bound for Chicago, to which the battleground now shifts, in a special train, run in Athletics and Cub sections.

In the first section are members of the National commission, the umpires and a few friends, the Athletics and the guests of the club and the Philadelphia reporters and many of the out-of-town correspondents. In the second section are the Chicago team and the Chicago reporters. A big crowd was at Broad street station to see the teams depart.

The crowd at yesterday's game fell a few hundred short of yesterday's, the total paid attendance being 24,087 and the total receipts $35,187.

The attendance for the two days was 51,488 and the total receipts $72,581.50. The share for the players for the two days is $35,188.21.

While on their way to Shibe park yesterday afternoon for the game five members of the Cubs had a narrow escape from possible serious injury. A taxicab in which they were riding ran into a mail wagon near Ridge avenue and 21st street.

Overall, Reulbach, Kling, Aroher and Sheppard were in the taxicab. They were badly shaken up and Reulbach complained that his arm had been hurt, but after being rubbed out he declared he was all right.

The players were picked up by other machines following with the rest of the players. The taxicab was badly wrecked. Several hundred excited fans gathered about the wreck and it was only with difficulty that the players got away from the crowd.

Owing to great pressure being brought to bear upon the national commission and the Philadelphia club officials by the demands for reserved seat tickets for the third game to be played here in case the series makes that necessary, the commission has decided to follow out the plan adopted at Chicago and make an immediate sale of these tickets with the guarantee that if no third game here is necessary all tickets so disposed of will be redeemed upon presentation at the place where purchased.

The rules under which the sale will be made have not been formulated but the prospects are that the sale will begin Thursday morning at places designated by the commission and that the number of tickets allowed each purchaser will be limited.

Mounted policemen prevented the scalping of tickets when the gate at 20th and Somerset streets, giving entrance to the outfield, was opened yesterday. Orders had been issued that all who bought the pasteboards must go to their places at once. A number of scalpers bought tickets and then hawked them outside. Lieut. Lawson ordered the mounted men to disperse them and the scalpers were compelled to enter the grounds to escape being ridden down. A watch was then kept to prevent them from throwing the tickets over the fence to their friends.

The presence of D. A. Fletcher of Cincinnati, who hopes to float a new baseball league, has aroused considerable talk among the visiting baseball men. Mr. Fletcher is said to have the national commission and the owners of the major league clubs "on the run" game of the star players here. He is positively that the proposed league between the All Stars of the American league and the All Stars of the National league will positively be played and that everything is arranged to have the game start next week.

One star pitcher was buttonholed last night by the president of his club, but he declined to sign a contract for next season at any terms. The pitcher frankly declared that he was waiting to see how the wind blows before he did anything.

It is reported that Pres. Dbbets of the Brooklyn club is entertaining many of his team here and that other owners are doing all they can to show their friendship for the players, in the hope of preventing them from going over to the Fletcher forces.

Sec. Bruce of the national commission yesterday gave out the following memorial to Harry C. Pulliam, the late president of the National league: "In the fall of 1909 a memorial card to the memory of Harry C. Pulliam was promulgated by the national commission, as follows:

"This series is the fifth one played under the auspices of the National commission. A year makes changes indeed. Harry C. Pulliam, one of the originators of these series, has passed away. His counsel in this body will be heard no more. Organized baseball never had a more zealous and devoted sponsor.

"In order, therefore, that his memory may forever remain green, it is directed by the national commission that a memorial card be printed and that on the day scheduled for the first game of the world's series, in each year the same be distributed to all of the eligible players of the contesting clubs, the official umpires, scorers and business representatives as well as to the owners of the contesting clubs and the press, and that on the same day in each year there be placed on the grave of Harry C. Pulliam at Louisville, Ky., a floral wreath as a token of the esteem in which he was held by every one connected with organized baseball."

The memorial is signed by Pres. B. B. Johnson of the American league.

ODDS CHANGING

CHICAGO SPORTS DROPPED A BARREL OF MONEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—As a result of the two decisive defeats administered to the Cubs by the Athletics, a large number of enthusiastic Chicago fans will continue to wear their summer overcoats all winter and the visitors in Chicago are sometimes very severe.

Here is what they were offering early yesterday afternoon, the most of it, as it proved, at their own expense: Even money that Cubs would win today's game.

One to three that Cubs would win series in five games.

Four to five that Cubs would win series in six games.

Ten to nine on Cubs for the series.

Six to five that Brown would strike out more men than his opponent.

Three to two that Cubs would steal more bases than Athletics.

Even money that Cubs would get more hits than Athletics.

Two to One on the Game

Notwithstanding their heavy losses on Monday, estimated to be $150,000, the fans came back stronger than ever yesterday, putting down the odds of money at 2 to 1 that Mordecai Brown would turn the trick. Heavy commissions from Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other points were promptly covered.

One peculiarity of the betting was that nearly all the New York and Cincinnati money was put down on the Cubs to place on the Cubs. Detroit made a beautiful cleanup, getting even for enormous losses when the Cubs defeated the Tigers for the world's championship.

The backers of Philadelphia again turned out a bundle of money that would stagger the proverbial mule. Contrary to expectations the Quakers again wanted odds. Six to five was first asked and refused. Then 9 to 10 was offered. Some small lots were, of course, placed at the above figures, but the bulk of the commissions were gotten on at even money.

Odds Changing Sides

The biggest wager of the series developed early yesterday, when Charles Tenues, rated as one of the shrewdest speculators in the country, succeeded in placing $5000 to $10,000 that the Cubs would win the series. Prior to yesterday the price had been considerably longer, in fact, numerous large wagers were made with the Cubs laying the price of 10 to 7.

At O'Leary's, as soon as a chunk of Cub support made its appearance there, a war of equal proportions was forthcoming to take care of the Athletic end.

New York, which presumably has been preoccupied with its own clash between the Giants and the Yankees, sent in its first large commission on the series. About 90 per cent of this was support for the Cubs, and carried an "even money" valuation.

"Thousands of National league supporters, whose confidence had been only temporarily checked by defeat in Philadelphia on Monday, gathered at newspaper offices, around tickers and at other places yesterday and last night and tried to account for the second crushing by the Philadelphia Americans in the world's series.

The loss of the game yesterday had a much more depressing influence, apparently, than the Monday defeat. Gloom settled down last night and now hope seems to have taken the place of confidence.

Civic pride has the better of league loyalty in many instances, and some of the most ardent supporters of the Chicago American league team are hoping that Chance's men will win eventually.

YOUTH CAPTURED

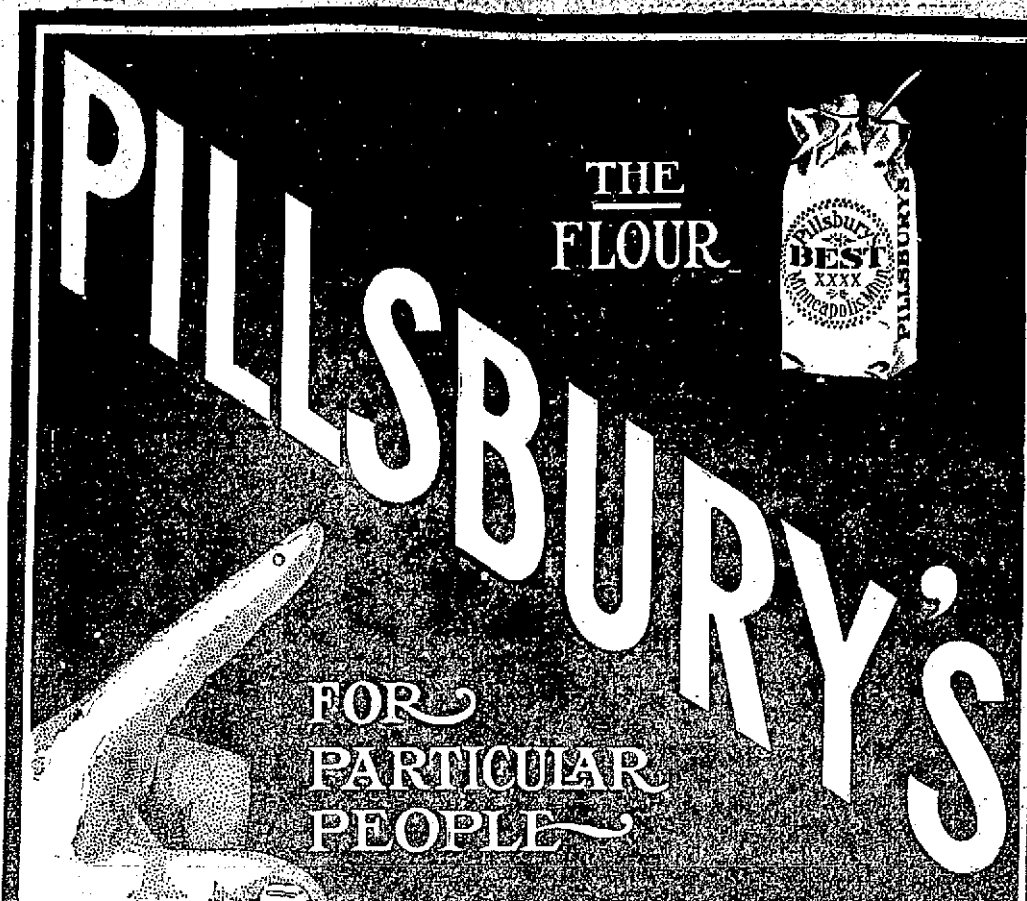

HE IS REGARDED AS KING OF BOY TRAVELERS

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Once again fourteen-year-old John Doyle, of 113 High street, Charlestown, known as the "King of youthful travelers," is in the custody of the police. This time it is in Baltimore, where the police of that city found him surrounded by a crowd of men and boys yesterday. He said he had come from Charlestown, Mass., for no other reason than love for travel.

The Baltimore police communicated with Boston officers yesterday afternoon in regard to him. He was only last Friday the boy was taken into custody by the New Haven police, and his mother sent money to the chief of police of New Haven to put him on the train and return home. The police put him on the train, but instead of coming to Boston he went to Baltimore.

In reply to questioning, young Doyle stated that he made his way "by the side-door Pullmans." He said that he had never before been out of money on his travels, and for the first time realized it was "just awful to be broke."

His mother attributes his mania for running away to the reading of novels.

BRIBERY CASE

Burns Says Hamilton's $600 Went to Buy Votes

SALEM, Oct. 19.—Only four witnesses were heard yesterday in the superior criminal court in the trial of Jas. Hamilton, fire chief of Lawrence, who is indicted in nine counts for bribery.

At the opening of the court yesterday forenoon, William H. Nelson, real estate dealer of Lawrence, resumed his testimony, which was a reiteration of that submitted at the session Monday, that he received $100 from Hamilton for payment to Alderman Legendre in case the nomination of Hamilton as fire chief was confirmed.

Matthew Burns, who was a member of the Lawrence board of aldermen in 1909, and is now serving sentence with ex-Mayor White for alleged conspiracy, was the next witness. Burns testified that he received $600 from Hamilton to be paid to Alderman Legendre and Wockie in case Legendre voted to confirm the nomination of said Hamilton. This money was placed in a safe by the son of Burns, and some two weeks later, when Hamilton had been confirmed, Wockie, Moss and Legendre each received an envelope containing $200.

Burns testified that when he was first approached by Hamilton the latter was informed that he (Burns) favored another candidate for chief. At a subsequent conference Hamilton told Burns that "these fellows want money for their votes," Burns replied, "if you (Hamilton) secure the money, he (Burns) could secure the votes." Burns was promised from work for his service insuring the three votes necessary for the confirmation of Hamilton.

Burns further testified that at the time the attempt was made to depose Hamilton from the position of fire chief he was offered $500 for his (Burns) influence with certain aldermen. Burns said he refused the offer. Hamilton made another offer which was also declined.

Witness testified that Wockie, Moss and Legendre came to his office one week before Hamilton was confirmed to ascertain if the money promised was in his custody.

Xavier Legendre, a member of the board of aldermen in 1909, who is now a state witness, testified that he received $150 for voting to confirm Hamilton and $100 when the attempt was made to oust Hamilton from office.

At adjournment Matthew Burns, Jr., the 16-year-old son of Matthew Burns, was on the stand. He testified that he placed the $600 received by his father from Hamilton in the office safe.

NURSES' COURSE

Extended to Three Years at Lowell General

The executive committee of the Lowell General hospital met yesterday and voted to make the course of training for nurses cover a period of three years.

Prior to three years ago the course of training covered a period of two years; then it was changed to two years and six months. Now the executive committee, acting upon the recommendation of the superintendent of the training school, has extended this course of training to three full years. This change makes it possible for the instruction, both didactic and clinical, to be much more complete in every way.

This change goes into effect at once, and all new applicants for the training school will be required to remain the three full years. The change does not effect, however, any of those now registered in the school.

New courses of lectures have already been arranged and it is now believed that the course offered here is equal to the best in the country.

Strong and Happy Women

USE go about their duties cheerfully—at home, in office or in store, or shop—They find life pleasant and the world full of good; they are attractive and they are able to make things pleasant for those about them. But women often find themselves weak and anemic or run down—maybe, through no fault of their own—Then there is depression—the outlook is dark. With nerves on edge no woman can enjoy life or be attractive to others. At such times, or when conditions cause undue suffering, every woman needs some natural help.

She should then know and use the famous and fully proved remedy—Beecham's Pills, so particularly adapted to the needs of women. Easy and safe to take, they tone the stomach, regulate the bowels and keep the liver and kidneys up to their work.

They improve physical conditions and help all the organs of the body to perform their functions naturally and without suffering. A few doses make a vast difference. Try them and see for yourself how quickly a bright, clear, complexion replaces a sallow

AT ELLIS ISLAND

President Taft is Greatly Pleased With Work Done There

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—President Taft had his first view yesterday of that wonderful piece of machinery, on Ellis Island, where the aliens of many countries undergo their first grueling on the road to American citizenship. He spent five hours in the one place in the United States where the rights of human liberty temporarily are suspended by executive action alone while the tedious work of separating the moderately good from the wholly bad goes on day after day until at the end of the calendar year the number of immigrants passed upon and admitted or rejected amounts up in the millions.

The human interest side of the work at the big immigrant station appealed to the president keenly. He saw the process of handling the aliens from the moment of landing, through their wide-eyed, wondering and docile compliance with all of the rigid rules of mental and physical examination and segregation up to the moment of final discharge, when, with tear streaming eyes they rushed into the arms of waiting friends or relatives. It was this last phase of the work which struck the president most deeply. With nerves strung to the breaking point over the detention, the strange surroundings and the doubt as to final admission, most of the women among the new arrivals gave way completely to their emotions as they were released from the wire cages which greet the eye on every side.

During his investigation the president sat with Immigration Commissioner William Williams in a number of "cases." Mr. Taft proved a lenient judge and it was indeed a happy fate which brought nearly a score of rejected immigrants to the bar for final decision on the day of the president's visit. The president took a hand in the examination of practically all of the immigrants who came up on appeal. There were Slavs, Poles, Greeks and Italians, but the most interesting case of all was that of a Welsh miner and his family of seven motherless children. The president personally directed that the family be admitted and he declared that if he was at all a judge of human nature, the seven children would grow into the best type of citizens.

As a result of his studies and observations yesterday, Mr. Taft had reached last night a pretty definite conclusion on three points: First—He believes that a strong effort should be made to distribute the influx of foreigners and do away with the present congestion in New York. Second—He believes that heavier penalties should be exacted of the steamship companies for infractions of the immigration rules so as to make them more strict in their examination of immigrants before shipping them in foreign ports.

Third—He believes that all mail immigrants upon their arrival here should be put through a thorough examination as to the condition of families left behind in Europe. One of the most difficult human problems of the immigration service has been the separation of families, but the president believes the problem can be solved by requiring immigrants to tell in advance whether or not families left behind are eligible for admission under the immigration laws.

Mr. Taft was urged yesterday to use his influence in getting an appropriation from congress which would practically double the facilities at Ellis Island. This he will decline to do. He holds the view that if the Ellis Island facilities were doubled it would simply mean a further inducement to the steamship companies to concentrate their immigrant traffic in this city. If additional facilities must be provided for immigrants, the president thinks that stations should be established at other ports along the coast. This would mean, of course, that the steamship companies being notified that only a certain number of immigrants would be handled in New York, and that aliens in excess of this number should be taken to other ports. A number of movements are under way, fostered principally by foreign societies to distribute the immigrants arriving daily in America. Mr. Taft is of the opinion that by increasing the points of distribution, the congestion of foreigners on the East Side of New York can be greatly relieved.

President Taft believes that the work at Ellis Island has been reduced to as near a science as is possible.

THE POLICE BOARD

Regular Meeting Held and Licenses Granted

The board of police met in regular session in the office in the Market street building last night and although the open meeting was not a lengthy one considerable business was transacted.

A hearing was to be held on the petition of the members of the Montefiore society for the revocation of the special police license of Morris Shapiro for the Howard street synagogue, but Shapiro put in an appearance and surrendered the license of his own accord, therefore there was no necessity of a meeting.

SALOON ISSUE

Engaging the Attention of Gary

GARY, Ind., Oct. 18.—Judge Elbert H. Gary has other worries besides the national steel congress on his hands. As chairman of the board of directors of the steel trust Judge Gary is busy entertaining representatives of English mills, but he is going to lay aside these duties long enough to try and help solve the saloon question of this town. Judge Gary hoped to make Gary the ideal city, but the saloons have worried the local officials, and now they have appealed to the head of the steel trust to pay a visit to this city and discuss whether beer can be sold by the can or not.

GIRLS REVOLT

THEY WANT TO PLAY BASKET-BALL AS BOYS DO

NEW ROCHELLE, Oct. 19.—There was a general revolt of the girls of the New Rochelle high school yesterday afternoon when Principal Arthur E. Chase recommended that a woman coach be hired to direct the girls' basketball squad.

"Indeed, we won't play girls' rules," stoutly declared Miss Constance Martin, captain of the sophomore class team.

"No, sir, we don't," Miss Margaret Cantor, captain of the senior team, declared. "We will play boys' rules or none at all. Why, what fun is there in girls' rules? They don't let you run enough to keep warm on a hot day."

Back of the high school after the meeting the air was filled with the shouts of the girls as they played a fast game, running and bumping into one another, falling down and skinning their joints and thinking it was fine sport. Harold Van Mulder, one of last year's high school stars, was pressed into service as coach. The girls say he is "just a lovely coach."

Among last year's stars are Marie Ingalls, Beatrice Colton, Marion Noble, Margaret Cantor and Margaret Berry. The other members of the squad are Grace Clancy, Edna Schroeder, Eva Walker, Ruth Weldon, Adelaide Klenke, Dorothy Haviland, Helen Walker, Margaret Lundgren, Gertrude Freeman, Amanda Burroughs, Eunice Ball, Ruth Beach, Lois Harvey, Eleanor Poole and Elsie Nichols. So many candidates have turned out that the coaches will have separate days for practice and an interclass tournament will be arranged to pick a representative school team.

THE GILBRIDE COMP'Y

SUING FOR $50,000

Miss Esther Quinn on Stand for
Two Hours

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Esther Quinn, who wants $50,000 damages from Harry Thurston Peck, until recently professor of Latin at Columbia university, spent two hours yesterday under examination by C. D. Francis, counsel for the professor.

The examination was directed because Prof. Peck had alleged in his answer to Miss Quinn's suit that she was in the habit of associating with disreputable characters. As on her two former examinations, she absolutely denied the charges.

The session lasted two hours and was taken up for the greater portion of the time with objections from Mr. O'Reilly. Miss Quinn, on O'Reilly's advice, having declined to answer a question as to when she came to New York on the ground that she did not know, Francis said he would go to the supreme court and have a ruling.

"You can't come before the supreme court too soon for me," reported O'Reilly. "When you do, all this testimony you have taken will be stricken out."

Miss Quinn repeated what she had already told as to her age, which she had placed at "about 34." She refused to be plucked down to any specific figure.

Miss Quinn said she was born in Massachusetts and lived in Boston and Cambridge as a child and had gone to school in Cambridge and New York.

One little detail that the attorney brought out was that the nickname or pet name by which Dr. Peck most frequently called her was "Tessie." She denied having other pet names or nicknames, except the one "Tessie," by which she was known at home.

She said she had met a man named Samuel Scott twice, and that he had been interested in business with Leander Richardson, by whom she had once been employed.

She swore she never met George Graham Rice, the manager of Schefels & Co., whose places were raided by the police, until she was employed there.

"Ever work in Wall street until you went with Schefels & Co.?" Mr. Francis asked.

"Never. That was the nearest I got to Wall street. Dr. Peck recommended me to go there."

"Where did he give you that advice?"

"In my apartment, 623 West 134th street."

Mr. Francis then went back to the alleged proposal and asked Miss Quinn whether she did not consider it unusual that he was standing up when he asked her to marry him.

"Now you want to make this girl an expert again," said O'Reilly. "I object. What has the question whether Peck was standing or not when he proposed to her, to do with the present proceeding?"

After some further hickering the examination was adjourned until Friday next.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

BLOOD NERVE REMEDY

"I AM STARVING."

"The sight of food disgusts me. I can't eat. What shall I do for strength?"

Starvation is the right name for weakness, because all strength comes from food. Many people eat great quantities of food, but get little benefit from it because their stomachs are disordered. Others cannot eat. How frequently you hear them say "the very thought of food nauseates me."

Regulate your stomach at once with Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy. Get the benefits of your food. Get the appetite for it. Get the strength you are entitled to. Get it by natural, honest, healthy means. Poor blood, nervous weakness, inability to sleep, kidney and liver trouble all follow quickly when the stomach is out of order.

Mrs. Sarah Gark, 1873 Third Ave., New York City, says:

"I want to tell you those who have indigestion how I was cured by the use of Dr. Greene's NERVURA. I had indigestion so bad that I could not eat anything for months. It looked as though I would never get well. I would slowly starve. I had the most terrible dizzy spells, and such sick headaches that I could not lift my head. In the morning when I woke up I would be all tired out, and my tongue would be coated all the time. The indigestion got so bad that it affected my kidneys and blood. I suffered great pain from rheumatism. My limbs would be cold all the time, and I had terrible palpitation at the heart. I could only know how I suffered, and how much I needed help. But Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy cured me. I feel like a new man now. I have gained weight and how it was the best medicine on earth for all stomach troubles. I want everyone to know how good Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy is, and I give my experience for the benefit of all."

Now is the time to take Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy, the greatest and best remedy the world has ever known.

Dr. Greene is the well-known public medical lecturer and specialist in treatment of all nervous and chronic diseases, and can be personally consulted at his office, 31 Temple Place, Boston, or by mail, free.

80 INJURED

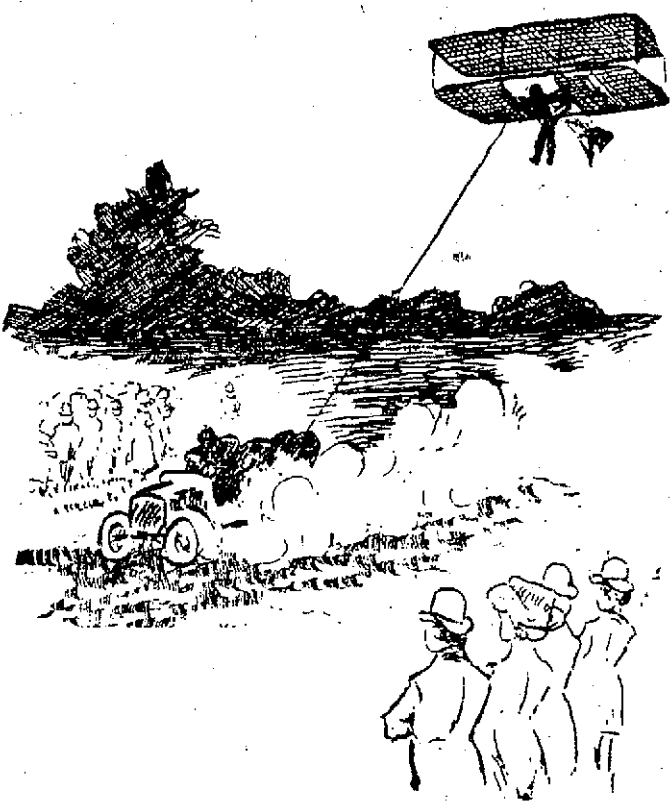

Two May Die as Result of Collision of Cars at Kittery, Maine

KITTERY, Oct. 19.—Eighty employees of the Portsmouth navy yard on the way to begin their day's work were more or less injured today, three possibly fatally, in a collision between two heavily loaded trolley cars on the Atlantic Shore line railroad at Fort Hill. Falling leaves had made the rails slippery and the first of two cars mounting the hill, driven by Motorman Arthur Barnes, failed to respond to its brakes and rolled back down the hill, crashing into another car. An accident similar in almost every particular occurred at the same spot six years ago.

Bad cuts about the head and possible internal injuries sustained by George Gunnison and William Foye, the two most seriously injured, may result in their deaths. Both were removed unconscious to their homes. Thomas Billings suffered an injury to his back which may be a fracture of the spine. Asa Wilson had several ribs and an arm broken and Ansell Hutchins sustained a broken leg and a broken wrist. Nearly a score of others were injured.

TESTING "GLIDERS"

MR. LEHMANN IN THE GLIDER DRAWN BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Technology Club Spent Day in Aeronautic Tests

Lowell may in the near future become as widely known for holding aviation meets as it was for holding successful automobile races, for yesterday an aviation meet was held at the Vesper Country club grounds at Tyngs Island. It was true that the machines used were not regular aeroplanes, they were "gliders," which are the nearest things to the regular motor driven aeroplanes.

The occasion was the aeronautical reunion of the Technology club of the Merrimack valley and the demonstrations were highly successful. The gliding was done by undergraduates of the Institute of Technology. The golf course was open to the visitors and also the tennis courts and the day was spent in an extremely busy manner. During the forenoon the members tried out on the links at the country clubhouse, but met with no accident and for a time it was thought that it could not be repaired in time for the afternoon demonstrations. However, the four young men of the crew, Messrs. E. N. Sales, H. and P. W. Caldwell, H. T. Feltman and J. P. Neely, all '12 men, got things in shape after much hard work, and about 4 o'clock the first of the flights was attempted. Dr. John H. Lambert's automobile was used to get the glider under way. Mr. Lehmann was placed in the centre of the planes, but got a poor start and rose only a few feet in the air.

A speedier machine, C. Marshall Forest's, was used for the second flight. Mr. Lehmann still occupying a place in the glider. The automobile got away fast and the glider rose after about 100 feet, going to a height of 30 feet and flying for over 150 yards. Unfortunately the wing of the glider struck a small tree and came down. Mr. Lehmann was not hurt, but the glider was somewhat wrecked by the fall and was not put in shape for another flight.

A dinner was served at the country club from 5:15 to 6 o'clock, after which there was speechmaking.

TYPHOID FEVER

Seven Cases Reported From Front St.

There is a typhoid fever epidemic in Front street, Centralville. Despite the fact that the street is a short one, seven cases and one death have been reported.

In a house where the water was shut off because of alleged non-payment of the water bill there are three cases of typhoid fever while across the street there are four cases.

While the cases in the house where the water was shut off might be due to the water used during that time, it is thought that the cases across the street are due to the exposure of sewage. The water in the Merrimack river at this point has been so low for several days that the sewage which generally flows into the water and is carried away has been deposited on dry land which sent forth an odor which was almost unbearable.

HANGED HIMSELF

After His Sister Had Passed Away

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Dead since Saturday or Sunday, the bodies of Miss Lucy McMullen and her brother, Louis McMullen, were found last night in the cottage, No. 291 Livingston street, Brooklyn. The man had died after an illness of several months and his sister, in her grief following his death, had committed suicide. He was forty-eight years old and she eight years his senior. The pair had lived all their lives in the house where their bodies were found.

Louis McMullen was prominent in Brooklyn politics and was for years in the sheriff's office. His father before him was prominent politically and for years was the appraiser of the port of New York for the Ninth district, which includes Brooklyn.

Miss McMullen, after the death of her mother, took up herself the cares of the house and her younger brother, whom she raised, and herself occupied the home after the sister and even the brother had married.

Three months ago the brother was taken ill of a complication of diseases. He was not confined to his bed all the time. On Friday last his physician, Dr. A. C. Brush, of No. 23 South Portland avenue, called, as did Harry McMullen, the brother who is married and lives at No. 169 Baltic street. On Sunday the physician called and did not gain admittance. Dr. Brush was unable to get in on Monday, and yesterday reported the matter to the police. Last evening, with the police, he effected an entrance through a window that was not locked. The body of Miss McMullen was found hanging from a door of the second-floor bedroom. On the floor lay the body of the brother.

For some time Miss McMullen, according to her friends, had been morose. At the time of the Livingston street widening she refused to sell the old house in which she lived, and later appeared to regret it because the price offered them was far in excess of what she was able to receive as an offer later when she needed money.

DWELLING ON FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland Had Narrow Escape

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Murkland, the former being treasurer of the Central Savings bank, had a narrow escape from being suffocated and probably burned to death early this morning when fire broke out in their house at 45 Talbot street while they were sound asleep. Fortunately Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the smoke and after arousing her husband, both made their escape from the burning building. An alarm from box 141 was sounded and the fire department was soon on the scene, but before the blaze was extinguished the building and contents were badly damaged. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland were the only occupants of the house when the fire broke out, they having only recently returned from their summer home. Shortly before 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the odor of smoke and aroused her husband. At first both thought that the smoke was from a forest fire, but it was so dense that Mr. Murkland decided to investigate and arose and opened the door of the bedroom. He was met by a cloud of smoke which filled the hall and all the other rooms on the second floor. Rushing down stairs he heard the crackling of flames in the kitchen, and without stopping to make any further investigation, he rushed out of doors and rang in the alarm which summoned the department.

It was a long, hard haul up the hill to the house, and by the time the apparatus arrived, the fire had gained considerable headway. Starting in a clothes closet in the kitchen, it had spread up through the partitions to the second floor and was rapidly eating its way toward the roof.

It took the firemen over half an hour to extinguish the flames. In the meantime the building and its contents had been badly damaged.

Mr. Murkland is at a loss to understand how the fire occurred, as the only fire in the house at the time, was in a stove in the kitchen and the stove was far removed from the chute.

MRS. BARCLAY

WILL NOT BE TRIED ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING

HOLTON, Kan., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo will not be tried on a charge of kidnapping Marian Bleakley, the "incubator baby," about whom there was much publicity a year ago. The two cases against the woman, one on a charge of kidnapping and the other for assault, were dismissed in the district court yesterday. Joseph Gentry and Joseph Tilton, in the employment of Mrs. Barclay, took the baby from the house of C. H. Belknap in Topeka after knocking down Mr. Belknap. They were tried and convicted. Mrs. Barclay obtained the child in St. Louis, where it was exhibited in an incubator. Later Mrs. Bleakley claimed it and a Kansas court decided it belonged to her. She has the child now. An Illinois court awarded the child to Mrs. Barclay.

FUNERALS

BALL—Miss Lucy A. Ball, who died at the Old Ladies Home on Sunday, was an old Lowell resident. She was well known and esteemed, having a large circle of friends. In the past she was quite well known among the musical people. She was of a genial, loving, appreciative disposition and will be much missed. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Sanborn, Mrs. Albert W. Bartlett, and one brother, Mr. C. C. Ball, all of Lowell.

CAUSED A PANIC

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 19.—With an abating wind at daylight Savannah appeared to have experienced the worst of the tropical hurricane now travelling northward up the Atlantic coast. No great damage to shipping is reported. For hours the rain has been falling in torrents, crippling street car service.

All last night the wind blew at an average velocity of more than 50 miles an hour from the east and northeast. Nothing was heard from cities and towns to the south of Savannah and all trains from the south were several hours overdue.

CAUSED A PANIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The outbreak of a "bad man," 13 years old, who chose his schoolroom as the scene of his rampage, caused a borderland panic in St. Francis' parochial school in the Bronx yesterday afternoon.

George Masgraves, flourishing a huge revolver, terrorized his classmates and a male teacher for 10 minutes and forced them to a corner, and when Fr. James Merighi, attracted by the uproar, rushed into the room the boy made him kneel with the others.

Other pupils called Policeman O'Brien, but the threat of the revolver halted him at the door. As the boy's attention was diverted a moment O'Brien was able to close in and seize the revolver. Then he found the weapon not only unloaded but so stiff in trigger action that the boy could not have discharged it.

THE OLD LADIES' HOME ON FLETCHER STREET

Worthy Institution Where Aged Women Spend Their Declining Years

Passersby in Fletcher street during these dreary, blustery days of the autumn frequently pause momentarily to contemplate with evident satisfaction a party of dear old ladies rocking in and fro in ease and comfort within the glass walls of the cozy sun-parlor of the Old Ladies' Home, totally impervious to the contrary winds that howl relentlessly about the four walls of the worthy institution which gives them not only shelter but a comfortable home.

The sun-parlor of the Old Ladies' Home is of recent origin comparatively and was made possible through the munificence of Frederick Fanning Ayer, whose charity toward the institution has known no limit. As an adjunct of the home it is truly invaluable.

Fortunate are the old ladies who have found shelter within the walls of the Old Ladies' Home, for it is surely a model institution of its kind, and more fortunate those who have entered it since the present building in Fletcher street was erected and the present kindly matron, Miss Martha E. Mills, assumed charge.

The Old Ladies' Home was established in 1887 and originally had quarters in Tremont street. The present building dates back to 1881. In all its long career the institution has had but two presidents, the late Mrs. Hedrick and Mrs. George P. Richardson, who was recently re-elected at the annual meeting of the trustees.

At the present time there are 42 inmates at the institution with a lengthy waiting list for 42 is the limit. No woman is taken in under 55 years of age and the oldest woman at the home at the present time is 92 years of age. One of the women has been there 21 years and another between 17 and 20 years. So regular is the life of the institution and so complete the care given the inmates that aside from the infirmities of age, which mortal power cannot prevent, the inmates are seldom in need of the services of the physician. The old ladies at the home are exclusively women with no homes nor family ties outside of the institution.

Single women only are admitted and once they pass within its hospitable portals they become the guests of the institution for the remainder of their lives. They are not required to work though all who are able assist about the house with such light work as wiping dishes and doing a little plain sewing in cases where the sight of the inmate permits. Each woman has her own cosy bedroom and in the dining room they sit around comparatively small tables, six at a table so that the chums or congenial spirits are all together at meals. Those who are unable to go to the dining room have their meals served to them in their rooms and two nurses are on duty, day and night so that they are never left without a watchful eye to see and willing hands to administer to their wants at a moment's notice.

A feature of the institution is the library bequeathed by the late Mr. Fanning Ayer, containing four hundred volumes of standard literature. There is no librarian, everything being home-like and those who desire books are at liberty to get them when they please and return them likewise. The daily papers and magazines are also at their disposal so that they may keep in touch with the life of the outside world and the expression "the world forgetting, by the world forgot," has never been applied in this case.

Services are conducted at the home twice monthly, the different local ministers officiating. Many of the old ladies who are able, attend the different churches each Sunday. Through the thoughtfulness of the late Miss Davis a fund of $297 has been left the institution, the interest of which is used for drives for the old ladies in the home and these drives form one of their greatest pleasures. Annually all receive invitations to the entertainment at the Fifth Baptist church and those who are sufficiently strong attend and receive most kindly attention. The year's entertainment was held a short time ago and seven of the old ladies attended. The oldest of the seven was 85 years old and she was presented with a beautiful bouquet while the others received gifts of pinks.

The institution has 65 rooms in all and has not the austere appearance of most institutions of its kind. In fact the visitor on entering gets the impression that he is entering into a private residence of surpassing neatness and of adequate but modest appointments. This immaculate neatness prevails through every corner of the building, but this is not surprising when one knows the matron, Miss Mills, who has had the management of the institution for the past ten years.

While the institution is doing a noble work of charity it is not a charitable institution in the popular sense of the word. It has a large list of patrons who pay one dollar per year and who after five years' membership become entitled to a vote in the management of the affairs of the institution. Each old lady upon entering gives the institution $200, but the bulk of support comes from endowments and the several magnificent cash gifts of Frederick Fanning Ayer. For instance there is the "Josephine M. Ayer" fund of $50,000 given unsolicited some years ago by Frederick Fanning Ayer in memory of his mother, and since that time Mr. Ayer has made many contributions to the home of most liberal dimensions. Frequently minor gifts of money and other acceptable articles are received, notably a magnificent mirror which adorns the main hallway and which was presented to the institution by Mr. Hensford.

"Everyone is kind to us," said Miss Mills, to the writer, "and I am pleased to see a growing interest in the institution."

THEATRE VOYONS

One of the jolliest romps that takes place in this country occurs early every fall in the N. Y. Polo grounds when the members of the Actor's Fund of America gather and with odd capers and strange burlesques make merry in their annual festival. "A Summer Flirtation" will cause more merriment for it is a clever comedy. "The Three Friends" which tells the pathetic story of an old man and his horse and dog is a real gem and "The Song That Reached His Heart" is a novelty in many ways.

STAR THEATRE

Thinking of class, that frequently used word, the writer also thinks of the "girly show" at the Star theatre with its four vaudeville specialties and other features.

Helston and Hood in their burlesque on military life, and DeRosa, the female impersonator, presents acts of unusual excellence. Alvin Melvin who are wonderfully strong attend and receive most kindly attention. The year's entertainment was held a short time ago and seven of the old ladies attended. The oldest of the seven was 85 years old and she was presented with a beautiful bouquet while the others received gifts of pinks.

The officers of the institution are president, Mrs. George P. Richardson; vice presidents, Mrs. J. W. Shaw, Mrs. Edward Nichols; secretary, Mrs. Samuel Young; treasurer, J. HATHAWAY THEATRE

Right under one's ribs go the shanks of William Tom Nawn dispensing at Hathaway's theatre this week in his comedy called "When Put Was King." Mr. Nawn extracts much unctuous humor from the role of the gardener who ate lotus leaves and then dreamed that he was "Mahon," king of Munster in the year 988 A. D.

The good old-timey days of minstrelsy are brought forcibly back when Russell & Smith's burnt cork artists trot out. Five very competent men are in the company, which is headed by Joe McGee, the "Mark Twain Kid," and Fred Russell.

Engles and Reading are a smart pair who contribute a night, smart hedge podge, and Mlle. Martha, the trapezist, has an act of much beauty. Edith A. Montrose gives several character impersonations, while Ray W. Snow proves himself an effective monologist. Adonis and his dog open the show, and motion pictures close it.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

If one cares to just sit back at a theatre and laugh one's head nearly off at witty dialog and perfectly ridiculous stunts, one wants to visit the Merrimack Square theatre this week and see Carter, Taylor and Company in their comedy sketch, "In Camp Rest." It is quite the funniest thing that has appeared in Lowell for some time.

Another entertaining sketch is that by Fred Rivenhall, the English comedian. Hansone and Company have a pleasing act presenting a really wonderful exhibition of magic with tricks never seen here before.

The Scenic Stock company is presenting a delightful one-act play of sentiment called "Hearts and Flowers," one of the best plays yet put on by the company.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Those who some years ago heard Frank Lator as "Noli the Tailor" in "Coming Thro' the Rye," looked to the Opera House last night and if they did not see Lator, they saw Mr. Ovey who plays the comical role almost as well. The musical comedy is presented by the Katzes & Phelan Amusement company with a snap and vim that delights everybody. The applause last night was profuse. Indeed this stock company is giving first class plays in a first class manner at popular prices.

Miss Horner as Bossie, Miss Marsh as Lolita played their parts well. The company gave excellent support to the leaders and comedians.

This afternoon "Coming Thro' the Rye" will be again enjoyed, and tonight "The Isle of Spice." Other popular play for the remainder of the week.

COLONIAL THEATRE

One of the many good things in the program for the next few days at the Colonial theatre will be the latest vaudeville offering of Ramsey and Janitor. The Ramsey harmonists, a trio of clever singers and comedians in a musical farcelet "Kannoeled." There is just enough of a well-constructed story running through the playlet to make it interesting and serve to logically introduce the three characters in several really great singing numbers. The story, in brief, concerns the trials of two men of a trio who have not succeeded in convincing the manager of a small theatre that the two are a trio. When unable to produce the third man the ally manager arranges a new program and leaves the "two man trio" out. With no money and a big interest leave the scenes of their theatrical "Waterloo" and at the opening we find them just half way between the Opera House and the village depot. The passing of the local dray and the finding out that the drayman is a member of the local choir soon happily ends their predicament. The story is well told. The many little touches on "inside" theatrical life make a most interesting little story and the comedy is both plentiful and original.

Harry LeToy is also on the bill and he is famous for the laughs he is able to draw from his audiences. The whole bill is exceptionally fine including the remarkable flicker pictures. This bill is for the remainder of the week.

WELLMAN AND PARTY

Landed at New York Tell of Thrilling Rescue From Airship America

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Shortly after 6 o'clock the steamer Trent came to anchor below Sandy Hook because of the dense fog.

A wireless message was received this morning from the operator on the Trent giving further details of the rescue of the America's crew at sea. The message follows:

"Steamer Trent, 6 a.m., 55 miles southeast of Sandy Hook. The crew of the America, after resting all night, are feeling none the worse for their thrilling experience. From what I can gather in conversation with Irwin (the wireless operator on the America) the most exciting moment of the three days was after the launching of the America's lifeboat. The Trent bore down full speed upon the small boat. Irwin declares for the moment it looked as if she would cut her in half. The Trent appeared the size of the Singer building and he was prepared to jump overboard and swim clear of the propeller. Fortunately this was unnecessary.

"The Trent passed the lifeboat, dangerously rocking her. A rope was thrown and caught by the men, who, however, could not hold on owing to rough seas. The Trent cleared of the lifeboat, which dropped half a mile astern. As the big steamer turned in her wake to return to the lifeboat it was seen that the ship's men had shipped two oars and were struggling to keep her head to the sea. We were now alongside the craft. Again lines were thrown but were dashed by the waves. The two ropes were thrown from the steamer Trent. The crew of the America climbed up the rope ladder and each was gladly cheered as he was helped over the rail. So ended the most thrilling and most daring feat in the annals of the sea.

(Signed)

"Louis Ginsburg, Operator."

Wellman says that after working well to sea, the dirigible Sunday was caught in a thirty-mile blow which carried the America clear off her course. Night came and the dirigible jerked and bumped over the waves, threatening the America with constant destruction. The crew were calm but greatly exhausted and one after the other went to sleep expecting to wake up in the sea. Every effort was centered on keeping the America afloat and gasoline was lost overboard. The dirigible kept up its incessant pounding and threatened to sweep away the lifeboat.

Wellman told the Trent's passengers that a course was laid for the Azores but a veering wind made it impossible to reach the islands with reduced gasoline. Bermuda was the next hope of the party. On Monday morning gasoline and some damaged machinery was released to keep the America floating. Early Tuesday morning rescue came. The Trent was sighted two hours away and signalled. The lifeboat was successfully launched. Mr. Vaniman bringing the America down to the waves while Simon directed the release of the lifeboat. The lifeboat was struck a glancing blow by the dirigible, which nearly capsized it. The weight of the lifeboat and the party removed from the airship, the America shot up high into the air and disappeared.

The loss of the unfortunate dirigible was witnessed without regret, according to Mr. Wellman, as it could never have been used again, having been weakened by the constant jerking of the dirigible. Wellman believes that the feat of crossing the Atlantic in a gas bag may be accomplished but that larger and stronger air craft will have to be built. Wellman says the dirigible was the mistake of the expedition. The aeronauts pointed out today that the America, the plaything of the winds, nearly described a circle in her course. The total distance covered was about 1000 miles, which is one third the distance across the Atlantic, which Wellman essayed to cover. The circling course brought the America up 350 miles off Cape Hatteras but had the thousand miles covered been made in a direct course along the trans-Atlantic steamer lane, it would have carried the airship about 300 miles eastward of the banks of New Foundland.

MESSAGES WERE SENT

BY PRACTICAL JOKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—With Walter Wellman and the crew of his airship America all accounted for and the airship adrift in the air far to the south some wireless hoaxer off in mid-ocean is apparently amusing himself by sending messages in Wellman's name. The following was received via Cape Race, N. F.: "At 12:45 o'clock the Belle Isle station received a communication from an unidentified source, apparently not far away and supposed to be from the Wellman airship. The message said: 'We are soaring a.k. All well on board. Have been unable to obtain exact position.'"

A NEW WORLD'S RECORD

WAS MADE BY WELLMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Walter Wellman and the members of his ill-fated trans-Atlantic air expedition in the dirigible America, who were rescued from almost certain death at sea 360 miles east of Cape Hatteras yesterday, believe that a voyage in an airship across the Atlantic may be yet accomplished. The Wellman party are aboard the steamship Trent, which rescued the aeronauts. A heavy fog held back the Trent this morning and at 9 o'clock she was about twenty miles east of Sandy Hook, proceeding slowly. The Trent will dock this afternoon.

While the object of Wellman's venturesome trip was not accomplished, he succeeded in creating a new world's record for dirigibles, being in the air 76 hours and covering, according to Wellman, a thousand miles over seas.

GREAT AUDIENCE

At Immaculate Conception Parish Reunion

The annual reunion of the Immaculate Conception parish opened in Assacate hall, this afternoon, when a special program was arranged for the entertainment of the children of the parish. The hall was crowded with the little ones and the minstrel overture given by the O. M. I. Cadet troupe was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Tables have been arranged around the hall and refreshments were served during the afternoon. Tonight the adults of the parish will greet their pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I., and the other priests of the parish. An entertainment program in which artists from all the local theatres will take part has been arranged and promises to be one of the best ever presented in Lowell. Following the entertainment there will be dancing. The hall is prettily decorated and the booths in charge of the different societies connected with the church are especially attractive.

BLAZE ON ROOF

An alarm from box 24 at 11:23 o'clock this morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze on the roof of a house at the corner of Appleton and South streets. The fire was caused by a spark from a chimney, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

To operate an automobile the cost is based on gasoline at 20c a gallon; oil, 50c a gallon; grease, 12c a pound; depreciation and tires, .023 a mile; average cost of gasoline figured 16¢ miles to the gallon—better results secured in recent test. Storage not included.

It Proves Beyond Dispute

That the automobile is undoubtedly an economy. That its low cost of operation surprises even its advocates. That the extravagance of the motor car is voluntary and unnecessary. That its pleasures are within the reach of men of moderate means. That it is an indispensable factor in transportation and a utility. That it is an implement, which if properly employed, will increase the earning power of man, conserve his time, extend his field and support his hands. That the automobile industry, practically unknown ten years ago, and now the fourth greatest industry in the United States, is fully vindicated and proven economically sound. That the Maxwell Car is the standard of that industry; the efficient, economical, reliable, utility automobile, as near perfection as human intelligence and human handiwork can make it under modern conditions.

Test Officially Sanctioned by the American Automobile Association

We invited the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association to conduct this test in order that it might be in absolutely disinterested control. The Board appointed judges to attest its results.

The two vehicles ran each day over a predetermined route. Each ran continuously for six hours, regarded as a normal day's work. Account was kept of every item of expense entailed. The needs of each vehicle were supplied at roadside stores at current market prices.

Each day a different route was laid out, in order to cover all conditions of city and suburban traffic and all sorts of roads. One day they covered the densely congested districts of the city; another day they ran in infrequently traveled, suburban roads. Everything was done to make the test normal, actual, eminently fair and conclusive.

The Results Attested by Its Judges

The automobile cost $\frac{8}{100}$ of a cent per passenger mile to operate.

The horse and buggy cost $1\frac{4}{100}$ of a cent per passenger mile.

The car covered $2\frac{1}{2}$ times the distance traveled by the horse.

The car averaged 76 $\frac{3}{10}$ miles at a cost of \$1.03.

The horse averaged 32 $\frac{9}{10}$ miles a day at a cost of 95 cents.

The car required 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ gallons of gasoline and a pint of lubricant daily.

The horse needed 12 quarts of oats and 20 pounds of hay per day.

The other expenses—tire cost, up-keep and depreciation or similar charges, brought the total cost of the car up to $1\frac{8}{10}$ cent per passenger mile, as shown in detail in the table above.

The other incident expenses of maintaining a horse and buggy brought its total cost up to $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents per passenger mile, as shown in the table above.

This is our answer to the charge made that the automobile is an extravagance. This proves that it is an economic factor that would save millions if the Maxwell were everywhere substituted for the horse and buggy.

We have always been unable to fill orders promptly in the spring and summer. In order to stimulate early season business all these cars sold during the next 30 days will be

GUARANTEED FOR LIFE.

NO AGREEMENT

In the Famous Russell Will Case Arrived at

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Further court proceedings in the now celebrated Russell will case have been indefinitely postponed.

All those interested in the side of the executors of the estate have emphatically declared that no settlement of the case has been made with Dakota Dan Russell or his attorneys, and also that no steps have been taken in the direction of a possible ultimate settlement of the controversy.

Dakota Dan and his attorneys, however, have suddenly put on a happy and satisfied air and smilingly refer all interviews to Nason & Proctor, attorneys for the executors of the estate. One thing is a fact and that is that the attorneys representing both sides in the case have come to an agreement, which amounts to "a general continuance" of the hearing of the appeal from the decision of the probate court stamping Dakota Dan as an imposter. While some of those interested in the case of Dakota Dan, the appellant, frankly say the case has not been settled out of court, they have all put on the same happy, mysterious air of evident satisfaction and say that all the parties interested have been in conference for several weeks, but that all are bound by an attorney's agreement not to discuss the case or any of its new situations.

Respondents Firm in Denial

Both of Dakota Dan's attorneys and the appellant himself seem to hint from their actions that there is something very interesting in the case which might be told, but, they say, that Nason & Proctor are the only persons from whom the information may come.

Messrs. Nason & Proctor, and everybody else on the respondent's side of the case, declare emphatically there has been no settlement with Dakota Dan, and they also put considerable stress into the statement there never will be any settlement with the first claimant to the Russell estate, and also that it is their purpose to fight the case to the end through the courts when it is next assigned for trial. They also say it will be again assigned for a hearing in the spring.

The army of staunch friends of Dakota Dan Russell in Melrose seem to be firmly of the impression that some negotiations strongly favoring him in his claim of being the son and heir of the former Melrose senator and capitalist are already under way, if not already consummated.

The case was listed for a new trial yesterday, and presumably both sides were ready and anxious to go on with the hearing. Suddenly it became known about on Monday that the case had been settled out of court.

Origin of Settlement Report

This report evidently originated from the fact it became known on Monday that Clerk Theodore C. Hurd of the supreme court at East Cambridge received notice that, by the consent of Mr. Justice Morton, the Russell case and No. 1500, 1502 and 1503 were to be continued generally. This course was asked as the result of an agreement of the parties, Nelson L. Sheldon, attorney for the appellant, served the notice upon the clerk of the court.

fore the flames were extinguished she was badly burned about the face, hands and body.

The ambulance was summoned and a hurried trip made to the Lowell hospital at which place the doctors did everything to alleviate the child's sufferings.

ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY

WORCESTER, Oct. 19.—The collection of papers referring to early American life and history, owned by the American Antiquarian society could never be equalled by any other organization, even if the society should now cease collecting, declared Waldo Lincoln of Worcester at the annual meeting of the society, held here today. The treasurer's report showed that the assets of the society are $481,994. Officers were elected as follows: President, Waldo Lincoln of Worcester; vice presidents, Dr. Samuel A. Green of Boston, and Andrew MacFarland Davis of Cambridge; recording secretary, George P. Winship of Providence; treasurer, Augustus G. Bullock of Worcester.

BALLOON RACE

Seven Balloons are in Ontario

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 19.—Seven of the ten balloons which left here Monday in the international race are believed to be in the air in Ontario. They were last reported from northern Michigan near Lake Huron. One of them, the Dusseldorf II, is taking a more northerly course than the others. The trip across Lake Michigan was made successfully by eight of the entrants. The balloon St. Louis No. 4 was forced to land near Hillman, Mich., after traveling 655 miles because of lack of ballast to negotiate the flight across Lake Huron. With the Million club aerostat down, the hope of the United States winning the race rests in the America II, piloted by Allan R. Hawley.

The third balloon down is the Condor, which landed in Wisconsin near Two Rivers yesterday. The balloons which come to earth yesterday have cambric gasbags. The others are of rubber.

WARM IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Accounts of hurricanes in the south and blizzards in the west were read today by Bostonians in summer temperature and soft southerly winds. The day was a record-breaker for temperature on October 19 in Boston, the thermometer reaching 78 at noon.

HUMAN TISSUE

Out of Body Was Kept Alive

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—Along lines conceived by himself and worked out under the skillful guidance of the Johns Hopkins university men at the head of the Rockefeller institute for medical research, Dr. Alexis Carrel has made one of the most important medical discoveries of the age. It is a method for removing from the human body portions of the stomach, blood vessels, skin, bone and practically every other tissue, and making them grow at as lively a rate as in the form to which they belonged.

No public announcement of the discovery has been made yet, and only a limited number of physicians are informed of its character, or, indeed, that a discovery of this kind has been made by the experimenters at the Rockefeller institute.

To some who had knowledge of the physician's experiments his appearance seemed chimerical. Dr. Carrel has kept portions of the body alive as long as three weeks after they were taken from the person to whom they belonged.

The method of cultivating the living body or portions of it is somewhat similar to the cultivation of disease germs and is by the aid of culture material within sealed receptacles.

The value to humanity of the successful development of the methods employed by Dr. Carrel is incalculable. Through the study of living tissues the whole progress of disease may be followed, and the way pointed out for the application of proper and effective remedies.

It is believed that the discovery will lead to more intelligent treatment of cancer than is possible in the light of present knowledge.

NARROW ESCAPE

Child Burned While Starting a Fire

Mamie Vouteabage, a little girl residing at 27 Winter street, was nearly burned to death this morning while trying to build a fire at her home. The little one was removed to the Lowell hospital and at the time of going to press this afternoon the hospital officials stated that the child was in a critical condition.

The little one placed paper and wood in the stove and applied the match, and in some unaccountable way her clothing caught fire. She shouted at the top of her voice and attracted other occupants of the house who upon entering the room found the child lying on the floor, her clothing ablaze. Blankets and rugs were secured and wrapped around the little girl but be-

CAR TOPPLED OVER

Brakeman Had Narrow Escape From Serious Accident

While a large freight car was being shifted across Shattuck street on the branch track which runs between Middle and Market streets, at about 11:30 o'clock this morning one of the friction plates broke causing the car to topple over into the street. The car was headed for the office of the Lowell Gas Light Co. and undoubtedly would have crashed into the building but for the fact that there was a large wooden pole tilted to one side.

Patrick Brown, a brakeman, who was on the top of the car at the time it toppled over, had a narrow escape from being killed, his presence of mind being in all probability the only thing which saved him from being killed or seriously injured.

The car, No. 68192, which is 35 feet long and the property of the New York Central line, was about half-filled with grain consigned to J. B. Cover and was being slowly pushed along the branch line by an engine.

When the rear end of the car had just cleared the westerly sidewalk on Shattuck street the car started to topple to the left. It continued to go and would have fallen over but for the wooden pole in the street. The front trucks of the car were lifted off the rails while the rear trucks stayed on the rails but the rear end of the car rose in the air.

When the front trucks left the rails there was a crash of splintering wood caused by the trucks tearing through the planking between the rails. The noise attracted many people to the scene.

For several hours the car remained tilted on one side and leaning against the pole.

Brakeman Brown had presence of mind to grab hold of the edge of the roof. When the car struck the pole Brown slid off to the ground none the worse for his experience. In speaking of the incident a railroad man stated that the inexperienced brakeman will jump when a car starts to topple over, and probably meet with injury or death, but the experienced man will stick to the car and in most instances escapes injury.

It was only a short time ago that a similar accident occurred at this crossing excepting that on the other occasion the car toppled in the opposite direction and crashed through the private office of the manager of the Lowell Gas Light Co. and the private office of the manager of the Lowell Gas Light Co. and the private office of the manager of the Lowell Gas Light Co.

During the afternoon the car was removed by a wrecking crew.

SUPREME COURT

Hears Argument on Greatest Contest Over Hepburn Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The validity of the so-called Carmack amendment to the Hepburn rate law of 1906 was today before the supreme court of the United States for argument. This amendment makes the initial carrier of interstate commerce liable for damages occurring in transportation not only on its own lines but on connecting lines. The contest is probably the greatest of all of the legal controversies which have arisen out of the passage of the Hepburn rate law.

Attacking the constitutionality of the law at this time are the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. and the Louisville & Nashville Co. In addition to these claiming damages for shipments over these roads, Attorney General Wickersham has come forth to defend the constitutionality of the law. Briefs have been filed in the cases and the matter was set down for oral argument today.

From two primary points of view do the railroads attack the law. They claim that the requirement that the initial carrier shall issue a receipt or bill of lading for the property to be transported and be liable for any loss throughout the transportation compels one railroad company to be responsible for another company's errors. The other point is that the provision declaring that no contract shall exempt the initial carrier from this liability for loss on the connecting carrier destroys or interferes with liberty of contract.

"It is true it is an inconvenience for the shipper," says the brief of the Atlantic Coast Line in the case brought against it by the Riverside Mills, "to have to locate the actual wrongdoer, but it also is an inconvenience for the initial carrier to do so. And why should these inherent difficulties be visited upon the initial carrier?"

The answer of the government to this particular argument is that of "public policy."

QUIT CLAIM DEED DYNAMITE BOMB

To the Shedd Property Received Dropped Into a Sewer Excavation

Mayor John F. Meehan today received a quit claim deed transferring the Shedd property in Rogers street, which is to be used for park purposes, to the city.

The deed is signed by Freeman B. Shedd and Amy F. Shedd in the presence of F. F. Rowe and Charles J. Wier, the latter acting as justice of the peace.

City Solicitor Duncan examined the document and finding it to be made out in proper form turned it over to the mayor, the latter accepting it on behalf of the city. The deed will be turned over to the park department to be recorded.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Somebody dropped a powerful dynamite bomb into a sewer excavation in the heart of New York's East Side Italian district early today and the explosion which followed rocked the earth for a radius of several hundred yards as if by an earthquake. Two nearby tenement houses were badly damaged but all the occupants escaped injury. Two hundred windows were broken and damage estimated at $4000 was done to walls and store fronts. The shock was so severe that all the tenement dwellers in the two buildings were thrown from their beds. They fled in panic to the streets, where the police reserves cared for them until order could be restored. No clue to the identity of the bomb-thrower could be found by the police. None of the tenement letters would admit having received threatening letters.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. John J. Inglis and Miss Margaret E. O'Meara were married this morning at 2 o'clock, with a nuptial mass in the chapel of the Immaculate Conception rectory, by Rev. Lawrence E. Tighe, O. M. I. The groom was attended by Thomas H. Gallagher, and the bridesmaid was Miss Josephine O'Meara. The bride was attired in white satin with pearl trimmings and wore a veil of point d'esprit and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a white dress with yellow mesquite. After the ceremony a reception for immediate relatives was held at the home of the bride, 9 Harrison street. The couple were the recipients of many costly and useful gifts. The bridegroom left on an extended trip to New York, after which they will be at home to their friends at 53 Hampshire street.

dependent candidate. The convention empowered the committee of four to nominate a candidate for lieutenant-governor, but this action was illegal according to a decision of the Massachusetts ballot law commission. Mr. Cassidy will be the only candidate bearing the word "democratic" inasmuch as Thomas P. Riley of Malden, who had taken out nomination papers as democratic citizen candidate for the lieutenant-governorship has withdrawn in Mr. Cassidy's favor.

When the democratic state convention assembled in Faneuil hall on Oct. 6 there were three candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, Congressman Foss, Charles S. Hamlin, and former State Senator James H. Vahey.

The balloting for the nominee was by the Australian system and two ballots were taken without result. Mr. Hamlin withdrawing after the first ballot. A motion to proceed to a third ballot and a motion to adjourn the convention subject to the call of the chair precipitated a small riot. After a squad of police had succeeded in restoring order the leading partisans of Messrs. Foss and Vahey held a conference. The agreement to nominate Mr. Mansfield followed and was ratified by the convention and the balance of the ticket, with the exception of lieutenant-governor, was named.

The committee of four, however, was unable to agree and at length the democratic state committee conducted a mail poll of the delegates to the convention. This ballot gave Mr. Foss a majority. Yesterday Mr. Hamlin withdrew as a candidate and the atmosphere was cleared today by the withdrawal of Mr. Mansfield.

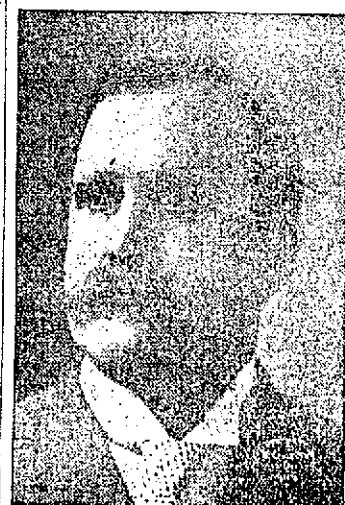

The campaign will be begun immediately.

When I was nominated for governor by the democratic convention at Faneuil hall it was under the express condition and solemn pledge that I should withdraw if the committee of four appointed at the same time should agree upon another candidate. The committee has so agreed that it only remained for me to withdraw accordingly. I have kept my pledge and I have withdrawn. All arguments that can fairly be used against a candidate before nomination are legitimate and proper. But as the convention has spoken through its committee and has now made a nomination any personal views of mine are overshadowed and over-ruled and the will of the democratic party must prevail.

Final decision, however, was not reached until Charles S. Hamlin had withdrawn from the contest for governor and Thomas P. Riley of Malden, whose nomination papers for lieutenant-governor as a "democratic progressive" were filed Monday, had given written notice of his withdrawal.

Then with Foss and Cassidy the only candidates before the committee, the ticket was chosen.

As the state ballot law commission has ruled that the nominating committee of four has no authority to nominate a candidate for lieutenant gov-

EUGENE FOSS. Who Becomes the Regular Democratic Nominee

error, its vote for Cassidy has merely the force of an endorsement. There will be no regular democratic candidate for lieutenant governor on the ballot. Cassidy's name will appear as "democratic citizen" that being the designation of his nomination papers filed Monday.

Induced Riley to Quit

The withdrawal of Riley as a candidate for lieutenant governor was brought about yesterday afternoon after a protracted conference, in which Eugene N. Foss, Martin M. Lonsbury, Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the democratic state committee, Daniel J. Riley, law partner of Riley, and John F. McDonald, chairman of the executive committee of the state committee, took part in at the law offices of Riley and Riley, a Beacon street.

It was said last night that had Riley remained in as a candidate for second place the nominating committee would still have remained deadlocked over the governorship.

Riley, it is claimed, insisted up to the last moment on staying in and required all the pressure his friends could exert to induce him to quit. Up to 3 p. m. yesterday Riley was telling his friends on the street that he wouldn't get out, but at 4 p. m. Chairman Macleod carried over to the committee room at the hotel Bellevue Riley's withdrawal.

Crowley Imposes Condition

When the committee met yesterday afternoon Major Robert J. Crowley, who had in his pocket Charles S. Hamlin's withdrawal, insisted that before the governorship was taken up Riley's withdrawal must be in the hands of Sec. Hayes of the nominating committee.

"This committee," said he, "has agreed or had agreed on Thomas P. Cassidy of Adams for second place on the ticket. Mr. Cassidy came to Boston Monday with the understanding that he had been unanimously selected as the candidate for lieutenant governor. Until Riley's withdrawal is in the hands of the secretary of this committee I refuse to do any further business."

A recess was then taken until 3 p. m. to enable the Foss men on the committee to bring about Riley's withdrawal. When they reassembled at that hour Chairman Macleod had the necessary document in his possession. It was said that Riley had given it with the understanding that Foss would receive the gubernatorial nomination from the committee. Major Crowley said that he would not talk of the governorship until Mr. Riley's withdrawal was deposited with Sec. Hayes of the committee.

Macleod said that he would not take the responsibility of handing in Riley's withdrawal at that time. He gave it to his associate on the committee, Joseph A. Maynard, who said that he would assume all responsibility in the matter. The latter handed it to Secretary Hayes.

Then Major Crowley produced Charles S. Hamlin's withdrawal, which read as follows:

"The present situation removes my name from further consideration under any circumstances. This is final and irrevocable."

Maynard Nominates Foss

Maynard then nominated Foss for governor and each of the four committees voted for him and he was declared the nominee.

On motion of Crowley, Thomas P. Cassidy was then endorsed as the candidate for lieutenant governor and he received all the votes. It was explained that to all intents and purposes Cassidy is the regular democratic nominee, although his name will appear on the official ballot election day as "democratic citizen" on nomination papers.

The committee then proceeded to fill the vacancy caused by the refusal of O. Z. E. Charest of Holyoke to stand as the convention nominee for secretary of the commonwealth, by nominating Charles J. Martell of 27 Pierce street, Ward 24, Boston.

Ball Commissioner Morris Francis Murphy took the acknowledgment of the four committeemen to the Martell papers.

Riley Predicts Victory

Thomas P. Riley issued a statement last evening, in which he explained his reasons for withdrawing from the contest, saying:

"As upon my withdrawal from the contest for the lieutenant governorship seemed to depend the harmonizing of all interests, including the withdrawal of Mr. Mansfield from the nomination which had been given to him only as a matter of trust, as well as the active and energetic support of Mr. Foss' candidacy by both Mr. Hamlin and Mr. Vahey, I cheerfully yielded my personal ambition and desire, believing that the success of the party is and should be considered far and above the success of any individual."

"I earnestly trust that the loyal democracy of Massachusetts, regardless of personal or factional alignment, will now march in solid phalanx behind our candidate, and with such assistance as we are bound to receive from the independent republicans of Massachusetts, who are anxious to throw off the yoke of control which has saddled upon them a most unsatisfactory conditions, we shall be able to sweep the state with Foss and victory."

COURT DECISION

In Cases Involving Tax Titles

City Solicitor William W. Duncan has received decisions of the court relative to three cases brought against the City of Lowell for the purpose of recovering money paid for tax titles.

The cases were brought by Dennis E. and Edward F. Connors and Joseph Walsh, and involved the validity of 47 tax deeds. There were 20 questions of law for the court to decide.

In the case of Walsh against the city the court found for the plaintiff on all items in the declarations, 18 deeds or titles being involved.

In the case of Dennis E. Connors, there were 21 titles and the court found for the plaintiff on 14 and for the defendant on seven.

There were eight titles involved in the case of Edward F. Connors and the court found for the plaintiff in four and for the defendant in four.

City Solicitor Duncan states that he will appeal to the supreme judicial court and he was given to understand that the defendants would also do the same.

A WEALTHY MAN

IS CHARGED WITH STEALING A GOOSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Samuel Bernstein, wealthy New Yorker, has been summoned to appear in the first criminal court, that city, next Saturday morning and answer a charge of attempting to steal a goose.

Mr. Bernstein said it was a duck, but insists that he did not try to steal it.

The fowl in question belongs to Essex county, and was of a flock in Weequahic park. According to park employees Bernstein seized it, wrapped it in a blanket, jumped into a carriage and was driving away with it when arrested by a park policeman.

Mr. Bernstein had deposited $10 to guarantee his appearance in court.

He declares his predicament is the result of his trying to do a humane act. While driving through the park, he turned to avoid colliding with an automobile, and his carriage ran over a duck, breaking its leg. He says he was going to take the duck to see if he could have the injury mended when he was arrested by the policeman.

Men armed with piteforks ran toward him. Fearing violence, he claims to have sprung into the carriage and drove to the exit where he told the park policeman he would pay for the damage to the duck, but that instead he was arrested.

IN POLICE COURT

Davidson Street Assault Case Heard

The sequel to a beefsteak in Davidson street last Sunday was aired in police court this morning when Agala Ambrosavitch was arraigned on a complaint charging her with assault and battery on George Striba. She admitted that she was guilty and it looked as though the trial was to be a short one but when the complainant said she hit him with a plate she denied that saying she struck him with a shot and only did so after he had assaulted her.

According to the testimony offered the defendant conducts a boarding house in Davidson street and the complainant formerly boarded with her and recently when he left her house a bitter feeling grew up between the two. Last Sunday one of the boarders had some beer in the house and invited a number of friends to partake. The complainant was one of the invited guests and the party was in full blast when the defendant entered the house. When she saw Striba she ordered him out and in order to assist him in making a rapid exit she took off one of her shoes and struck him over the head with it, inflicting three gashes on his forehead.

He claims that after she struck him with the shoe he ran out of the house and she followed him and struck him with a plate, but she denied using a plate.

The court after considering the evidence in the case found the defendant guilty and ordered her to pay a fine of $12.

Drunken Offenders

Jeremiah Murphy, who, while under the influence of liquor yesterday afternoon grew oratorical and addressed several gatherings in Central and Market streets, appeared in court this morning and pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being drunk, inasmuch as he is on parole from the state farm he will be returned to that institution.

Frank E. McLaughlin was sentenced to four months in jail. James J. Mead was fined $6, five first offenders were fined $2 each and several simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

In the case of Negep Hanack, charged with assault and battery, the defendant was found guilty and a fine of $10 imposed.

Kathern Moses was also found guilty of assault and battery and she was fined $12.

Zygmunt Kapala, charged with assault and battery, was found guilty and fined $10.

RACE PROBLEM

DISCUSSED BY AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—The race problem, mission work among the Indians, the Hawaiians, and the Porto Ricans and the education and religious training of the children of the "poor whites" of the south were all touched upon today at the 64th annual meeting of the American Missionary Association held here in connection with the triennial council of the Congregational church. The sessions of the Congregational councils were suspended today in order that the delegates might give their entire attention to the association's program.

Late yesterday the national council by a rising vote adopted a resolution declaring for a closer fellowship with the Protestant Episcopal church in faith and worship and providing for the appointment of a committee of the council to confer with representatives of the Protestant Episcopal church toward bringing about the desired result.

President Northrup of the University of Minnesota presided at the meeting of the missionary association. President Woodworth of Tougaloo College, Mississippi, declared that negroes would be given the same opportunity for full education as the whites and not be limited to common school, industrial, agricultural, moral and religious training.

LEAVE TO WITHDRAW

Busy Meeting of the Aldermen Held Last Night—Offer of the Spaulding Land is Accepted—Other Matters

The board of aldermen held a busy meeting last evening but took no action on the proposed increase of city laborers' pay, owing to the absence of Aldermen Adams and Carmichael, though the latter arrived at the meeting shortly before adjournment.

The board accepted the report of the committee on streets recommending leave to withdraw on the petition for the extension of Dummer street.

After a brief debate the board accepted the offer of 1875 feet of land between Crescent and Parker streets for park purposes by Hannah M. Spaulding, refused to consider the purchase of land about the Washington school for playground purposes, postponed action on the sale of the Fayette street school property, turned over the matter of an appropriation of $5000 for an auto patrol to the appropriations committee, and signed the sewer loan providing for the building of new or the extension of old sewers to the number of an even dozen.

The board also passed upon the laying out and accepting of several streets and the building of sidewalks in others, and passed upon a big list of routine matters.

The first matter taken up was the continuing of the assessments on the 12 sewers and the signing of the sewer loan. This provides for sewers in Aberdeen, Bond, Crawford, Cumberland, East Merrimack, Front, Glenwood, Lawrence, Stackpole, West Manchester, White and Wilder streets.

The board referred the matter of an appropriation of $5000 for an auto patrol to the appropriations committee, along with the application of the board of health for an added appropriation of $7700 to finish out the year.

On the motion of Alderman Brennan seconded by Alderman Connors, action on the question of the city laborers' pay was postponed until the next meeting.

The question of the sale of the Fayette street school property at the present time developed a brief debate. Alderman Brennan moved that the matter be referred to the committee on appropriations, and the motion was seconded by Alderman Connors.

Alderman Qua objected on the ground that the property was necessary as a polling booth until after the fall elections, and that the action suggested would put the thing up to the mayor. Alderman Qua did not oppose the final disposal of the property, however.

Alderman Brennan suggested that some of the land had been put in the hands of the park commission, which had not been consulted and final action on the matter was postponed until the next meeting.

The board accepted the report of the committee on lands and buildings recommending leave to withdraw on the proposition that the city purchase four lots of land about the Washington school for playground purposes, because of excessive cost.

There was a sharp debate on the acceptance of the land between Crescent and Parker streets offered the city for park purposes by Hannah M. Spaulding. Alderman Connors brought up the matter of the cost to turn the land into a park if accepted.

Alderman Qua said that all it would require would be about $100, unless the park commission wished to make some special disposal of the property.

Alderman Brennan moved that the matter be referred to the park commission, and the motion was seconded by Alderman Connors. The motion was lost on a strictly party vote. The board then voted to accept the park with the thanks of the city of Lowell to the donor. Alderman Brennan and Connors dissenting.

The majority report of the street committee recommending leave to withdraw on the petition for the extension of Dummer street.

When divided on two days, first day: Running (100 meters), broad jump, putting the weight (best hand), high jump, running (400 meters). Second day: Hurdle race (100 meters), discus (best hand), pole jump, javelin (best hand), running (1500 meters).

BOXING GOSSIP

Joe Grim and Terry Fitzgerald meet at Shandorah Oct. 23.

Dick Nelson and Dixie Kid have been matched to meet at New York Oct. 27.

Tommy Kilbane and Young Gills will furnish the Nashville fans with a 10-round bout Oct. 21.

Johnny Gallant, the bantam-weight, will meet Young Nelson in one of the preliminaries to the Eddie Murphy-Johnny Dohan match at Manchester Friday night.

Now that Jim Barry has beaten Sandy Ferguson there is much speculation as to whether Little will give Barry and endeavor to groom him for a chance at Johnson.

Amateur boxing tournaments have won a popular place with the New York followers of the game. Another tourney has been arranged to take place at the Irish-American A. C. next Tuesday and Thursday nights.

In connection with the Stanley Ketchel, which he learned upon his arrival at New York yesterday, Jack Johnson said it was too bad.

"Ketchel was a great fighter," said Johnson, "and gave me a better fight than Tommy Burns. There was no sign of yellow in his makeup."

DIAMOND NOTES

D. A. Fletcher, the promoter of a new major baseball league, who has succeeded in stirring up all the big men in control of organized clubs and circuits, is said to have enlisted the financial support of not only several leading theatrical managers but also that of Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason, who pulled off the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno last July.

Gleason owns a ball park in San Francisco and has been in baseball for several years, while Rickard was ready to take a number of star players on a tour of the country this fall when the national commission put a stop to the plan.

Fletcher has been hobnobbing with Rickard and Gleason, it is reported, and they have expressed a willingness to go ahead with him. They have been visiting several eastern cities on the quiet lately and are said to have looked over sites for proposed ball grounds.

According to a well informed New Yorker Fletcher's agents have been extremely busy in this city. It is said they have considered the advisability of locating a club either in the Bronx or in Long Island City near the new Queensboro Bridge entrance and not far away from the proposed station on the Long Island extension of the Pennsylvania road. They have consulted with local capitalists, it is stated, and have reported to Fletcher that he will meet with encouragement if he decides to include New York in his new organization.

Word comes from Chicago and Pittsburgh that Fletcher has agents in those cities who are trying to drum up backers of the proposed venture, while it is also rumored that he may have a chance to form some sort of a combination with the present American Association, which is still anxious to expand its circuit.

There is no doubt that Fletcher's activity, covering the big leagues considerably, even though they have been ridiculing his plans and have been convinced that he cannot raise enough money to carry out his plans. But the fact that he has signed numerous ball players to provisional contracts and is going after more has created the impression that even if he fails to make good in the long run he is going to trouble.

The players in both big leagues are organizing a protective association. There is no longer any reason to doubt this statement, for certain disgruntled persons have been doing much missionary work and seem to be confident that they will accomplish a lot. Meanwhile the club owners in the big leagues are quietly signing their best players, as many as possible, for next year so that they will not be caught napping. In some instances, it is said, the club owners have acceded to exorbitant demands, but it is also true that they have learned that many players for some unknown reason are not willing to talk business just now.

It is alleged that Holt struck Sabie C. Singleton, aged 30, colored, of 772 Shawmut avenue early Friday morning, October 7. Singleton fell to the sidewalk and fractured his skull the injury resulting in his death last Monday afternoon.

Mayor Howard was a witness for the government. Counsel for the defendant claimed there was a conspiracy against the defendant.

Thomas Whalen, charged with the larceny of a dress suit case in Topsfield, was sentenced to the house of correction for two months. James J. Corrigan of Peabody, charged with creating a disturbance on a street car, was fined $30.

His skull was fractured and he remained in an unconscious condition for several minutes. He was able to go to his home unassisted, but last Thursday was removed to the City hospital. He died Monday afternoon.

When Singleton died Monday afternoon the police were notified by the hospital authorities and yesterday morning a warrant for Holt's arrest was granted.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was 16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

Judge Parker says it is reported that Col. Roosevelt will soon come out with a statement to the effect that he will not be a candidate for the presidency in 1912. The report, it is needless to say, is not credited among Roosevelt's most intimate friends.

PLANNING THE GREATER BOSTON

The Boston Elevated Railway company will soon have a new subway or tunnel line connecting with Harvard square. The tunnel is now nearly finished. It is under Main street, Cambridge, for the greater part of the way. The excavation goes on underneath without any interference with the cars on the surface. At one point in every half mile or thereabouts there is a side opening from which the material of the excavation is taken. These openings, together with occasional airholes along the line of the tunnel, are the only surface indications that there is anything going on beneath. When the tunnel shall have been opened to travel the distance between Harvard square and Park street, some four miles, can be covered in eight minutes.

The Elevated company is also building an elevated road out into Cambridge. These lines will unite Cambridge and other suburban cities so closely with Boston that annexation will become inevitable.

Cambridge, Somerville and several other outlying cities will eventually become part and parcel of the Greater Boston which will then be one of the greatest and grandest cities in the land.

THE BABY FARMING INDUSTRY

The New England states, particularly Massachusetts and New Hampshire, should be grateful to Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly on account of the able manner in which she investigated the evils of baby farming as carried on in some of the New England states. The evidence which she has collected proves very conclusively that the laws in regard to this matter are particularly vague and inadequate in the state of New Hampshire.

In that state she has found a number of cases in which children were allowed to pine away with disease without any proper effort to save their lives. She has secured evidence also which may go far to prove that some of the little waifs were actually neglected with a view to securing insurance on their lives.

That particular crime has been stamped out of some of the European countries, and has been carefully guarded against in this, although occasionally it may be practiced for a time without being detected.

We have no doubt that the revelations which Miss O'Reilly has brought to public attention will result in legislation not only in New Hampshire but in other states to prevent any abuse of this kind in the future.

Wherever Miss O'Reilly went in the course of her investigation she met with the most cordial cooperation of the authorities, some of whom were astonished to find the abuses and even cruelties that flourished under various disguises without being suspected of wrong-doing.

In all probability her crusade will result in the enactment of more stringent laws in several states for the regulation of baby farms, children's homes and children's boarding houses.

RADICAL REFORMS IN ENGLAND

There is a great deal expected of the conference committee now in session for the purpose of bringing about an agreement between the house of lords and the house of commons in England. The question of reforming the house of lords is the main issue before the democracy of England. There is a strong public sentiment against the idea of allowing a hereditary body to nullify the measures passed by the representatives of the people. In fact the time has come when the British democracy will not tolerate it any longer.

The king is exercising his influence in favor of a compromise and various schemes have been proposed for that purpose. The liberal leaders insist upon some reform that will be effective in curtailing the powers of the lords so that they can no longer obstruct popular legislation.

In all probability the scheme that will be adopted is one under which a measure passed three successive times in as many different sessions of the house of commons will become law without the concurrence of the upper house.

That will probably be the most effective way although a somewhat tedious one to overcome the obstruction of the upper house.

It is quite probable, also, that the hereditary feature of the upper house will be eliminated so that no peer will sit and vote in the house of lords in virtue of the fact that as the oldest son of his father he inherits a peerage.

But it is reported on what seems to be good authority that a still more radical reform is to result from this conference. It is proposed that not only Ireland, but England, Scotland and Wales will each have parliaments of their own.

This change would greatly simplify and improve the government of the various parts of the empire, and give the people the privilege and power of legislating for themselves in all local affairs.

It would place the monarchy in the same relation to the different parts of the empire as the federal government stands in this republic. In all probability the monarchical power would not be nearly so broad as the federal power in the United States. The king of England would not exercise half the executive authority that is now exercised by the president of the United States. As a matter of fact he does not exercise as much authority at the present time.

With this change it would seem that the people of England would have a government possessing practically all the advantages of a republic, and free from many of its worst features such as the frequent elections and the difficulty of giving effect to the will of the people.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE BABY'S FACE

Who can fathom the fairy grace That dwells in a velvety baby face? Who can fathom the fairy gleam That glances from a baby's gleam? And who can unravel the secret will That sleeps in the nest of a baby's smile? The hungry and lingering joy we know When our rough face touches a babe's, and, lo, we feel the touch of the velvet skin And the warm, sweet, luscious skin therein!

A baby's face—how can one tell Its mystic charm and its holy spell? Rough hearts go by, rude, rugged men, From the dust and grime of mart and town, But under the cloak of their outer day, Love's hunger sleeps their souls within. And when they see a baby's face—Round and rosy, and sweet with grace—They pause, as you and I, to press The velvet joy of its warm caress.

How much it holds, how deeply lays, Within its soft, and gentle maze, The charm to soothe, the charm to heal, The hurt that lives so often here! Is like a little bloom-o'-day, And, like a little dower, it brings The sweetness of a thousand springs; The balsam of the best-made well Is in the touchstone of its spell.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

In memory of Samuel J. Kitson, the sculptor, his widow, Mrs. Kitson, has placed two marble statues, executed from his models, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Broadway, New York city.

J. Pierpont Morgan has presented to the Boston Public Library a copy of the catalogue of "Cut Jewels and Precious Works of Art, the Property of J. Pierpont Morgan." This is one of the famous "Morgan catalogues," all of which are issued in limited editions and for private distribution only. Catalogues have already been issued of Mr. Morgan's Alpine books, miniatures and paintings in his London house, all being issued in handsome special bindings, and printed at the Chiswick Press in England. They cost several hundred dollars each, and many are with hand-painted plates. The catalogue of jewels and precious works of art is in royal folio size, with ninety-four plates and thirteen illustrations. The text was compiled by Mr. Morgan, and by C. G. Williamson, Litt. D., of London. It describes some of the most valuable pieces of the cut-jewel collection, which includes ecclesiastical and royal gems from the fourteenth to the nineteenth century. The frontispiece of the volume is a silver gilt page, a tablet representing Christian symbols, heavily encrusted with jewels.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is writing a series of articles in the London Times against woman suffrage, and her chief argument is that the movement has failed in America and that American women are against it.

Booth Tarkington, according to the press reports, is to "give up" writing plays, and will devote himself to fiction. He has been giving up writing plays for the last two or three seasons, according to the press reports, and each time he has given up his output of plays has increased. Ditto income from royalties, comments the New York Tribune.

Many interesting landmarks in Rome are slowly coming down in order to make the view of the imposing monument to Victor Emmanuel less obstructed. It has become necessary, in order that Romans may see the monument, that the "Re Galaturno" down the mile-long Corso to the Piazza del Popolo, that opens on the ancient Via Flaminia, to pull down some of the finest palaces.

Among the latest of these edifices that have been demolished are the Torlonia palace and the Nepoti, which were situated in the space between

A NEW ECZEMA REMEDY.

The new compound, Cadum, has astonished those who used it. Many cures of eczema and other distressing skin diseases are reported, and the remarkable thing in most cases is the quickness of the cure. Eczema is not a blood disease, but a skin affection. It cannot be cured by internal medicines. External treatment is absolutely necessary. Since the introduction of Cadum, eczema is now recognized as a curable disease, and that tormenting affliction has been robbed of its terrors. Cadum stops the itching at once and begins the healing process soon after it is applied. It is also good for pimples, blotches, hives, tetters, psoriasis, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, scabs, itching, piles, etc. 10c and 25c a box.

the capital and the city of Rome are now dominated by the Papal government, which, when combined with the narrow streets of Rome, in the old carnival days, were stretched across from house to house for the purpose of the Papal government to keep the wild carnival of the Corso and caused so many accidents that the custom was abolished in 1883.

The beautiful Palazzo di Venezia, built by Pope II, from which he often watched the carnival games, is also being taken down for the sake of the Victor Emmanuel monument. It is to be re-erected, however, in the neighboring Piazza di San Marco. The suggestion of Signor Riccio, minister of fine arts, the interior colonnade will probably be left standing. It will make a picturesque link between the medieval beauty of the great Palazzo di Venezia, which the Hapsburg government inherited from the Republic of Venice in 1797, and which is now the seat of the Austrian embassy, and the Vatican, and the classic splendor of Saeconi's noble memorial. The monument was begun twenty-five years ago, and will be dedicated next year.

It is planned to have the formal opening on the night of November 1. Members will be admitted, as usual, on presentation of their membership tickets for the ensuing year. Don't Pay a Dentist Too Much

Dr. Thomas Jefferson King, Dr. King's "Natural Gum" sets of teeth absolutely defy detection.

Your local dentist will charge you about four times as much as I would—he doesn't do much business, so he must "get it out of you"; besides he doesn't know how to do it painlessly, and, in nine cases out of ten, he performs operations with old-fashioned instruments, which enable him to do only inferior work. My inventions I control solely, and when anything new comes out I buy it. Remember—my patrons get the latest and best, and for less money.

Best set of teeth $5. Gold fillings $1 up, other fillings 50c; painless extraction free when sets are ordered.

yet secured their new season tickets. Authority was given to urge the managers to secure the tickets as soon as possible to insure a comfortable season. The opening night will be a social event, as is customary, and refreshments will be provided. The exhibition will then be allowed to remain about three weeks, and the general public will be admitted on the usual nominal terms. The summer exhibition still remains at the house, but will be taken down at the end of the current week. It is an extraordinarily good collection and merits much more attention than it has been attracting of late.

A BAD PRACTICE

Children Applying for Aid at Charity Dept.

The board of charities held a meeting at city hall last evening with Dr. McCarty in the chair and all the members present.

A communication was received from the state board of charities which called attention to the fact that according to a new state law all lying-in hospitals are obliged to secure a license and it was voted to refer the matter to Supt. Conley, to be carried into effect.

Supt. Conley reported the receipt of a communication from the local board of health relative to the use of a public drinking fountain at the Chemsford Street hospital.

On motion of the board it was voted to refer the matter to the superintendent. The principal feature of the meeting was the discussion of the practice of children calling at the office of the department for lines or orders for supplies, which is strenuously objected to by the state board. Clerk William F. Gallagher reported that he received a communication from the state board last year which urged a discontinuance of this practice, and he expected another one soon. All of the members agreed that it was bad for children, and believed that something should be done in the matter. The less they know of the department the better it would be for them, one member stated. It was voted that the women or men who are receiving assistance from the city can not call in person they should be cut out altogether. It was voted to have the superintendent or clerk use his best judgment in correcting the existing condition.

Considerable routine business was considered and a number of cases which the department has been called upon to assist were taken over and acted upon.

The board voted to send Secretary Gallagher to Boston Wednesday to attend a hearing given by the state board of charities on the question of pauper settlement.

THE POOR INDIAN

Rev. Mr. Kennigott Describes Him

Rev. George F. Kennigott gave the first in a series of six illustrated lectures at the First Unitarian church, last evening, the subject being "My Friend, the Indian." He traced the red man from New York to the great northwest, illustrating his talk by a fine collection of pictures.

Mr. Kennigott stated that he found the saddest conditions existing in New York state, due to the Indian's anomalous position. The six tribes are governed by an Indian council, which is pagan in principle, and which believes in keeping the reservation intact. They are not under the laws of the state, except in criminal matters, and they cannot become citizens without sacrificing their birthright and withdrawing from the reservation. While some of the boys go to Indian schools, when they return home there is nothing for them to do, and they relapse into their former condition.

Mr. Kennigott showed the Winnebago and the Omahas, as they used to live and as they live now, demonstrating the work done by the schools. He finds that the great need in the west is for a chain of hospitals, where sick Indians can be properly cared for. The once warlike Sioux was shown in his uncivilized condition, and as he appears after being educated and Christianized. Strange to say, the Indians who were the fiercest fighters of the white men, appear to assimilate more readily than the less warlike tribes the white man's education. At least, this is the impression given by the pictures.

Mr. Kennigott also showed a series of beautifully colored pictures of natural scenery, especially that of the mountain region of Montana. The other lectures will be as follows: Oct. 26, "The Great Divide"; Nov. 1, "Where Ralls the Oregon"; Nov. 8, "The Golden Mist"; Nov. 15, "The Land of Sunshine"; Nov. 22, "The Painted Desert."

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

At the meeting of Garfield colony of Pilgrim Pathway, held last night, considerable business of importance was transacted. Under the good of the order the governor presented the plan. William A. Severance, a $10 gold piece in recognition of faithful service.

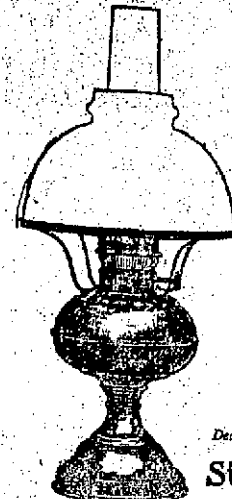

Betsy Ross Circle. Betsy Ross circle, 24 Ladies of the G. A. R., held a well attended and enjoyable meeting last night, the affair partaking of the nature of an anniversary gathering. One of the features of the evening was the presentation to the circle of a handsome gavel. Supper was served and an excellent program of singing variety given. Past Deputy Treasurer Hattie F. Perkins of Salem circle was present and was among those who addressed the meeting.

Div. 2, A. O. H.

A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held Monday night in Hibernian hall. Denis F. Lynch, president and considerable business was transacted. There were five initiations and ten applications for membership were received. The committee appointed to organize a military company, reported that the committee was meeting with great success and announced that the first drill would be held in Hibernian hall on Sunday, Oct. 23, at 2 p. m., to which all members are invited. After the regular meeting a social was held. There were remarks by Vice President Philip Hooley, Past State President Daniel J. Murphy, President Denis F. Lynch, John Walsh, Edward Monney, John P. Sheahan and Thomas F. Lynch; songs by James J. Carlin, J. Patrick Murphy, Patrick J. Ward, Timothy D. Finnegan and others.

The Famous Rayo

Gives the Best Light at Any Price

When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil lamp has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $5, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unflattering light of the low-priced Rayo.

Has a strong, durable shade-holder. This season's burner adds to the strength and appearance. Made of solid brass, nickel-plated, and easily polished.

COWS AND CHEESE TO BE DISCUSSED FOR NINE DAYS

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The fifth national dairy show is expected to be the largest and most interesting convention of its kind ever held. The doors of the Chicago Coliseum are open to the public from October 20 to the 29th. The show is going to be the chief subject of discussion, and experts in cheesemaking will give practical demonstrations for the benefit of the public.

Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. Read what these women say:

Camden, N. J.—"It is with pleasure that I send my testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, hoping it may induce other suffering women to avail themselves of the benefit of this valuable remedy."

"I suffered from pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and this valuable medicine shall always have my praise."—Mrs. W. P. Valentine, 902 Lincoln Ave., Camden, N. J.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am writing to tell you that I am pleased with your medicines. I had been sick for a long time with prolapsus. I heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I have found that it is the right kind of medicine for me. I felt relieved after taking one bottle and I kept on taking it till now I am well and strong, and am able to do my work."—Mrs. Henry Kossow, 472 Genesee St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

BIG DISTURBANCE

The Caribbean Sea Shaken by an Earthquake

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Oct. 19.—The Santa Clara observatory last night issued the following notice:

"The trouble in the Caribbean sea is more than a mere atmospheric disturbance. The seismographs here have been running wild on Oct. 15, 17, 18, reporting a significant effort a long distance to the east. Today's record has been continuous from the east and the south of about the same dimension. The seismic reports from this place have so far been confirmed from Washington, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Manitoba."

RADIUM SUPPLY

Britain Has Plenty of It

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Official announcement will be made today that the first 500 milligrams of radium have been produced in England from Cornish pitch blende. A continuous supply of British radium is thus assured for the future. When it is remembered that the total quantity of radium in existence at the present moment is only a few grammes, the importance of this statement to the medical and scientific world will immediately be understood. For the last eighteen months, work has been proceeding quietly at the Freeby section of the St. Ives consolidated mines in Cornwall, where pitch blende in being produced regularly in considerable quantities. From the pitch blende ore fair quantities of uranium oxide and other uranium products are daily being manufactured and the extraction and purification of radium bromides is now being worked out by continuous processes.

Sir William Ramsay, one of the foremost scientists of the age, conducted the experiments, and the result of his researches is the discovery of a process by which radium can be extracted from uranium in a period of under three months, as against the two years occupied under the system at present in use in Austria, where the bulk of what radium exists in the world hitherto has been obtained.

Sir William, after exhaustive researches, has also been able to produce from the Cornish pitch blende the rare element of polonium, a fact which in itself is startling and bound to create a stir in the medical councils of the world.

For the present, however, it is hopeless to expect any reduction of the present prohibitive price of radium, which is something like $100,000 per gramme.

SECRETARY KNOX

TO GET AN INCREASE IN HIS SALARY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—After March 4 next, Secretary of State Philander C. Knox probably will get $12,000 a year salary, equal to that of his fellow-members of the cabinet. The state department budget will make such recommendation.

Being a member of the senate when $2000 a year was added to the minister. Mr. Knox was barred from accepting the office of secretary of state by the constitutional provision that no member of congress may accept an office during the term for which he was elected. In order that he might be eligible for the higher post, congress repealed that part of the salary increase applying to the office of secretary of state.

Secretary Knox's term as senator would have ended March 4 next and he will then be in the power of congress to increase his salary from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

PARISH BAZAAR

TO BE OPENED IN SACRED HEART SCHOOL HALL.

The bazaar of the Sacred Heart parish, which is to open with a grand sacred concert next Sunday evening will be one of the red letter events in the history of that parish. It is particularly notable on account of the opening of the new parochial school hall, which is one of the proudest in the city of Lowell. It will accommodate nearly 1000 people, and is well adapted for the various forms of entertaining arranged for the various evenings during the bazaar. These entertainments will be of a musical, literary and dramatic character to be followed each evening by dancing which appeals to the young people.

A very large number of people are interested in making the bazaar a success. The sum of $750 will be given in prizes on the various tables. The awards will include a great variety of oil paintings, crayons, works of art, lace, embroidery, and all the other articles usually found in such a bazaar.

The opening concert will have excellent musical features that will repay those who attend. The bazaar proper will be formally opened for business on Monday evening, and will continue until October 30th. The people of the parish are particularly proud of the new parochial school building, and in this they are justified. Not only members of the parish but a great many friends from other parishes will take advantage of the bazaar to inspect the entire building.

FOR CONGRESS

Three Candidates After Capron's Place

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—Little interest attaches to today's state convention in infantry hall. It was practically certain before the delegates took their seats that the present state officers would all be re-nominated without opposition and that the party platform would be adopted as presented. The convention opened this morning with the machinery well arranged and ready to set in motion. The day's political interest centered in the second district republican congressional convention to be held in infantry hall after the adjournment of the state convention. Three candidates were announced for the nomination to succeed Congressman Capron who declined re-nomination after 14 years of service because of ill health. These candidates were: Former Governor George Utter of Westerly; General Walter Stines of Warwick and State Senator Edward Arnold of Coventry. Utter and Stines were regarded as the principals in the contest, it being freely expressed, before the convention that the expected failure of a nomination on the first ballot would be followed by a reversal of Arnold votes to former Governor Utter.

WELLMAN PARTY

THRILLING STORY

OF WELLMAN RESCUE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Man's first attempt to cross any ocean in an airship has failed, but Walter Wellman, five companions and a kitten, who essayed the voyage, are safe. The airship—the giant America—is a battered aerial derelict, abandoned at sea, perhaps still in the air, perhaps sunk beneath the waves with her costly equipment. When deserted she had been in the air probably 72 hours, a new world's record for dirigibles, and, driven by the wind, had travelled doubtless 800 miles. Whether the distance record for dirigibles—870 miles—also will be broken, remains to be computed.

Picked up by the steamship Trent yesterday morning off the North Carolina coast, Wellman and his fellow navigators are due in New York today. They left their craft only because she was in distress and blown so far from the lane of trans-Atlantic of the voyage with the British jets as the objective point, was hopeless. So, summoning aid by wireless, the difficult and dramatic transfer to the Trent was accomplished, and the America was left to the fate of the winds.

For an incident without parallel in history—the transfer of passengers from an airship to a steamship—most are were the details obtainable by wireless during the day. Wireless at all times more or less uncertain, was rendered more so by the tropical storm which swept northward, but last night New York stations in the vicinity of New York picked up from the Trent a word here and a word there, amplifying on the earlier despatches.

It was learned that Wellman had found it necessary to rid the airship of the burden of most of its gasoline, retaining only enough to reach land in the event the Trent had not come to the rescue. When the steamship headed the call of distress and drew near its aerial sister, Wellman shouted his predicament through a megaphone and decided that he would lower his lifeboat which swung from the dirigible's belly. As a precaution the Trent lowered her lifeboats which stood by until the transfer was effected and Wellman and his companions, even down to the frightened, squawking kitten, were safe on board the liner, surrounded by the excited passengers.

The rescue was accomplished at a time when two contingents awaited breathlessly the fate of the dirigible and her crew, a feeling that had become so acute here that President Taft had authorized the navy department and the revenue cutter service to send out vessels in search of the missing airship, which prior to the rescue, was last in communication by wireless with the Marconi station at Siasconset, Nantucket. At Atlantic City, Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Melvin Vaniman, wife of Wellman's chief engineer, were torn with anxiety, while every wireless station on the Atlantic coast was exerting efforts to pick up some news of the navigators.

Having been spoken by wireless, presumably in the vicinity of Nantucket at 12.45 p.m., on Sunday, it was a surprise when the news came that the America had encountered the Trent, homeward bound from Bermuda, in a latitude and longitude nearly 400 miles southward and only 250 miles northwest of Bermuda. Thrilling must have been the experiences of the America's commander and crew as they were thus swept out of their course.

Captain Down of the Trent flashed first news of the rescue in a message to the New York Times, which, with the Chicago Record-Herald and the London Daily Telegraph, contributed $25,000 for the purpose of the expedition.

Captain Down also advised Sanderson & Son, New York agents for the Royal Mail steamship packet line. Subsequently more details came in a despatch to the Associated Press.

The Motor Broken

Further wireless messages reaching New York last night say that one of the America's motors had broken, which made more serious the predicament created when all the gasoline that could be spared was cast into the sea. It is also probable that the craft had suffered severely from the jerking of its rat-like trail, or equilibrators, which served the triple purpose of elongated gasoline tank, balance and wireless "ground." Wellman had flashed by wireless to Siasconset that his ironous appendage, battered by the waves, had caused trouble and motors at times. Buffeted by the winds, it is likely that the equilibrators caused greater trouble in the America's unwilling southward journey.

The America, is, or was, 228 feet long and 52 feet in diameter, with a lifting capacity of 25,500 pounds. The envelope alone weighed two tons. There were three gasoline engines aboard, two of them from 30 to 60 horsepower for the propellers and a smaller one for the operation of a donkey engine. Taken as a whole the craft was practically the same in which Wellman made his two starfs for the North pole in 1907 and respectively. Neither of these attempts was successful, both were made from Spitzbergen. The first trip was abandoned when the America was driven toward a jagged cliff; the second was given up because of the breaking of a long trial rope, stored with provisions, not unlike the equilibrators of the trip just ended.

Mr. Wellman is 52 years old, and was born in Mentor, O. As a journalist and explorer he became interested in ballooning and has had great faith in the possibilities of exploration and voyaging by dirigibles.

His wife, Mrs. Vaniman, overjoyed that their husband was safe, but disappointed that the goal was not reached, hurried from Atlantic City to New York last night, ready to meet the returning voyagers with the arrival of the Trent tomorrow.

CAPTAIN OF THE TRENT

TELLS OF THE RESCUE

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP TRENT AT SEA, 12 midnight, October 18.—(By United Wireless).—To The Associated Press, New York. We sighted the airship America at 5 a. m. today. She signalled us by the Morse code, and the wireless played a wonderful part in rescuing me to stand by her till daylight. We kept a boat close by her till dawn broke when she signalled that she could not launch her life boat, and asked me to keep close in order that a line might be attached. We made several futile attempts to attach a line, when the America wireless told us she would come down to the water as soon as possible and drop her boat if I could stand by and pick the boat up.

Meanwhile the lifeboats kept as close to the airship as possible and finally she got off her men in her boat and cut adrift at a height of about five feet from the water.

This proved successful. The America immediately rose in the air and shortly afterward, at 8 o'clock, I had the pleasure of welcoming on board Mr. Wellman and his five lieutenants and a cat which seemed little the worse for its air experiences. I then picked up the boat and proceeded.

Wellman and his crew are honored guests on board. After a wash and a brush up they ate a hearty breakfast. The America was abandoned in latitude 35.18 north, longitude 63.13 west, four hundred and eight miles from Sandy Hook and the craft now having a great time among the clouds. The America was making a speed of about eight knots an hour when abandoned and when released drifted to the westward. Her motors had been broken and Wellman was out of his course. All hands were mighty glad at being rescued.

(Signed) Captain Down, Royal Navy Reserve, in command, S. S. Trent.

The foregoing dispatch from Captain Down was received in New York by The Associated Press after midnight last night (Tuesday), giving graphic details of the rescue that was described by wireless during the day, although differing slightly in the matter of latitude and longitude. It confirms earlier reports that the America's motors were disabled and the craft was in dire need of assistance.

TO MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT

TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Another attempt will be made to cross the Atlantic ocean in a dirigible balloon in the next year, according to a wireless message received by President Joseph Salus of the Wellman syndicate late last night. The message which was short came from Chief Engineer Melvin Vaniman of the America venture in answer to a query sent by Salus as to whether arrangements should be started for a new balloon trans-Atlantic trip.

"I believe that if we had the thing to do over again, it would prove a success," said Vaniman's message, which is taken to mean that enough knowledge of air currents was secured almost to guarantee crossing the ocean in another attempt.

President Salus last night flashed the following message by wireless to the daring aeronaut:

"Thank God you and crew are safe."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the care of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeits are as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

OFF TO CHICAGO

Athletics and Cubs Ready for Battle Tomorrow

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—The world's series contestants, members of the national commission, a few friends of each team and the 150 newspaper men who are covering the games left Philadelphia at 8:55 last night, bound for Chicago, to which the battleground now shifts, in a special train, run in Athletic and Cub sections.

In the first section are members of the National commission, the umpires and a few friends, the Athletics and the guests of the club and the Philadelphia reporters and many of the out-of-town correspondents. In the second section are the Chicago team and the Chicago reporters. A big crowd was at Broad street station to see the teams depart.

The crowd at yesterday's game fell a few hundred short of yesterday's, the total paid attendance being 24,957 and the total receipts $35,137.

The attendance for the two days was 51,438 and the total receipts $73,501.50. The share for the players for the two days is $33,183.21.

While on their way to Shibe park yesterday afternoon for the game five members of the Cubs had a narrow escape from possible serious injury. A taxicab in which they were riding ran into a mail wagon near Ridge avenue and 21st street.

Overall, Reulbach, Kling, Archer and Sheppard were in the taxicab. They were badly shaken up and Reulbach complained that his arm had been hurt, but after being rubbed out he declared he was all right.

The players were picked up by other machines following with the rest of the players. The taxicab was badly wrecked. Several hundred excited fans gathered about the wreck and it was only with difficulty that the players got away from the crowd.

Owing to great pressure being brought to bear upon the national commission and the Philadelphia club officials by the demands for reserved seat tickets for the third game to be played here in case the series makes that necessary, the commission has decided to follow out the plan adopted at Chicago and make an immediate sale of these tickets with the guarantee that if no third game here is necessary, all tickets so disposed of will be redeemed upon presentation at the place where purchased.

The rules under which the sale will be made have not been formulated but the prospects are that the sale will begin Thursday morning at places designated by the commission and that the number of tickets allowed each purchaser will be limited.

Mounted policemen prevented the scalping of tickets when the gate at 20th and Somerset streets, giving entrance to the outfield, was opened yesterday. Orders had been issued that all who bought the pastebords must go to their places at once. A number of scalpers bought tickets and then hawked them outside. Men, Lawson ordered the mounted men to disperse them and the scalpers were compelled to enter the grounds to escape being ridden down. A watch was then kept to prevent them from throwing the tickets over the fence to their friends.

The presence of D. A. Fletcher of Cincinnati, who hopes to float a new baseball league, has aroused considerable talk among the visiting baseball men. Mr. Fletcher is said to have the national commission and the owners of the major league clubs as well as some of the minor league clubs positively that the proposed league will be organized in the near future and that everything is being done to have the game start next week.

One star pitcher was outwitted last night by the president of his club but he declined to sign a contract for next season at any terms. The pitcher or frankly declared that he was waiting to see how the wind blows before he did anything.

It is reported that Pres. Zibbets of the Brooklyn club is entertaining many of his team here, and that other owners are doing all they can to show their friendship for the players, in the hope of preventing them from going over to the Fletcher forces.

Sen. Bruce of the national commission yesterday gave out the following memorial to Harry C. Pulliam, the late president of the National League:

"In the fall of 1909 a memorial was to the memory of Harry C. Pulliam was promulgated by the national commission, as follows:

"This series is the fifth one played under the auspices of the National commission. A year makes changes indeed. Harry C. Pulliam, one of the originators of these series, has passed away. His counsel in this body will be heard no more. Organized baseball never had a more zealous and devoted sponsor.

"In order, therefore, that his memory may forever remain green, it is directed by the national commission that a memorial card be printed and that on the day scheduled for the first game of the world's series in each year the same be distributed to all of the eligible players of the contesting clubs, the official umpires, scorers and business representatives as well as to the owners of the contesting clubs and the press, and that on the same day in each year the same be placed on the grave of Harry C. Pulliam at Louisville, Ky., a floral wreath as a token of the esteem in which he was held by every one connected with organized baseball."

The memorial is signed by Pres. D. B. Johnson of the American League.

ODDS CHANGING
CHICAGO SPORTS DROPPED A BARREL OF MONEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—As a result of the two decisive defeats administered to the Cubs by the Athletics, a large number of enthusiastic Chicago fans will continue to wear their summer overcoats all winter—and the winters in Chicago are sometimes very severe.

Here is what they were offering early yesterday afternoon, the most of it as it proved, at their own expense: Even money that Cubs would win today's game.

One to three that Cubs would win series in five games.

Four to five that Cubs would win series in six games.

Ten to nine on Cubs for the series.

Six to five that Brown would strike out more men than his opponent.

Three to two that Cubs would steal more bases than Athletics.

Even money that Cubs would get more hits than Athletics.

Two to one on the Game.

Notwithstanding their heavy losses on Monday, estimated to be $150,000, the fans came back stronger than ever yesterday, putting down bets of money at 2 to 1 that Mordecai Brown would turn the trick. Heavy commissions from Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other points were promptly covered.

One peculiarity of the betting was that nearly all the New York and Cincinnati money came with instructions to place on the Cubs. Detroit made a beautiful cleanup, getting even for previous losses when the Cubs defeated the Tigers for the world's championship.

The backers of Philadelphia again turned loose a bundle of money that would stagger the proverbial mule.

Contrary to expectations the Quakers again wanted odds. Six to five was first asked and refused. Then 9 to 10 was offered. Some small lots were, of course, placed at the above figures, but the bulk of the commissions were gotten on at even money.

Odds Changing Sides.

The biggest wager of the series developed early yesterday, when Charles Tennessee, rated as one of the shrewdest speculators in the country, succeeded in placing $30,000 to $10,000 that the Cubs would win the series. Prior to yesterday the price had been considerably longer, in fact, numerous large wagers were made with the Cubs having the price of 10 to 7.

Cub support, as soon as a chunk of support made its appearance there, a yard of equal proportions was forthcoming to take care of the Athletic end.

New York, which presumably has been preoccupied with its own clash between the Giants and the Yankees, sent in its first large commission on the series. About 50 per cent of this was support for the Cubs, and carried an "even money" stipulation.

Thousands of National League supporters, whose confidence had been only temporarily checked by defeat in Philadelphia on Monday, gathered at newspaper offices, around tickers and at other places yesterday and last night and tried to account for the second drubbing by the Philadelphia Americans in the world's series.

The loss of the game yesterday had a much more depressing influence, apparently, than the Monday defeat. Betsmen settled down last night and now hope seems to have taken the place of confidence.

Civic pride has the better of league loyalty in many instances, and some of the most ardent supporters of the Chicago American league team are hoping that Chance's men will win eventually.

YOUTH CAPTURED

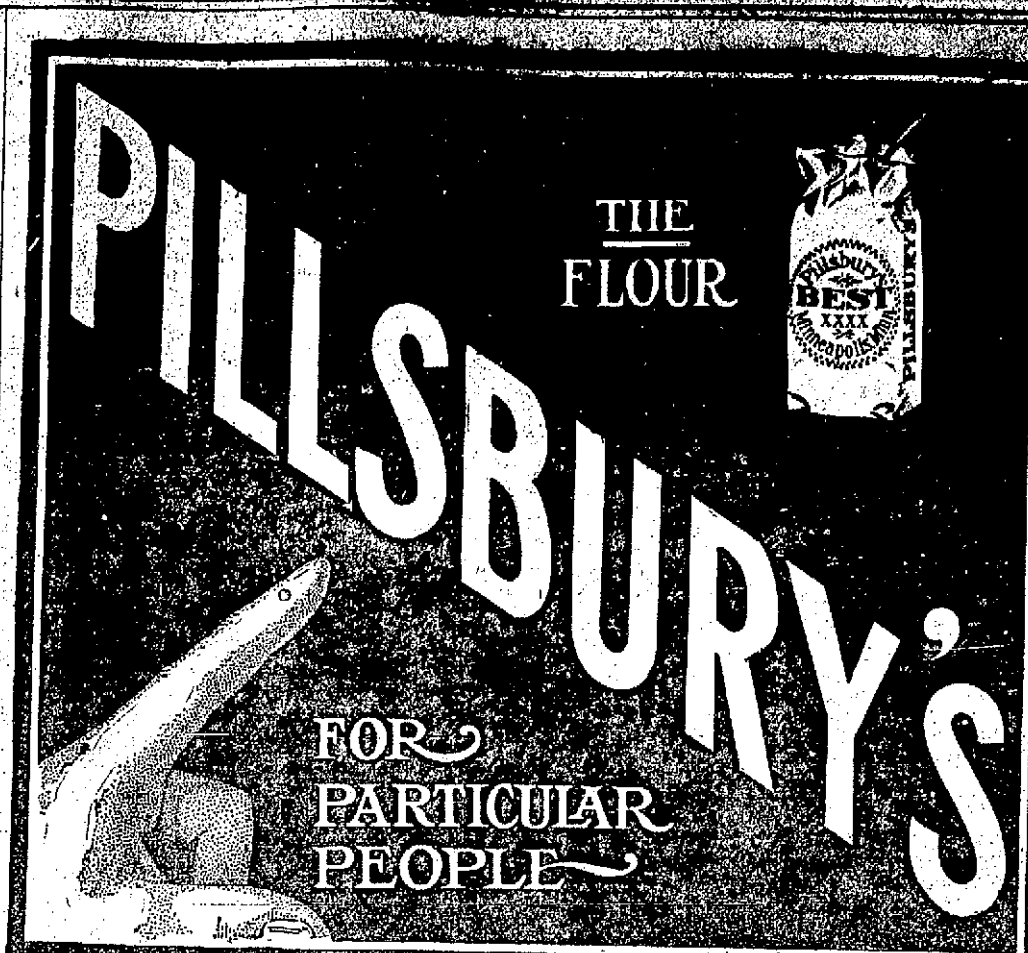

HE IS REGARDED AS KING OF BOY TRAVELERS

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Once again fourteen-year-old John Doyle, of 113 1/2 street, Charlestown, known as the "King of youthful travelers," is in the custody of the police. This time it is in Baltimore, where the police of that city found him surrounded by a crowd of men and boys yesterday. He said he had come from Charlestown, Mass., for no other reason than love for travel.

The Baltimore police communicated with Boston officers yesterday afternoon in regard to the lad. It was only last Friday the boy was taken into custody by the New Haven police, and his mother sent money to the chief of police of New Haven to put him on the train and return home. The police put him on a train, but instead of coming to Boston he went to Baltimore.

In reply to questioning, young Doyle stated that he made his way "by side-door Pullmans." He said that he had never before been out of money on his travels, and for the first time realized it was "just awful to be broke."

His mother attributes his habit of running away to the reading of novels.

BRIBERY CASE

Burns Says Hamilton's $600 Went to Buy Votes

SALEM, Oct. 19.—Only four witnesses were heard yesterday in the superior criminal court in the trial of Jas. Hamilton, fire chief of Lawrence, who is indicted in nine counts for bribery.

At the opening of the court yesterday forenoon, William H. Molsen, real estate dealer of Lawrence, resumed his testimony, which was a reiteration of that submitted at the session Monday, that he received $100 from Hamilton for payment to Alderman Legendre in case the nomination of Hamilton as fire chief was confirmed.

Matthew Burns, who was a member of the Lawrence board of aldermen in 1909, and is now serving sentence with ex-Mayor White for alleged conspiracy, was the next witness. Burns testified that he received $600 from Hamilton to be paid to Alderman Legendre and Wockie in case they voted to confirm the nomination of said Hamilton. This money was placed in a safe by the son of Burns, and some two weeks later, when Hamilton had been confirmed, Wockie, Moss and Legendre each received an envelope containing $200.

Burns testified that when he was first approached by Hamilton the latter was informed that he (Burns) favored another candidate for chief. At a subsequent conference Hamilton told Burns that "these fellows want money for their votes," Burns replied, "If you (Hamilton) secure the money, he (Burns) could secure the votes." Burns was promised iron work for his service in securing the three votes necessary for the confirmation of Hamilton.

Burns further testified that at the time the attempt was made to depose Hamilton from the position of fire chief he was offered $500 for his (Burns) influence with certain aldermen. Burns says he refused the offer. Hamilton made another offer which was also declined.

Witness testified that Wockie, Moss and Legendre came to his office one week before Hamilton was confirmed to ascertain if the money promised was in his custody.

Xavier Legendre, a member of the board of aldermen in 1909, who is now a state witness, testified that he received $150 for voting to confirm Hamilton and $100 when the attempt was made to oust Hamilton from office.

At adjournment Matthew Burns, Jr., the 16-year-old son of Matthew Burns, was on the stand. He testified that he placed the $600 received, by his father from Hamilton in the office safe.

NURSES' COURSE

Extended to Three Years at Lowell General

The executive committee of the Lowell General hospital met yesterday and voted to make the course of training for nurses cover a period of three years.

Prior to three years ago the course of training covered a period of two years; then it was changed to two years and six months. Now the executive committee, acting upon the recommendation of the superintendent of the training school, has extended this course of training to three full years.

This change makes it possible for the instruction, both didactic and clinical, to be much more complete in every way.

This change goes into effect at once, and all new applicants for the training school will be required to remain the three full years. The change does not affect, however, any of those now registered in the school.

New courses of lectures have already been arranged and it is now believed that the course offered here is equal to the best in the country.

Strong and Happy Women

USE go about their duties cheerfully—at home, in office or in store, or shop—They find life pleasant and the world full of good; they are attractive and they are able to make things pleasant for those about them. But women often find themselves weak and anemic or run down—maybe, through no fault of their own—Then there is depression—the outlook is dark. With nerves on edge no woman can enjoy life or be attractive to others. At such times, or when conditions cause undue suffering, every woman needs some natural help.

She should then know and use the famous and fully proved remedy—Beecham's Pills, so particularly adapted to the needs of women. Easy and safe to take, they tone the stomach, regulate the bowels and keep the liver and kidneys up to their work.

Two May Die as Result of Collision of Cars at Kittery, Maine

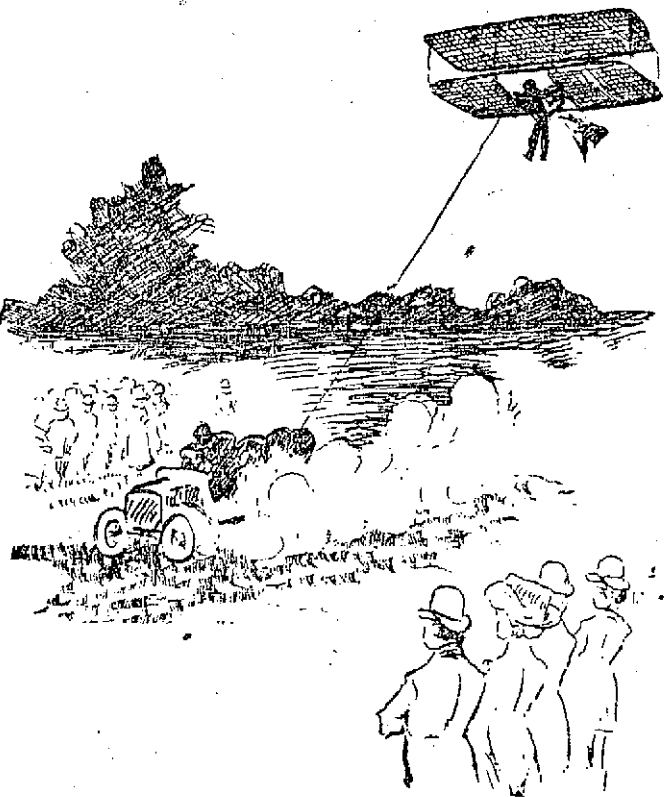

KITTERY, Oct. 18.—Eighty employees of the Portsmouth navy yard on the way to begin their day's work were more or less injured today, three possibly fatally, in a collision between two heavily loaded trolley cars on the Atlantic Shore line railroad at Fort Hill. Falling leaves had made the rails slippery and the first of two cars mounting the hill, driven by Motorman Arthur Barnes, failed to respond to its brakes and rolled back down the hill, crashing into another car. An accident similar in almost every particular occurred at the same spot six years ago.

Bad cuts about the head and possible internal injuries sustained by George Gunnison and William Foye, the two most seriously injured, may result in their deaths. Both were removed unconscious to their homes. Thomas Billings suffered an injury to his back which may be a fracture of the spine. Asa Wilson had several ribs and an arm broken and Ansell Hutchins sustained a broken leg and a broken wrist. Nearly a score of others were so badly knocked about that they were unable to go to their work and several others will bear marks of their injuries for life. Both cars were badly damaged but the crews of neither sustained serious injuries.

TESTING "GLIDERS"

MR. LEHMANN IN THE GLIDER DRAWN BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Technology Club Spent Day in Aeronautic Tests

Lowell may in the near future become as widely known for holding aviation meets as it was for holding successful automobile races, for yesterday an aviation meet was held at the Vesper Country club grounds at Tyngs Island. It was true that the machines used were not regular aeroplanes, they were "gliders" which are the nearest things to the regular motor driven aeroplanes.

The occasion was the aeronautical reunion of the Technology club of the Merrimack valley and the demonstration were highly successful. The gliding was done by undergraduates of the Institute of Technology. The golf course was open to the visitors and also the tennis courts and the day was spent in an enjoyable manner. During the forenoon the glider was tried out on the links at the south of the clubhouse but, not with an accident and for a time it was thought that it could not be repaired in time for the afternoon demonstration.

However, the four young men of the crew, Messrs. E. N. Fales, H. W. Caldwell, H. F. Lehmann and J. E. Neely, all '12 men, got things in shape after much hard work and about 4 o'clock the first of the flights was attempted. Dr. John H. Lambert's automobile was used to get the glider under way. Mr. Lehmann was placed in the centre of the planes, but got a poor start and rose only a few feet in the air.

A speedier machine, C. Marshall Forrest's, was used for the second flight. Mr. Lehmann still occupying a place in the glider. The automobile got away fast and the glider rose after about 100 feet, going to a height of 80 feet and flying for over 150 yards. Unfortunately one wing of the glider struck a small tree and came down. Mr. Lehmann was not hurt. The glider was somewhat vr nched by the fall and was not put in shape for another flight.

A dinner was served at the country club from 5.15 to 6 o'clock, after which there was speechmaking.

TYPHOID FEVER

Seven Cases Reported From Front St.

There is a typhoid fever epidemic in Front street, Centralville. Despite the fact that the street is a short one, seven cases and one death have been reported.

In a house where the water was shut off because of alleged non-payment of the water bill there are three cases of typhoid fever while across the street there are four cases.

While the cases in the house where the water was shut off might be due to the water used during that time, it is thought that the cases across the street are due to the exposure of sewerage. The water in the Merrimack river at this point has been so low for several days that the sewage which generally flows into the water and is carried away has been deposited on dry land which sent forth an odor which was almost unbearable.

HANGED HIMSELF

After His Sister Had Passed Away

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dead since Saturday or Sunday, the bodies of Miss Lucy McMullen and her brother, Louis McMullen, were found last night in the cottage, No. 291 Livingston street, Brooklyn. The man had died after an illness of several months and his sister, in her grief following his death, had committed suicide. He was forty-eight years old and she eight years his senior. The pair had lived all their lives in the house where their bodies were found.

Louis McMullen was prominent in Brooklyn politics and was for years in the sheriff's office. His father before him was prominent politically and for years was the appraiser of the port of New York for the Ninth district, which includes Brooklyn.

Miss McMullen, after the death of her mother, took up herself the cares of the house and her younger brother, whom she raised, and herself occupied the home after the sister and even the brother had married.

Three months ago the brother was taken ill of a complication of diseases. He was not confined to his bed all the time. On Friday last his physician, Dr. A. C. Brush, of No. 29 South Portland avenue, called, as did Harry McMullen, the brother who is married and lives at No. 169 Battle street. On Sunday the physician called and did not gain admittance. Dr. Brush was unable to get in on Monday, and yesterday reported the matter to the police. Last evening, with the police, he effected an entrance through a window that was not locked. The body of Miss McMullen was found hanging from a door of the second-floor bedroom. On the floor lay the body of the brother.

For some time Miss McMullen, according to her friends, had been morose. At the time of the Livingston street widening she refused to sell the old house in which she lived, and later appeared to regret it because the price offered them was far in excess of what she was able to receive as an offer later when she needed money.

DWELLING ON FIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland Had Narrow Escape

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Murkland, the former being treasurer of the Central Savings bank, had a narrow escape from being suffocated and probably burned to death early this morning when fire broke out in their house at 45 Talbot street while they were sound asleep. Fortunately Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the smoke and after arousing her husband, both made their escape from the burning building. An alarm from box 141 was sounded and the fire department was soon on the scene, but before the blaze was extinguished the building and contents were badly damaged. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Murkland were the only occupants of the house when the fire broke out, they having only recently returned from their summer home. Shortly before 1.30 o'clock Mrs. Murkland was awakened by the odor of smoke and aroused her husband. At first both thought that the smoke was from a forest fire, but it was so dense that Mr. Murkland decided to investigate and arose and opened the door of the bedroom. He was met by a cloud of smoke which filled the hall and all the other rooms on the second floor. Rushing down stairs he heard the crackling of flames in the kitchen, without stopping to make any further investigation, he rushed out of doors and rang in the alarm which summoned the department.

It was a long, hard haul up the hill to the house, and by the time the apparatus arrived, the fire had gained considerable headway. Starting in a clothes chute in the kitchen, it had passed up through the partitions to the second floor and was rapidly eating its way toward the roof.

It took the firemen over half an hour to extinguish the flames. In the meantime the building and its contents had been badly damaged.

Mr. Murkland is at a loss to understand how the fire occurred as the only fire in the house at the time was in a stove in the kitchen and the stove was far removed from the chute.

MRS. BARCLAY

WILL NOT BE TRIED ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING

HOLTON, Kan., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo will not be tried on a charge of kidnapping Marian Bleakley, the "incubator baby," about whom there was much publicity a year ago. The two cases against the woman, one on a charge of kidnapping and the other for assault, were dismissed in the district court yesterday. Joseph Gentry and Joseph Tillotson, in the employment of Mrs. Barclay, took the baby from the house of C. H. Belknap in Topeka after knocking down Mr. Belknap. They were tried and convicted. Mrs. Barclay obtained the child in St. Louis, where it was exhibited in an incubator. Later Mrs. Bleakley claimed it and a Kansas court decided it belonged to her. She has the child now. An Illinois court awarded the child to Mrs. Barclay.
